Are Astray to Various Points Aboard Several Steamers Which Answered Distress Call—Proud Passenger Liner Rammed Off Point Judith by Oil Tanker—Captain and Wireless Operator See Passengers Safely Over Side and Stick to Posts

NEWPORT, R. I., July 22.—(By the Associated Press) Three passengers, two men and one woman, are known to have been killed when the oil tanker Swift Arrow crashed into the Eastern Steamship liner Boston off Point Judith late last night. Their bodies were seen in the wreckage of two staterooms when the Boston was towed into Newport harbor and beached there today.

Identification of the bodies was impossible here. They were caught behind ship's plates that had been crushed in and it was said the plates would have to be cut with gas torches before the bodies could be extricated.

Several passengers are known to have been injured. Of those the most seriously hurt so far as known is C. Copeland, of Brookline, Mass. He was rushed to this port on board the coast guard cutter Acushnet and taken to a hospital, where it was said that his leg and shoulder were broken and he had sustained internal injuries.

Passengers and crew were taken off in lifeboats and transferred to rescuing steamers and naval vessels which hurried to the scene after receiving the Boston's radio calls for help. A few were landed by the steamer Commonwealth, which proceeded to Fall River with other survivors. A large number went aboard the Fall River liner Priscilla, due in New York this afternoon.

Among those on the Priscilla is the purser of the Boston, who took with him the only available passenger list.

The Swift Arrow, apparently undamaged, stood by the Boston until daylight. Then she proceeded to an anchorage outside Newport, whence she sent ashore nine boats containing passengers from the Boston.

The Swift Arrow was bound from Tuxpan, Mexico, for Fall River with oil.

The collision came in a dense fog. The tanker struck the Boston amidships on the port side, cutting a gash 30 feet long and 20 feet high, three feet above the water line. A number of staterooms were crushed in and it was there that the casualties occurred.

Half an hour afterward the steamer appeared to be sinking, with her engine room filled with water and her power and lights gone.

Survivor's Story
"The work of lowering the boats was begun then," said Jna. F. Rooney of 438 Pleasant street, Malden, Mass., one of the passengers who was landed.

Brazilian Federal and Revolutionary Forces Engaged
About Sao Paulo

WASHINGTON, July 22.—3000 civilians are reported to have been killed and injured in fighting at Sao Paulo between Brazilian federal and revolutionary forces.

Reports received today by the state department said, however, that no Americans were included among the casualties.

The heaviest fighting of revolt, the message said, took place during the night of July 20, but the result did not materially change the situation.

AWAIT SALE OF WARREN STREET FIREHOUSE

Considerable local interest is being shown in business and fraternal circles concerning the city's disposition of the Warren street firehouse.

One large concern established in this city for more than five years is very much interested in the property and will bid on it as soon as the city announces its disposition to sell. The concern plans, if it is successful in purchasing the property, to entirely

OLD BARN MAKES SPECTACULAR FIRE

A barn situated in a field between Beacon and Humphrey streets, was destroyed by fire this forenoon. It was under lease to Mrs. Mary Marlow, 60 Humphrey street, and was unused except for the storage of a few man's supplies and an automobile, which was taken out before it was damaged.

It is believed that boys playing in the barn were responsible for the fire, as youngsters in the neighborhood were known to use it as a playhouse, and no other theory could be advanced.

Although situated several hundred feet from any other building, the barn burned so rapidly and fiercely that a few faint sparks fell on house roofs in the neighborhood, but were quickly extinguished.

When apparatus responded to an alarm from Box 619, the barn was on fire from end to end and was level with the ground within ten minutes. The blaze was spectacular while it lasted and could be seen from all sections of the city.

The loss will not exceed $500.

YANKEE FLIERS
AWAIT OFFICIAL WORD TO START

BROUGH, Eng., July 22.—(By the Associated Press) The American aviators will be ready to resume their whirl round the world tomorrow, but will wait in this tiny village by the Humber until Washington says the word "Go."

The process of converting their three planes from the overland type into seagoing ships will be completed tomorrow. This will be the last labor of the six days of hard work which the fliers have put in on their machines.

SERIOUSLY INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

As a result of an automobile accident last night on the Acton road, South Chelmsford, Ansin Anderson, 19, of North Acton, is in a serious condition at the Lowell General hospital, and Fred Gould, 26, of the same town, is being treated for multiple injuries of a more or less minor nature. A third young man, Oliver Erickson of Chelmsford Centre, also was slightly injured.

The three men were riding in a car near the intersection of the Hall and Acton roads when the machine became unmanageable after striking a rock in the roadway and turned turtle after crashing into a stone wall. The car was practically demolished and all three men were bleeding profusely when taken from the wreckage. Police Officer Adams of Chelmsford went to the scene and called an ambulance for Anderson and Gould. Erickson was taken to his home.

LIQUOR CASES BEFORE
U. S. COMMISSIONER

William Harlow of Lawrence, charged with the illegal possession of intoxicating liquor, waived examination before U. S. Commissioner Richard B. Walsh here this morning and was held under bonds of $500 for the federal district court.

The government case against Thomas Brolli and Dominic Fargnoli of Lawrence, charged with illegal sale and possession, was put in, with a continuance granted until Sept. 19 for the defendants' side. Atty. Charles A. Donahue represents Brolli, with Atty. Joan Campopiano of Lawrence appearing for Fargnoli. Agent A. L. Lucena of Springfield was the witness for the government.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 22.—The bodies of two boys in the party of seven children who lost their lives in the sinking of a canoe last Thursday afternoon, were recovered just before noon today, off Faucher's dock. This was about a mile from where they were last seen alive.

LOWELL MAN IS PURSER ON LINER
RAMMED IN FOG

The purser on the Boston, Eastern Steamship Co. boat rammed off Point Judith early this morning, is Harry G. Lawson, of 1501 Gorham street, Lowell, an employee of the company for the past eight years and for five years purser on the Northland before the palatial Boston was put into service.

A radio message received by his wife by way of Western Union this noon told of his safe arrival in New York. He was picked up by the Priscilla, Fall River liner, which stood by in response to "S.O.S." calls sent out by the Boston.

"My husband is safe in New York, that is all I know," said Mrs. Lawson this noon, "but I am thankful beyond words."

NAVY MAN IS

Boatswain's Mate on Destroyer
Freed Brookline Man
From His Stateroom

Cut Through Three Partitions on Steamer Boston to Save Man's Life

NEWPORT, R. I., July 22.—Boatswain Mate Hayden of the destroyer Wright proved a man of action in an emergency. When the navy relief arrived at the wreck he answered the cries of one of the staterooms, finding C. L. Copeland, 11 Columbian Crescent, Brookline, Mass. Under Copeland's guidance, Hayden with an axe cut through three partitions and dragged the injured man from his berth and then carried him to his party with the result that Copeland was rushed ashore on the Acushnet attended by navy medical officers but later in the hospital in a critical condition with numerous injuries, including internal ones. Doctors will operate on him this afternoon.

The Point Judith coast guard has arrived with nine boats and a life raft, all belonging to the Boston, but they contain no survivors.

RARE OLD STUFF
FOUND IN DANIEL
WEBSTER INN

Historic Daniel Webster Inn at Sandwich, fragment in memories, on beautiful Cape Cod, where the famous jurist was wont to spend many happy hours in relaxation in bygone years and situated in the heart of the street from the Sandwich court house and right next door to the pretty little Unitarian church, roundly and strangely to the feet of federal prohibition agents led by Walter H. Sullivan of Lowell, the other evening, and before the raiding party completed its work, liquor of rare, old vintage went out the door with them.

On the bottles confiscated from the old time hostelry were names to intrigue the most biased of men, names to conjure with, such as James E. Pepper, John Dewar and Peter Dawson, all honorable men in their time and still going strong in places despite the ever-tightening strands of the federal prohibition net.

The proprietor of the inn, one Giovanni by name, was arrested before a United States commissioner in New Bedford, and was bound over for the federal district court, there to answer to the charge of illegal possession and sale.

Thus does Daniel Webster Inn add to its fragrant memories.

Children of Local Orphanages Guests of Rotarians at Martin Luther Grounds

BAND LEADS PARADE OF 115 MOTOR CARS FILLED WITH HAPPY CHILDREN ON OUTING.
INSERT—A TRUCK-LOAD OF YOUNGSTERS EN ROUTE TO PICNIC GROUNDS

Their dreams came true. This is "Orphan Children's Day," with every blessed member of Lowell Rotary club playing the cheerful, smiling host to a joyous throng of kiddies of both sexes at the spacious Martin Luther picnic grounds in old Tynsboro.

Seven hundred and eight orphans, prepared to spend the happiest day of their lives, paraded through the principal streets of the city in automobiles loaned by Rotarian members and private citizens, waved American flags at the eager, smiling crowds that lined the sidewalks, sang numerous songs and cheered lustily in the ecstasy of their delight.

The spectacular parade—for it was a spectacular because of the number of children and their colorful, spic and span appearance that showed the quality of the maternal care that they are given in the institutions where they live—was a striking one from every viewpoint. It provided ample proof, if proof were necessary, that the Rotarians still hold first position in the public life of Lowell when arranging summer outings for youth. Today's effort—the greatest yet recorded for boy and girl orphans of Lowell charitable institutions—sets a new and shining record.

The procession was scheduled to leave the Ayer home, where the Rotarians had their parade formation headquarters, promptly at 10:30, but several distinguished guests, including Lieut. Gov. Alvan T. Fuller, did not arrive on time. The parade was held up until 11:15, when word came that the lieutenant-governor had not reached Lowell, but was on his way.

LOCAL MOTOR REGISTRY
OFFICE BUSY PLACE

The local office of the motor registry department, located in temporary quarters in the old councilmanic chamber at city hall, has grown to be one of the busiest branch offices of the registry in the state.

Up to the present time, 11,775 registrations for pleasure cars, 2500 truck registrations and over 200 motorcycle registrations have been granted at the local office. Of this number it is estimated that 9000 of the pleasure car registrations were taken out by residents of this city, the remaining 2775 being issued to residents of towns nearby. This number exceeds by 200 the number of cars estimated to have been owned in this city last year.

Approximately 160 men and women undertake the examination for operators' licenses each week and of this number 140 are successful.

The office of the local branch in the Mongeau building which was damaged by fire is now in the process of reconstruction and Chief Clerk Charles McDermott said today he believed the office would be ready for occupancy within a month.

WOMAN VICTIM IS IDENTIFIED
FALL RIVER, July 22.—Mrs. Oscar Green of 1281 Parkway, Brooklyn, N. Y., was killed in her berth on the steamer Boston in the collision with Swift Arrow last night. This was confirmed when her husband arrived here today on one of the rescue steamers.

CHICAGO, July 22.—(By the Associated Press.)—Senators La Follette and Wheeler will open the third tickle campaign in the eastern seaboard and New England states, touring west and south over divergent routes to every state in the union. Representative John M. Nelson, national manager of the La Follette candidacy, stated today.

DOLL CARRIAGE PARADE ON PLAYGROUNDS

A doll carriage parade was held on each of the city's fourteen playgrounds this afternoon. Hundreds of young girls, attendants at the playgrounds, paraded before the instructors, who acted in the capacity of judges, with doll carriages gaily decorated with crepe paper and ribbons of various hues. On each of the playgrounds one girl will be chosen as having the most originally decorated carriage and will be awarded a suitable prize, donated by the park department.

How to Build a Low-Loss Coupler For Regenerative Reception

HOOKUP SHOWING HOW LOW-LOSS COUPLER MAY BE USED.

BY ISRAEL KLEIN
N.E.A. Service Radio Editor
The most efficient coil for radio reception, one that involves as little loss as possible, is a winding of wire on an "air core."

This leaves the coil itself supported by nothing except through its own rigidity as wire.

The reason for this is that air is the most efficient dielectric or non-conductor obtainable. Hard rubber, vulcanite, celotex or any other form of cylinder for holding the coil steals some of the received radio waves from the coil and thus causes a loss in reception.

Therefore, the aim in constructing a perfect receiver lies in seeking air core tuners, involving as little loss as possible.

Examples
The basket-wound coil, the spider-web and varieties of these are examples of low-loss coils. They consist of wire wound in and out of pegs formed in a circle, leaving not only an air core in the center, but air pockets or spaces between the windings.

These coils need special care for proper construction, for they must be able to remain firm and retain their original shape throughout operation of the receiver. Where the coils are movable, this difficulty has discouraged some radio fans from their use. In their stead, therefore, although not so efficient, is the combination primary, secondary and tickler coils—an untuned variocoupler—which must suffer slightly more loss than the complete air-core coil.

Only the primary of this coupler is practically of the air-core variety. Yet it is much more efficient than winding with primary and secondary close upon each other, on a dielectric base or cylinder.

Construction
This coupler is made from an ordinary 150-degree variocoupler. The secondary winding, or rotor, remains as made, and becomes the tickler in this instance.

The rotor winding is removed and in its place should be wound 42 turns of 20 S. C. C. wire. Number 18 wire might be even better, the heavier the wire the less the loss. The ends of this winding may be kept in place by a touch of sealing wax at each end.

Around the middle of this winding, place a piece of thin, flexible cardboard, three-fourths of an inch wide and just long enough for the ends to meet around the coil. A strip of adhesive tape over the joined ends would secure the cardboard.

Now cut eight small blocks of hard wood, three-fourths of an inch long by three-eighths high by three sixteenths thick. These may be stuck to the cardboard at equal distances around the coil, with a touch of collodion.

The Primary
On these blocks and around the secondary goes the primary winding, consisting of 10 turns of the same wire used for the secondary. Care should be taken that the winding is tight, so that it will not come loose from the blocks. The ends may be secured to the blocks by pieces of tape, or by sealing wax.

Shunt the secondary of this coupler with a variable condenser of .0005 mfd.

capacity, and the coupler is ready for tuning in any broadcasting wavelength.

It is an efficient coupler where untuned double-circuit reception is required. The accompanying hook-up is an example of the way in which this coupler can be used. It required practically one tuning unit, the condenser, because the tickler is merely for the control of regeneration.

NEW INVENTION FOR RADIO FANS

By N.E.A. Service
NEW YORK, July 21.—Inventors are getting ready to send heretofore unheard of ideas and apparatus for exhibition at the first radio world's fair, which will be held here Sept. 22 to 28.

The promise of new inventions is so great that Managers U. J. Herrmann and James F. Kerr have been compelled to enlarge the "New Inventions Section" for the exhibition of 100 devices.

Among the noteworthy American discoveries to be shown will be at least three different methods for transmitting photographs by radio. Europe also will be well represented here.

The first program of radio motion pictures may come from this fair. Herrmann and Kerr hope to be able to broadcast the first radio movie show on the opening night of the exposition.

WAR TANKS TO GET SETS
By N.E.A. Service

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Army tanks will be equipped with radio sending and receiving sets, according to word from the U. S. war department.

This has been decided on after successful tests made with equipment suitable for rough usage such as tanks undergo.

The only difficulty with these is that the noise while the tanks are in motion is so great that the sets cannot be used. Even while the tanks are not moving, for proper transmission the sets have to be well shielded from metal bodies.

THEATRE ON AIR

The Mark Strand theatre in New York one of the largest movie theatres in the country, will broadcast its musical and special concert programs every Sunday night from station WMAF at South Dartmouth, Mass. A special telephone line carries the concert from the theatre several hundred miles to the station.

AERIAL CONDENSER

AIRMAIL RADIO
The airmail service has been assigned the use of wave lengths between 3000 and 4000 meters. All stations are called on the general 5993-meter wavelength.

BATTERY CONFERENCE
Dry battery manufacturers are planning to meet with government radio men in conference to adopt certain standards for their products. The best kinds of batteries for radio use are planned.

OPERIA BY TELEPHONE
Munich (Bavaria) telephone subscribers may now listen to their famous opera company by paying an additional fee. The music does not interfere with any conversation along the same line.

THIS WOMAN'S MARVELLOUS RECOVERY

All Due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Truman, Minn.—"I was badly run-down and had pains in my side and back; sometimes I couldn't hardly move around in bed. My husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after taking it I was so much better I could do all my work again. I do my housework, have a garden, and in harvest time I worked in the field and helped pick corn. Sometimes I do chores and milk. I took the Vegetable Compound before and after my four-months-old baby was born, and it has always helped me wonderfully. I believe there is no better medicine made for women, and I hope every woman will give it a fair trial."

—Mrs. AUGUST R. WIGNER, R. No. 2, Box 84, Truman, Minnesota.

Women suffering from troubles so common to their sex should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

The Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has relieved women of such troubles for the past fifty years. For sale by druggists everywhere.

RADIO PROVING OF BENEFIT TO BLIND

NUMEROUS articles have found their way into print about the benefits of radio to the deaf, the sick and to cripples who are bedridden, but scant attention has been paid to the inestimable boon which the new art of communication is proving to the blind.

At first thought, one might say, "Well there are not so many blind people." But unfortunately there are a great many more than is generally realized. In the state of New York alone, on January 1st there were 8000 blind persons. The number of blind in the United States exceeds 100,000.

Numerous institutions for the blind in various parts of the country have provided radio receiving sets for their inmates, and in many homes where there is a blind person there is a receiving set. The day should come when every blind person in the United States should have one. The great majority of blind who enjoy radio now or will do so in the future will listen in at their own homes, for approximately four-fifths of the sightless are cared for at home instead of in institutions.

Radio appeals particularly to the blind because it puts them again in direct touch with so many phases of the world's activity from which their affliction has excluded them. Music, sports, lectures, plays and public gatherings are among the many resources of enjoyment and education which the new art brings to them. It is safe to say that they enjoy and appreciate radio more than ordinary people because it is a well-known fact that when a person is deprived of one sense, another becomes more acute; the ear of a sightless person is nearly always much more sensitive than that of the average individual.

For this reason it is very important in building a set for a blind person to select the very best type of amplifying transformers which amplifies the sound without distorting it. The ear of a blind person is much more sensible to poor tonal quality than the ear of a normal person.

Without doubt, radio is more of a boon to the blind than to any other class of persons who through infirmity or illness are shut out from the ordinary pursuits and diversions of life.

Now a second expedition has been started on its way, and complete radio equipment has not been overlooked for continued communication with the world.

The expedition is that of William Hale Thompson, former mayor of Chicago, in search of the much-hunted tree-climbing fish of the south seas.

In a 65-foot auxiliary ketch, the "Big Bill," the crew of seven is now sailing down the Mississippi on its first leg of its adventurous journey. For two years this little sailing vessel is expected to roll about the south seas in search of the unique fish that has aroused the curiosity of scientists.

To Take Movies
To guard against having to return with any stories of the "big one that got away," a motion picture camera and an expert photographer are on board. What fish are caught will be taken to the Field Museum here.

Incidentally, Thompson plans to spread the idea that Chicago should be the greatest seaport in the world, with the Great Lakes navigable for ocean-going liners. This is in the interest of the Great Lakes-to-the-Sea project which has been talked for years.

For the two years that the "Big Bill" is expected to be in southern waters, the world will learn of its

CLEVELAND CO'S

CLEVELAND, July 21.—Radio casting for the prevention of crime and detection of criminals is soon to be employed extensively here, Chief of Police Graul has announced.

Small sets with headphones are to be installed on every squad car and motorcycle. Radio sets will have only one wave length, but will enable motorcycle officers in outlying districts to listen in on bulletins from the central station.

OSCILLATION TROUBLE

If a regenerative receiver has stopped oscillating, check up on connections and on the A and B batteries. If both are all right, excessive voltage on the plate may have paralyzed the tube. To cure this, keep the tube lighted for half an hour with the B battery disconnected.

wanderings through the activity of E. C. Page, its youthful radio operator.

Equipment
His equipment consists of a 100-watt transmitter and two receiving sets. He is able to send his messages on waves ranging from 100 to 600 meters, and to receive on wavelengths of from 50 to 6000 meters. The official call of the vessel is WHU.

The radio equipment has been tested and from Chicago Page has succeeded in talking with Atlantic and Pacific coast amateur radio operators.

Besides trying to get in touch with amateurs in the United States, while the vessel is in the south seas, Page expects to communicate with operators in South America, Europe and Australia. So far as radio is concerned, the expedition will present an opportunity to study the efficiency of the shorter wave-lengths in the climate peculiar to southern waters.

Besides Thompson, Page and Captain Duken on the trip are Mrs. Duken and her 10-year-old son, J. Ellsworth Cross, camera man; A. M. Caron and Ray Martin, engineers and navigators.

METROPOLITAN DEATH RATE INCREASES

ALBANY, N. Y., July 22.—The mortality rate of New York state exclusive of New York city during 1923 was 14.8 per 1000 population as compared with 14.4 in 1922 and with 15.8 the average annual rate for the five years from 1917 to 1921, it is indicated in provisional data of the state department of health.

The increase in 1923 was due in large measure to the greater mortality in cancer, organic heart disease, nephritis, automobile accidents, tuberculosis and acute respiratory diseases, in the opinion of Dr. Matthias Nicoll, Jr., state health commissioner.

During 1923, however, decreases were shown with the number of deaths from typhoid fever, diphtheria, diarrhoea, under two years of age and infant mortality.

AUTOS BURN IN NEW YORK FIRE

NEW YORK, July 22.—Fire today caused $300,000 damage at the plant of the Standard Commercial Body Corporation, in East 104th street. A two-story brick structure housing 1000 complete and incomplete automobiles, trucks and other bodies was destroyed. The fire spread to an adjoining market where $10,000 worth of live poultry was destroyed.

SHOOTS GIRL AND ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

EVERETT, July 22.—Helen Skinner, 23, of this city, was shot and seriously wounded today by Edward J. Cotter of Charlestown, who then shot himself, inflicting a probably fatal wound. Miss Skinner, accompanied by Miss Evelyn Stevens, met Cotter on the street and a moment later he opened fire. Both were taken to hospital. The police have been unable to learn the motive for the shootings.

LONGEVITY DUE TO HARD WORK CLAIM

NEWTON, Conn., July 22.—That she never consulted a physician or suffered illness until a week before her death, was the record of Mrs. Nora Bradley Kane, who died late Sunday night, aged 109 years. "Work hard and constantly and leave all the rest to God," was her motto, which she frequently quoted to her friends.

EVERETT MILLS TO CLOSE ON AUG. 11

NEW FRENCH COAT

Here is a new coat, French, of course, that could play a number of roles in any wardrobe. It could be used over afternoon or dinner gowns as well as evening ones, and would also do very nicely as a wrap for afternoon tea or matinee. It is of black satin embroidered in antique design in dull colors. It is lined with gold-colored satin. It may be wrapped closely about the throat or softly rolled as in the photograph.

Hearing Over Leopold-Loeb

of not less than 14 years, are faced by Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, millionaires' sons whose plans of kingly to kidnaping and killing Robert Franks have swept aside carefully prepared insanity defenses and thrown them on the mercy of Judge John R. Caverly.

Only evidence tending to mitigate their punishment can be submitted without a jury at a judicial proceeding beginning tomorrow. The prosecution, which demands the gallows for the two University students, plans to examine a hundred witnesses. The defense, hoping for a life sentence, expects to submit testimony of alienists regarding the mental responsibility of the youths. More than three weeks are expected to be consumed for the hearing.

The parents of the two boys do not wish them to have their freedom, attorneys for the defense say. Neither, it is said, do they desire that their inheritance be in an asylum. Consequently the corps of alienists made minute examinations and prepared voluminous reports will make only brief statements on the stand in the effort to gain leniency. "I am confident that both will be sentenced to hang," said State's Attorney Crowe. "It is the only just punishment for their crime. The state is going to prove not only that they are guilty, but that they are absolutely sane and should be hanged."

The wealth of the families was partly responsible for the pleas of insanity. Attorney Darrow of the defense said.

"If these boys were poor," he said, "I am confident I could get a verdict of acquittal. Their wealth is a tremendous handicap. We have thrown ourselves upon the mercy of the court because I firmly believe that nowhere in this broad land could there be gotten together a fair-minded jury to try the case."

Extra guards have been stationed at the cells of the boys and a careful inspection is to be made of all their food to prevent poisoning attempts, Sheriff Hoffman has announced.

LOAN PLAN HITS SNAG

Delegates to Inter-Allied Conference Discuss Proposed Dawes' Plan Loan

LONDON, July 22.—(By the Associated Press.)—Delegates to the inter-allied conference, called for the purpose of putting the Dawes report into execution, today were busily engaged in determining the attitude of the financiers who will be called upon to advance a loan of 40,000,000 pounds sterling to Germany with which to finance the Dawes plan.

The Daily Telegraph in an emphatic statement today declares that a serious hitch has occurred in the conference, due especially to the American bankers being disinclined to take the loan on the strength of guarantees embodied in the protocol framed last Saturday.

LOWELL ACTOR KILLED

Old-Timer on Chautauqua Tour Injured in Stage Coach Accident

CHICAGO, July 22.—Frank Iversen, 72, an actor of Lowell, Mass., died here last night as a result of injuries suffered two weeks ago near Holbrook, Ariz., where he was traveling with a Chautauqua company. A stage coach in which they were riding overturned.

DE VALERA ADVOCATES IRISH INDEPENDENCE

DUBLIN, July 22.—Eamon De Valera advocated independence for Ireland in his speech at the Mansion House last night. It was his first public appearance since his release from prison. A wildly cheering audience enthusiastically acclaimed him as president of the Irish republic. Three hours before the appointed hour for the speech crowds of many parts of the country formed a line outside the building, which was unable to hold more than a small fraction of those who desired to enter.

Mr. De Valera said that the republicans no longer formed the rear guard but were the main body of the nation. The present time, he continued, was a time for acts, not words. What was most needed was unity in defense of Irish liberty. The republicans, said Mr. De Valera, would do their utmost to create friendly relations with their neighbors, whether they were English, French, American, Scottish or Welsh.

GOV. COX ASKED TO PROBE ARRESTS

PROVIDENCE, July 22.—Governor Channing H. Cox of Massachusetts has been asked by Governor Flynn to require a complete investigation of the arrest of Rhode Island officials in Massachusetts Saturday, "in order to establish the ultimate report for this most unfortunate and embarrassing incident."

Gov. Flynn states in his letter that "the mission upon which the Rhode Island officials were engaged is of such grave importance to this state and the interference with their efforts by the Massachusetts officials seems to have been so entirely unwarranted" that it is felt necessary to call the incident to the attention of Governor Cox.

GENERAL TOUR IS COOLIDGE PLAN

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Having determined on the outstanding features of the republican campaign organization, National Chairman Butler and his aides today turned to consideration of plans for the conduct of a nationwide campaign.

Mr. Butler announced completion of the campaign organization plans last night after a day of conferences here, and then went to the White House to report to President Coolidge. He declared the republican presidential contest would be carried into every section and would not be limited to any special group of states.

MEDICAL COUNCIL ON CARE OF VETS

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Advice on the treatment and care of disabled former service men was sought by Director Hines and other Veterans' bureau officials today from more than a score of the nation's most prominent medical authorities.

The assembled authorities are members of the council on medical and hospital affairs appointed by Director Hines as a volunteer advisory board to assure the veterans of the best treatment possible to obtain.

here. "Women and children went first in accordance with the law of the sea, then the men passengers and afterwards the crew. Captain A. W. Call and a radio operator were the only persons remaining aboard. The ship's officers did everything possible for us. There was some difficulty in lowering the boats, but as the sea was calm there was no danger."

Similar stories were told by H. E. Darling of Franklin, Mass., and V. M. Smith of 52 Westland avenue, Boston. A narrow escape was related by A. W. Keynor of 137 Lake avenue, Newton Centre, Mass.

Survivors Make Port
Between 500 and 600 passengers of the Eastern Steamship liner Boston, rammed by the tanker Swift Arrow off Point Judith last night, were astray to various ports this noon aboard several steamers which responded to calls for help and picked up survivors in the fog.

The Fall River steamer Priscilla and Providence, with some of the Boston's passengers aboard, were steaming to New York. The Plymouth and the Commonwealth brought several survivors to Fall River.

The Boston, partly filled with water, was beached at Newport, R. I. The Swift Arrow anchored off Beaver Tail, R. I., and sent out nine boats filled with passengers for Newport.

Purser Aboard Priscilla
The bodies aboard the steamer cannot be identified. The purser of the Boston, carrying the passenger list, is on board the steamer Priscilla, due in New York this afternoon.

The Fall River line steamer Priscilla and Providence reported by wireless that they would dock here about 3.30 p.m., daylight time, and that "some" of the Boston's passengers were aboard.

Tanker at Anchor
NEWPORT, R. I., July 22.—At 11 o'clock the tanker Swift Arrow anchored off Beaver Tail and started picking up passengers for Newport.

NEW YORK, July 22.—(By the Associated Press.)—The steamship Boston, bound from Boston to New York, which was rammed amidships in a heavy fog late last night off Point Judith, sent out a wireless message at 3.15 this morning stating that several lifeboats, crowded with passengers, were missing.

The steamer, one of the prize ships of the Eastern Steamship company, was reported taking in water rapidly through a gaping hole in her side. She was being towed toward Newport by the steamer Commonwealth of the Fall River line, but it was also reported that it might be necessary to beach her as she was very low in the water and might sink almost without warning.

Four Thought Killed
Four passengers are thought to have been killed. The Boston was rammed by the oil tanker Swift Arrow, two and a half miles southeast of Point Judith. The number of passengers aboard was unknown, but estimates ran as high as 1000, this being the peak of the vacation season for the Eastern Steamship line.

The fog was dense at the time the ships collided that the lookouts were so unaware of danger until a few seconds before the crash. The bow of the tanker cut far into the Boston, disabling the engine and cutting off the steam and electric supply.

Immediate Aid Given
The passengers were immediately ordered to the boats, and put out into the dark, as it was not known how soon the vessel might go down. The Boston's distress signal, the New York, was not far ahead, and with the Commonwealth and the Priscilla, of the Fall River line, sped to the rescue.

Because of the fog, however, the ships failed to approach too closely, thinking that they might run down some of the lifeboats. The Boston was unable to determine her exact whereabouts with her whistle, because of the lack of steam.

Two Left Aboard
The rescuing ships brought their searchlights into play, but due to the fog the radius of visibility was extremely short, and it was only possible to pick up those of the passengers whose lifeboats happened to drift into the glare. Many were taken aboard by the Swift Arrow, but later were transferred to the Priscilla to be taken to New York.

Reports received by the Independent Wireless Telegraph company at Easthampton, N. Y., stated that the captain and wireless operator were the only ones remaining aboard the sinking ship. Two tugs arrived from Newport, and were placed on either side of the Boston, as she was being towed by the Commonwealth, in an effort to keep her afloat until she should make Newport.

Relatives Hysterical
News of the collision spread rapidly and the offices of the Eastern Steamship company in Fulton street were besieged early this morning with hundreds of persons seeking information concerning relatives and friends aboard the Boston. Many women in the crowd were hysterical.

Officials of the line at 9 a. m. said they still were without definite word as to how many survivors were on board the Priscilla. The only information they had, they said, was that the Priscilla was "loaded to the rails" with survivors.

Some officials said they believed the Priscilla would dock here soon after noon, unless the fog should further delay her progress.

Ambulances at Wharf
NEWPORT, R. I., July 22.—A radio call to have ambulances at the Fall River line wharf here was received this morning. Shortly afterward the whistle of an approaching steamer was heard through the fog. The identity of the vessel, which might be held up in the bay for several hours, was not known, nor was the origin of the message given.

Many on Priscilla
NEWPORT, R. I., July 22.—(By the Associated Press.)—Struggling back after collision in fog with the oil tanker Swift Arrow, the coastwise passenger liner Boston was being towed here today, while some of her 600 to 800 passengers were lost in the crash. It was reported that the ship was loaded to the rails with survivors.

To Land at New York
BOSTON, July 22.—The Eastern Steamship Co. offices here received word by radio today that the steamer Priscilla will take to New York the passengers that were aboard the disabled steamer Boston. This was the first definite word of the intention to land the passengers at New York.

Eastern Steamship company officials still explained that they were unable to say just how many passengers the Boston carried on last night's trip, estimates ranging from 600 to close to 1000. They confirm reports from Captain Call that there was "casualties" to some of the Boston's passengers, but believe these did not involve loss of life.

Rammed By Tanker

NEWPORT, R. I., July 22.—The Boston, only two months from her builders, on the Eastern Steamship company's Boston-New York run, was off Point Judith shortly after midnight, poking through the fog on her way to New York, when the Swift Arrow sank her nose in the Boston's side, the wheelhouse was lowered overboard and passengers placed aboard while only Captain A. W. Call and the radio officer stood by.

Successing vessels, among them the Priscilla, the Commonwealth and the New York, which is sister to the Boston, soon steamed up in answer to the calls, bringing their searchlights to bear on the disabled liner.

Two it was reported that virtually all had been rounded up, most of them on the Priscilla, and that the loss of life was limited to four, who were killed when the two ships collided.

Ship Steadily Filling
Later came the word that several of the lifeboats were adrift in the waters of Block Island sound. At the same time the Boston sent word ashore that with a hole in the hull on the side, she had been steadily filling, and that the water had broken into the boiler room.

The Boston was being towed to the Narragansett by the Commonwealth on one side, and the Bobolink, naval tug, on the other. The Boston's crew for the most part were on the Commonwealth.

Tanker Gave Aid
Of the several hundred persons on the Swift Arrow, a large number had been transhipped twice during the exciting night. Pushing off from the crippled liner, they were picked up by the Swift Arrow, damaged, but not seriously. When the Priscilla came up, however, bound, like the Boston, for New York, it was decided to transfer the Boston's passengers again. The crash cut off the Boston's steam for signaling by whistle.

With the waters littered with lifeboats, steamers trained their searchlights to get a broad sweep across the seas, that they might not run down again the hapless ones that they sought to help. There was a lot of rescue work accomplished effectively under these difficulties. When a call came from the radio of the Boston for doctors, three responded from ships in the vicinity.

Was Constantly Queen
Built on the lines of an Atlantic liner, the Boston, with her sister ship, the New York, was probably the newest and finest of the big passenger ships in the American coastal services. She cost $1,750,000. With passenger accommodations for 1068 persons, the Boston also carried a crew of 180 men and women.

She was driven by two great turbines, burning oil as fuel, which could drive her 492 feet of length, with draft of 17.5 feet and displacement of 3500 tons, at a speed of 20 knots an hour.

Lieutenant Northington, who was aboard the navy tug which removed Copeland, said he had been informed that for men and one woman were killed in the collision and a number of persons injured.

Of those hurt, he said, Copeland's case was the most serious. The tug, he added, had passed a number of lifeboats filled with passengers and members of the crew of the Boston, but as the sea was smooth and they were not in danger the tug made no effort to pick them up, proceeding direct to the Boston.

UXBRIDGE WORSTED OFFICIAL ABOARD

WOONSOCKET, R. I., July 22.—Harry Nichols, an official of the Uxbridge Worsted company at Uxbridge, Mass., connected with the New York office of the company, together with Mrs. Nichols, were passengers on the Boston last night, according to advices from Uxbridge. Mr. Nichols was returning to New York after a tour of inspection of the Uxbridge plant.

LAWRENCE NURSES AMONG PASSENGERS

LAWRENCE, July 22.—Misses Irene Sipes and Mary Corkhill of this city, returning to St. John's hospital, Brooklyn, N. Y., where they are training to become nurses, were on the Boston which was wrecked last night. They had come for a vacation.

FITCHBURG MEN ON BOARD THE BOSTON

FITCHBURG, July 22.—Frederick H. Sprague, Fitchburg's prominent manufacturer, and John P. O'Connor, superintendent of one of the Sprague plants here, were believed to be aboard the Boston, rammed off Point Judith. No word has been received from the Fitchburg men up to 10.30 o'clock today.

696 SURVIVORS ARE ABOARD FOUR SHIPS

NEW YORK, July 22.—The Eastern Steamship company announced that the Boston carried 696 passengers. These have been transferred to the following ships of the Fall River line: Providence, carrying 45 to New York; Priscilla, carrying 480 to New York; Plymouth, carrying 120 to Fall River, Mass.; Commonwealth, carrying 40 to Newport.

Decide to Beach
NEWPORT, R. I., July 22.—Intention to beach the Boston was indicated in a request by radio from Capt. (later from the Commonwealth) who had the Boston in tow, that T. A. Scott Wrecking company of New London sent a tug to help. It was pointed out here that the Commonwealth was too big to take any part in the beaching process.

Salem Man Aboard
SALEM, July 22.—The passengers on the steamer Boston included Ralph C. Browne of this city, who was the inventor of the contact fuses in the deep sea mines striven by the British in the North sea during the World war. He was accompanied by Eleanor C. to New York.

Cutter Lands One
NEWPORT, R. I., July 22.—The first injured passenger brought ashore from the steamer Boston was C. Copeland of Brookline, Mass. He was landed by the coast guard cutter Aushnet and taken to a hospital suffering from a fractured left leg, fractured shoulder blade and internal injuries.

Officers of the Aushnet said they

In Two Years This Girl Jumped to Editorship of National Magazine

Two years ago she got a job on the magazine and didn't think she could hold it. Today, at 23, she is editor and owns the work of five people.

CECILE A. KIRWAN, WHO, AT 23, HAS BEEN MADE EDITOR OF A BIG NATIONAL MAGAZINE.

By N.E.A. Service
CHICAGO, July 21.—Cecile A. Kirwan wanted to be an editor.

Two years ago she got a job on the Woman's Weekly, in Chicago, and she didn't think she would be able to hold it. Today visitors are told: "Meet Miss Kirwan, editor." She is just 23.

Her climb in the field of journalism has been rapid. She always had her goal and she went after it.

But withal she is a real, feminine, womanly sort of young woman. She has her own apartment and there she keeps house. Cooking along with editing is her specialty.

The Woman's Weekly has a circulation of more than 300,000 each week. Miss Kirwan is the editor, copyreader, makes her own art layouts, places the advertisements; in fact, is the Woman's Weekly. She is now doing the job of the man editor who hired her two years ago and she is also doing the work of four other people who were in the office when she first went there.

This editor's chair was not easily reached by Miss Kirwan. After she got over her ambition of childhood to be an acrobat in the circus, she began sitting herself for newspaper work.

She attended the University of Illinois. She worked first on the Daily Illini, the university paper; then the News-Gazette at Chicago, Ill. There she did every kind of newspaper job, including the giving of advice to the love-lorn. Her advice was taken heartily by herself, too, because she is not yet married.

Her work took her to Tulsa, Okla., then to New York, then back to Chicago, where she walked the streets in search of a newspaper job. She got some income as press agent for an evangelist and then a friend said she might get on the Woman's Weekly. Her first assignment was politics, of which she said she knew nothing. To the editor's surprise she had a good story ready next day. Then she was put on the payroll.

Miss Kirwan declares any girl can do any job she wants to do if she will just hang up a goal for herself and never let anyone throw the switch. She doesn't think she has accomplished so much, just doing her best in her chosen field.

COMMON SENSE

When a merchant advertises his wares in a newspaper, he does not appeal to the paper, but to its readers. He solicits the patronage of those readers whether he agrees with the policy of the paper or not.

To refrain from advertising in a paper of wide circulation simply because he does not agree with the editor on all public questions, is not using common sense. It is a form of business suicide. It has sent many short-sighted business men into bankruptcy. A dealer might as well put a sign over his store notifying all who do not think as he does that he does not want their patronage. Readers of newspaper advertisements know when and where their patronage is welcome.

Orphans Guests of Local Rotarians

Then the committee decided to move. Led by Grand Marshal Alvah Weaver, of the Rotary club, and Altken's band of 20 pieces, with the first automobile containing Mayor John J. Donovan, the parade of the orphans started from the corner of Pawtucket and Moody streets, heading for the center of the city.

Route of Parade

The route took the automobiles—there were just 151 in line, each containing from three to seven children of both sexes—down Merrimack street, to Central, to Middlesex, to Dulton, to Merrimack street, and thence to the Martin Luther picnic grounds in Tyngsboro. The children, each armed with American flags and war-time round cards containing the number of their assigned cars, made a picturesque passage as they were driven through the streets that were choiced with spectators in many sections of the city. All traffic, vehicular and street railway, was suspended during the course of the parade, which was nearly half a mile long.

Many of the automobiles were driven by members of the fair sex, eager to aid the Rotarians and provide ample transportation facilities. There was a shortage of motor cars last year; today there were six extra cars, but these were used to take along picnic baggage.

When vigorous youth parades in all the panoplies of vigorous, bubbling joy and high expectations, the world stands still to see the sparkling spectacle which, though oft repeated, never grows stale or unattractive. No Roman holiday, no Mardi Gras festival, and martial passage in public review of the men of war in glorious celebration, can quite compare with the parade of American youth in its teens, when life is in the making, ambitions soaring and the world at large a delicious field of exploration, with mysteries abounding and delights in measure full.

Today, thousands of Lowell citizens enjoyed the spectacle of a parade of nearly 800 orphan children. Smiles there were, on every hand, unfeigned, nourished by the pleasure that follows the appearance of children in joyful parade. And yet the attractive parade of youth in summer picnic array that transformed a workaday city for a brief space of time this morning into a sea of smiling humanity, was not without a tinge of pathos.

It was "Orphans' day," and happy fathers and mothers, basking upon the impressive parade spectacle, realized in full measure the meaning of the word "orphan." Because this was a parade of Lowell orphans, it was all the more admired and cherished. There were of the things that made it such a wonderful success from the start at Ayer home, until the gates of Martin Luther grounds in Tyngsboro were reached.

Formation of Parade Line
The formation of the parade line was conducted without a hitch. Rotarian members were assigned to posts of duty several days ago and reported at the six different orphans' institutions promptly. The number of automobiles was amply sufficient in each case, and the parade line formed with the mayor's car in the lead, resting at the corner of Moody and Pawtucket streets, until the orders were issued for the parade through the city.

Police Lieut. Connors ably handled the traffic on Pawtucket and Fletcher streets, aided by alert Motorcycle Policemen Frank Murphy and Barney Judge.

The street railway lines were kept wide open until the parade started, Inspector Edward A. Welch below on duty in front of Ayer home. At the corner of Moody and Pawtucket streets, a state policeman was stationed before and during the parade. Six other state police officers were stationed in the heart of Lowell at important street intersections. The state policemen were on duty at the picnic grounds this afternoon.

Mrs. Tarr, matron of Ayer home, had charge of grouping and seating the children from that institution, 14 automobiles being required. Numerous citizens donated their machines for the day. Secretary-Manager George F. Wells of the chamber of commerce was among the first to arrive and secure his passenger allotment.

GAS AT 17c SOLD BY CHELSEA MAYOR

CHELSEA, July 22.—After several announcements to the effect that gasoline, supplied under municipal auspices, would be available in Chelsea at 16 cents a gallon early this week, Mayor Lawrence P. Quigley announced that arrangements were completed to open stations this morning where gasoline can be obtained at 17 cents a gallon. The mayor said he had 800 gallons to sell at this price, with prospects of getting at least 8000 more.

In a statement issued last night, Mayor Quigley said that though he had encountered many setbacks during the last five days, he intended to continue selling gasoline at reduced cost until a substantial reduction in price is authorized by the large producing companies.

Sales Manager Henley of the Lincoln Oil company said that the 8000 gallons obtained by Mayor Quigley was little more than enough for day's supply for any one of the big stations of the city.

ders, catching up loose ends of the program tangled and keeping everything moving briskly. The work was performed without a hitch, the only break in the schedule being the absence of Lieut. Gov. Fuller, who disappointed many Rotarians by his non-appearance in season to be photographed and featured at the head of the street procession.

The afternoon program included sports of all kinds, games old and new, with distributions of balloons and souvenirs and a real circus. There were clown features also, with entertainments arranged informally for the edification of the orphans. At noon, Page served a basket lunch, and everybody had all the ice cream that was good for them.

Numerous Lowell business men loaned large trucks to carry the children from several institutions. The happy picnicers represented the Ayer home, the French-American orphanage, St. Peter's orphanage, the Children's Home, Faith Home and the Day Nursery. Harry Pitts was chairman of the "Orphans' Day Outing" committee, having supervision over all preliminary details for the 1924 annual.

BOX STRAPPING DRIVE

Lowell Merchants Co-operate in Campaign for Better Shipping Containers

Lowell chamber of commerce officers and members, co-operating as a unit, are backing a new campaign started to encourage the use of box strapping as a means of strengthening and protecting from pilferage packages offered for transportation. The American Railway Association, freight claim division, is sponsoring the campaign, and business men and large shippers of merchandise the country over, are cheerfully giving their cordial support to it. Lowell merchants in round numbers are supporting it according to reports received by the chamber of commerce.

An editorial in "The Bulletin," the local business organization's official publication, calls attention to the new method packaging campaign, as follows:

"There is no question that a package reinforced by box strapping or wiring, is a protection against damage and a security against pilferage. From the shipper's standpoint, it is really an inexpensive insurance and a selling adjunct of unquestionable value."

"It has been demonstrated that many boxes may be made more serviceable and practically pilferage-proof by the addition of metal strapping, without extra expense and frequently at a saving in the cost of lumber, as it is often possible through its use to construct the container from lighter stock without sacrificing strength."

Local freight claim prevention committees have been formed by railroads throughout the United States and much has already been accomplished to overcome expense to the carriers and annoyance and loss of sales to the shippers. It is thought by many Lowell chamber business executives that the present campaign will result in converting many shippers to the use of some better form of container reinforcement and this will prove a strong factor in reducing the enormous waste now borne by carriers and shippers alike.

It is announced that the distribution of illustrated circulars relating to the subject will be made to shippers and receivers of Lowell freight shipments, very soon. This work will be handled in Lowell by local freight agents of the Boston & Maine and N.Y., N.H. and N. railroads, working jointly with the Lowell chamber of commerce, which is now co-operating in bringing the matter to the attention of all its members.

DRUNKEN DRIVERS LOSE THEIR LICENSES

(Special to The Sun)
BOSTON, July 22.—One hundred and fifty persons were barred from the highways of Massachusetts last week as a result of operating a motor vehicle after drinking intoxicating liquor.

This number constitutes a new record of licenses revoked or suspended for this cause, and amply bears out the statement made by Frank A. Goodwin, registrar of motor vehicles, that the number of persons convicted of this offense is on the increase and is likely to continue so, and the police bear down more severely on those who indulge in the practice.

Ninety-three persons were convicted in the courts of the state on the same charge, but this number shows a decline of 22 from the figure reached in the preceding week. The remainder, 67 in number, Registrar Goodwin barred from the highway because he learned from other sources that they have been drinking before operating their machines.

Seven persons were committed to jail last week on drunken driver charges, four from the lower courts, and three from the superior court. In the lower courts, 14 appealed from jail sentences, and four others sentenced to jail were given suspension of the sentence. Forty paid fines or obtained suspensions, and seven appealed from fines.

In the superior court, five persons sentenced by the lower courts to serve a term in jail were let off with a fine, while two, appealing from fines, were sent to jail. Eight persons, appealing from fines, succeeded in getting their cases filed.

Besides the 150 licenses taken away on liquor charges, there were the following number of revocations or suspensions for other reasons: operating recklessly or endangering the safety of the public, 40; going away after accidents, without disclosing identity, 8; operating without the consent of owner, 7; deemed to be improper persons, 61; operating in an improper manner, 53; second conviction of speeding, 2; improper equipment, 35; fatal accident investigation, 38.

Ten adults and nine children were killed during the week.

DRACUT AUTO KILLS LAWRENCE BOY

Leo Thibault, 9, of 20 Hampshire street, Lawrence, was struck and killed in Lawrence yesterday by an automobile owned and operated by Edward B. Bailey, Nashua road, Dracut. Bailey, after reporting the accident at Lawrence police headquarters, was formally charged with manslaughter and released under $1000 bonds. In reporting the accident, Bailey said it occurred at West and Haverhill streets while he was about to pass another machine. He did not see the boy until he was directly in front of his car and was not able to avoid striking him although he made every effort to do so.

IRISH LEAGUE DROPS NAME OF KING

DUBLIN, July 4 (by the Associated Press).—At the recent ceremony of the inauguration of the new Free State judiciary, one of the most striking features was the speech in the Irish language delivered by Chief Justice Kennedy, said to be the first official utterance by a judge in that tongue since the time of the Brehon laws many centuries ago.

Under the new judicial regime legal procedure is to be greatly simplified, and the old cumbersome forms of indictment are to be abolished. A significant change is the disappearance of the name of the king. In the past, offenses were described in the indictment as "against the peace of our sovereign lord the king, his crown and dignity," and jurors were sworn to "true deliverance between our sovereign lord the king and the prisoner at the bar." These forms are now abolished. Prosecutions were laid as "the King v. So and So." They are now to be laid in the name of the attorney general.

The new Free State court of appeal in an ultimate tribunal. Appeals to the house of lords have been abolished and appeals to the privy council can only be had by petition to the king for permission likely to be granted only in very exceptional cases. "The courts will," said the chief justice, "stand between the people and any and every encroachment upon their constitutional rights and liberties by whomsoever attempted."

MINISTRY-AT-LARGE SECURITIES INTACT

At a meeting of the Ministry-at-Large yesterday afternoon at the chamber of commerce rooms, the resignation as treasurer of J. Harry Boardman was accepted, and Harvey B. Greene, a former treasurer of the organization, was elected in his place. Mr. Boardman had held the office for ten years, but prior to that Mr. Greene served for six years in that capacity.

In reply to rumors and suggestions that the finances of the society were impaired, Dudley L. Page, president, stated that a thorough examination of the securities held proved them to be entirely intact.

INCREASE IN AMOUNT OF COTTON RECEIVED

Thirteen hundred and one bales of cotton were received by Lowell textile mills via Boston & Maine railroad since July 1. This total exceeds the amount received by local plants over the rails during the first 20 days in June.

Cotton by the bale is higher in price today and this is retarding purchases in large quantities.

For the first time in many months, Hamilton Manufacturing company is operating weave rooms in the department mill on the Middlesex street side of its property.

Recent announcement made by the selling agents for the Tremont & Suffolk mills, to the effect that napped goods have been under-produced, has created quite a stir in the trade and attention in large measure is now directed at the activities of the T. & S., which has new orders for the goods specified.

It has been previously stated that large eastern mills were curtailing output strictly in accordance with orders in hand. It has been reported for in past two or three weeks that retailing, who ordered lines of napped goods for fall were taking them and were not cancelling, as it was feared they might when prices on other lines of cottons eased up. Buyers have already become busy on napped goods and for the next three or four weeks it is expected that orders will come along to an extent that will soon restore mill production to a very considerable degree.

Two of the largest national distributors of napped goods have been in the market the past week.

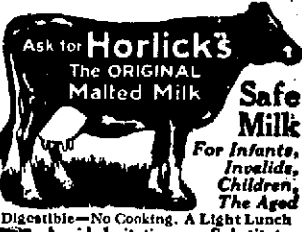

Activity in hosiery manufacturing circles has also been noticeable during the past ten days.

From Los Angeles to Bangor

Swift's Premium Brand, with its reputation for uniform goodness, is of long standing. It has behind it more than thirty years of leadership in scientific curing and smoking.

As early as 1889, Swift & Company's products had received highest awards at international expositions. One of the four medals awarded at the Paris Exposition of 1889 was for Premium smoked meats, and another was for "Silverleaf" Brand Pure Lard.

Premium Hams and Bacon were acknowledged the best then. They are better today. Laboratory control, constant, steady experiments, more careful selection, and painstaking care assure you of better meat with unfailing regularity.

Premium Hams are uniformly mild and delicious whether purchased in Los Angeles, in Bangor, or in Miami.

The pre-eminent position of Swift's Premium Hams and Bacon is indicative of the development of the packing industry—to which Swift & Company has contributed no small part in carrying to the table of the millions "More Meat and Better Meat."

This service is performed at a profit from all sources averaging only a fraction of a cent per pound.

MAINE AS THE BAROMETER

This week the attention of politicians throughout the country will be turned to the state of Maine where important developments are in progress in the contest between Farrington and Brewster for the republican nomination for governor. Farrington won by a few hundred votes; but it seems that the supporters of Brewster, the avowed candidate of the clans, charge unfair methods and as a result the entire vote of the state is to be recounted. There is to be ample opportunity to count Farrington out, and that seems to be the aim, the pretext being that he received the votes of democrats who entered the republican primary to defeat Brewster. But if democrats wished to register as republicans for that purpose, we do not see how their votes can be challenged.

As a result of this conflict the republican leaders realize that neither candidate can be elected and they are, therefore, appealing to both to withdraw and let the nomination go to Governor Baxter. The Maine election will have special importance as the political barometer this year, coming as it does in September following a campaign in which the leading spellbinders of both parties will be heard. Already it is arranged that Charles G. Dawes will be among the republican speakers who will plead the cause of that party and John W. Davis, the democratic standard bearer, will also deliver several addresses in the campaign; so that the Pine Tree State will have one of the liveliest campaigns in its history. Maine, although for a time the stronghold of the clan, is now getting tired of the hooded order and is not disposed to allow its kliegals to get political control of the state as would be the case were Brewster elected governor.

The enthusiastic reception tendered Mr. Davis on his arrival in Maine to spend a brief vacation, indicates that when the real work of the campaign opens, the republicans will have on hand one of the most formidable contests of recent years. Mr. Davis, although seeking rest and seclusion with his friend Charles Dana Gibson, will doubtless take advantage of the opportunity to get in close touch with the inside workings of Maine politics, so as to be prepared to deal in an incisive way with the whole political situation. With Mr. Davis and other able speakers pleading the cause of democracy, it would not be surprising if Maine would change her luck and swing into the democratic column.

JACKSON VS. FULLER

In a public address at Wareham Saturday afternoon, State Treasurer J. M. Jackson, candidate for the republican nomination for governor, delivered an exhorting attack upon Lieut. Gov. Fuller, charging him with neglect of duty, indifference to the public good and general inefficiency in public office as judged by lack of results. He further charged the lieutenant governor with making a specialty of attacks upon public men; and in this connection he pointed out that Lieut. Gov. Fuller made charges of corruption against public officials and begged the voters to send him to the state house with a lantern to search for all Baba and the Forty Thieves. "Mr. Fuller," said Mr. Jackson, "was sent to the state house to smoke out the crooks on Beacon Hill, but thus far he has been unable to discover the elusive All Baba and his cohorts, nor has he ever disclosed any irregularities in the acts of individuals connected with our national or state affairs. This is a serious arraignment and it remains to be seen how it will be met by the lieutenant governor. In general, Mr. Jackson's charge is that Mr. Fuller's record in public office is one of neglect of public duty and disregard of his obligations to the citizens of Massachusetts.

It is expected, of course, that the lieutenant governor will defend himself against these charges and refute them, if such is possible. It is expected, also, that Mr. Fuller, judging from his aggressive tactics in other cases, will give the public a little insight into the political record of Mr. Jackson, who launches his candidacy as if he had a spotless record and impregnable against attack.

Mr. Jackson endeavors to pull the props from beneath the growing custom of political succession under which the lieutenant governor lays claim to promotion to the higher office after serving one or two terms. He shows that since 1780, when the Massachusetts constitution was adopted, there have been but 16 lieutenant governors who have become governors of the state. This is rather misleading as the custom in advancing the lieutenant governor by way of promotion started some 25 years ago, but it is merely a republican custom for which there is no constitutional warrant.

VETERANS' COMPENSATION

Too much emphasis cannot be given to the necessity of war veterans entitled to consideration under the recently passed adjusted compensation act, filing their forms without delay. Veterans are dying daily in large numbers. In every case where a veteran dies before filing his application for consideration under the adjusted compensation law, it means a direct actual cash loss to his family. The American Legion and the Red Cross both are distributing blanks for veterans and they may be had for the asking.

The postoffice authorities, the police, the Legion, and the Red Cross stand ready to give every assistance in filling out the blanks without delay. Members of every veteran's family, for their own protection as well as the protection of the veteran's interest, should insist upon it and keep after the veteran until he has filed.

TEXTILE INDUSTRIES

One of the textile journals is authority for the statement that the woolen and worsted mills of this country bought heavily of supplies of wool when the prices recently reached a low level. At the present time, the price of wool shows an upward tendency and western growers are demanding higher prices for the better grades than they did two weeks ago. The foreign wool market is also much firmer and hence the general conclusion among men familiar with the manufacture of woollens is, that the woolen mills will soon show greater activity with the prospect of a busy season after the summer holidays. Usually, the woolen industry pulls through a dull period more successful-

A Thought
Ah, how happy would many lives be if individuals troubled themselves as little about other people's affairs as about their own.—Lichtenberg.

Made Bad Break
"I guess I made a bad break," admitted the press agent of Dimple Simplo, the movie queen. "How so?" inquired the handy interrogator, or playwren. "I told her dogmatic stuff was good publicity and insisted that she make a pie." "What's wrong with that?" "Now, I gotta eat the pie."

Was Too Attractive
All the store people had been told to exercise salesmanship all the time. Things were dull at the necktie counter. A well-dressed gentleman drifted along in an aimless sort of way and paused at one end of it. He may have been waiting for somebody. The pretty salesgirl approached him somewhat shyly. "Can I," she asked, "interest you in a necktie?" "Not when I look at you."

Showing Palm Beach
Proprietors of small town picture palaces have to feel the public pulse with care. It was upon a raw and windy day that one such called a business friend into consultation. "Tom," said he, "I'm considering showing Palm Beach in the films." "Well?" "What do you think? Would my patrons go to see it in this weather for 20 cents, or would it make them mad?"

The Clever Friend
A shy young hostess, in an effort to be social, led aside the comparative stranger whose name, somehow, eluded her. "Look," she said, "I've paired you off with that lady in the corner. Will you take her in to dinner? My husband, naughty man, says she's a bit of an old tramp, but she's got lots of money, and one of his clever friends has just married her for it. So we must be nice to her." "I am sorry, madam," said the guest, "but I am the clever friend in question."

Went Too Far
The great Bumpfeller of phrenological fame was performing in the Seasideville schoolhouse. The first man to have the hills and valleys of his head explored was a burly blacksmith. As he took his place a friend whispered in the phrenologist's ear: "He's very fond of veal." Bumpfeller nodded gratefully and proceeded to translate the blacksmith's bumps into varying degrees of acquisitiveness, inequity, conceit, and so on. "Finally," declared Dr. Bumpfeller, "I come to your diet. If there is one thing of which you are fond it is veal. Why—?" But the sentence was never finished. The blacksmith rose suddenly and, hitting out, struck the phrenologist on the chin. "Rust ye!" he roared. "What's it got to do with you if I steal a calf?"

The Shrine of Yesterday
Light me a candle white and tall; Let it burn with a clear, pale flame. At the shrine of the dear, remembered things That never will be the same.

Light me a candle and let it burn At the shrine of the days gone by. At the shrine of things as they used to be. When you were a child, and I....

I must not live in the yesterday; I must live in today; and yet Once in a while I have to look back At the things that I can't forget.

Here at the shrine of all yesterdays Let the candle be white and tall. And I will kneel for a little while Like a shadow against the wall.

—ABIGAIL CRIBBSON.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

Some of the proposed regulations just promulgated by the state department of public health relative to so-called "Grade A" milk, contain nothing of a very arbitrary nature, so far as the regulation of milk is concerned. Our present milk laws, by improving the quality of supplies, they would also further establish the slogan "Grade A" on a little higher plane, if possible. The first paragraph in "regulation No. 1" contains a sentence that milk distributors and receivers may do well not to overlook. It calls for stringent action in pasteurizing and keeping such that all "Grade A" milk "shall be pasteurized within this commonwealth." Is that an adroit move to keep out that irritating "flood" of "northern milk?"

The "regulation" reads as follows: "Grade A milk shall be pasteurized within this commonwealth, and shall be natural cow's milk not more than 10 hours old when pasteurized by heat for a period of not less than 20 minutes to a temperature of not less than 140 degrees Fahrenheit, nor more than 145 degrees Fahrenheit, and immediately thereafter cooled to a temperature of 50 degrees Fahrenheit or lower, and shall be kept at such temperature until delivered to the consumer."

"Lost in Canada" is the message I recently received on a postcard from Capt. David Parry of the local police department. Recalling the episode in 1919, some time ago which occasioned the captain's visit to Canada, I shouldn't wonder that he'd want to be lost up there. According to his own admission, he is feeling fine and expects to return to Lowell fully re-energized.

A great man once said that the hardest part of living was dying. In a somewhat similar vein, let me say that the hardest thing about a vacation is getting back to work again. Right? I know you'd agree with me. Well, I've had mine, and enjoyed it immensely. Wish you the same.

The pleasure this day brings to 700 orphan children of Lowell through the generosity of the Rotary Club is good to contemplate. Not only is this our day one of the bright spots of the year in their individual lives, but it is to the everlasting credit of Rotary in Lowell that this splendid organization is annually perpetuating a custom of doing good and bringing happiness to other lives less fortunate than most of us. How children love outings and play, and how grown-ups are conscious of almost as much fun as the youngsters who are being fed. The memory serves we typed a paragraph

Quite similar to the present one for this column at this time last year, prompted then by the same feeling as now, that it is a fine thing for the Rotarians to do and worthy of city-wide commendation.

The news of Police Supt. Atkinson's illness, coming out of a clear sky, was received throughout the city with expressions of regret from men and women in all walks of life who knew or had business with the police chief. Transgressors of the law even who had been jailed before the chief on matters of business expressed their regret for he always treated them squarely—in their own language "gave them an even break." And everyone I have heard speak of the chief, wished that the days be few before he returns to his desk in the old police station.

The papers carried a story a few days ago about a raid by police and federal agents in New York that netted several thousands of dollars worth of narcotics. And it is only a short time ago since the Lowell police made several important seizures. All have declared war on the violators of the anti-narcotic laws.

The fate of the drug addict is a fearful one. The truth of this was forcibly impressed upon me a short time ago.

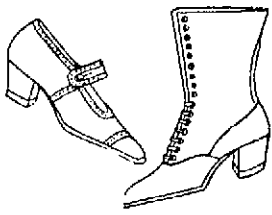

I had occasion to visit a large city quite a distance from Lowell. As the weather was inclement and as I had finished my business I took in a show. It was well after eleven when the final curtain fell and I started back to my hotel.

A canopy had been stretched from the theatre to the curb to protect the theatre-goers from the driving rain. As I traversed the short distance to the waiting taxi I noticed a woman—a girl, rather, who had sought shelter from the fury of the elements. She was tall and haggard and seemed deathly sick. She stood almost directly beneath the drip from the awning and her short, thin skirt was soaking and clung brazenly to her limbs.

Even as I looked she gave a choking gasp and fell to the pavement in a pathetically huddled heap. The bystanders attended her, although most of us knew that she was beyond all human care.

A few minutes later an ambulance doctor hurried up and after a hasty examination explained all with a word—and that word, terrible in its import, was "cocaine!"

Have in Mind the Increase of Insurgent Blocs in Both Houses

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Determined to increase the strength of the insurgent blocs in the house and senate, those in charge of Senator La Follette's independent campaign for president plan to let others know, well in advance of election day, which congressional candidates they favor. Senators, and representatives who have been in accord with La Follette policies and are up for reelection will be given endorsement, while in some states and districts endorsement will be given "liberal" candidates in the field against members of the senate and house whom the followers of the Wisconsin senator classify as "reactionary."

NATIONAL CONVENTION OF THE GRAND ARMY

Grizzled old veterans, heroes of the war of other days, will march the streets of Boston, probably for the last time, during the week of Aug. 10-16, at which time will be held the 55th national convention of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Lowell veterans of the Civil war—every single one that is not incapacitated—will be there. It is hoped to have at least 50 members of Posts 42, 120 and 185 in the monster street parade that is to be participated in by Civil war veterans from nearly every state and territory of the American Union. Several Lowell war veterans have already been named on important official encampment committees.

Post 185 has been especially honored in this respect, with Comrade Albert L. Gilman named for duties in connection with the entertainment of veterans at the convention. Other appointments to aid in the program will be announced later in the week. In order that the veterans' visit to the Hub may be one long to be remembered, Mayor James M. Curley, as chairman of the executive committee, has outlined a program that will open wide the gates of hospitality of the city.

It is estimated that the convention will draw at least between 40,000 and 50,000 visitors, including delegates from every state and the various national possessions. More than 10,000 veterans, in their uniforms of blue, will take part in the parade which comes on Tuesday, Aug. 12.

A monster review—stand has been erected on Lafayette mall, Boston common, where Gen. Gaylord M. Salzgaber, commander-in-chief of the G.A.R., and the national G.A.R. officers, Governor Channing Cox, Mayor Curley and other dignitaries will review the parade.

An elaborate program has been mapped out by the executive committee, which includes band concerts, a pageant at Braves' field, fireworks display, harbor trips and auto rides to historical spots, including Lexington, Concord and Acton.

Monday, Aug. 11, has been set aside for tree planting. Mayor Curley will plant one tree for each G.A.R. department in attendance at the convention. The planting ceremonies will be held on Boston common.

Housing accommodations are completed, which will take care of every delegate to the convention.

The Lady Mary Villiers lies Under this stone: With weeping eyes The parents that first gave her breath, And their friends laid her in the earth. If any of them, reader, were Known unto thee, shed a tear: Or if thyself possess a gem, As dear to you as this to them, Though a stranger to this place, Bury in theirs thine own hard case; For thou perhaps at thy return Mayst find thy darling in an urn.

SQUEAK

No matter how new or how old, so to speak, you can always find fault with your bus. Someone in the family will locate a squeak and it's cause for considerable fuss.

"The window is loose and it's rattling loud," poor mother will boldly declare. So dad with a new little worry's endowed since he knows that the squeaking is there.

Then Sister Sue shouts, "Oh, the springs are all rust and they scrape when we bounce up and down." And therefore the spring parts are forcibly cussed by the tribe as they're motoring 'round.

The hood rattles loud as you drive o'er a bump and the steering wheel wheezes a bit. A fender announces its weak with a thump, and there's many a bolt doesn't fit.

But still, after all, your old auto seems grand, though it sounds like a bundle of tin. When you buy a machine, you should well understand, that a whole lot of squeaks are thrown in.

VIOLATION OF THE PLUMBING RULES

A routine meeting of the board of health was held yesterday afternoon and was presided over by Dr. Pierre

Brunelle in the absence of Chairman Dr. Francis R. Mahony.

A case concerning violation of the plumbing rules by a North Chelmsford contractor, which was heard at a recent meeting, was reopened yesterday when William McElholm and John E. Regan, representing the Master Plumbers association, introduced new evidence. No action was taken except a vote to reopen the case and it will be heard at a future meeting of the board.

The isolation hospital report showed 54 patients confined there at the present time. Weekly payrolls of the department were approved.

Owing to complaint concerning a brook off Mansur street, which is creating a nuisance in the vicinity, the board voted to request the public service board to extend the Mansur street sewer to drain the brook.

LARGE HATS RESTORED TO FAVOR FOR SUMMER WEAR

SOME OF THE LARGE HATS THAT ARE PROVING POPULAR THIS SEASON.

BY MARIAN HALE
(NBA Service Writer)

The large hat has staged a real comeback this summer. Just make a tour of the smartest roof gardens and restaurants and you will find the debutante and dowager alike basking under wide brimmed models.

Nine out of ten are of black milan or leghorn with a bow of velvet or sat in ribbon that weighs it down on one side and gives the wearer a chance to peek out coyly from the other.

But there are novelties such as the ones photographed. There is the combination of straw and fur that Paris likes very much this summer that is most unusual.

Or the upturned brim that is bound to make the wearer look at least five years younger than she really is.

For festive occasions such as the wedding or garden party, there is the leghorn picture hat lined with pink tulle under the brim and ruffled and banded with it on the outer. And on one side fastened beneath a bunch of old-fashioned roses are streamers of blue velvet ribbon. This hat is warranted to bring on the proposals.

$200,000 for Digging Up Junk That Once Was German Navy

BY MILTON BRONNER
(NBA Service Correspondent)

LONDON, July 22.—To spend $200,000 on the off-chance of getting great piles of scrap iron and scrap steel from the bottom of the sea looks like risking a lot of money. But Cox and Banks, marine engineers of London, are taking the gamble on what promises to be the greatest sea-diving and ship-salvaging feat in the world's history.

British ingenuity will seek to overcome the results of German determination. "Pencettine" business will seek to make use of war-time preparation.

For the job the London firm has set for itself is nothing less than raising from the murky waters of Scapa Flow the once proud and mighty German battle fleet. When fished up, all it will be good for will be to tow it to shore, break it up and sell it as a scrap.

And if the market is good, there is lots of money in scrap. Five years ago, in compliance with the terms of the armistice, the German battle fleet steamed into the great harbor in the Orkney Islands to the north of Scotland. British and American battle fleets were on hand to receive them. The allied vessels fired a last-minute act of desperation, but everything passed off peacefully.

Then on June 21, 1919, the world was startled by the news that the Germans the night before had scuttled almost their entire fleet. Seven or eight battleships, five battle cruisers, eight light cruisers and 50 destroyers were sunk. They have been lying there rusting ever since.

Cox and Banks have a preliminary contract to raise 24 torpedo boat destroyers and two of the biggest battle cruisers, the Hindenburg and the Seydlitz, each of 27,000 tons. For this purpose they bought from the British government the great German floating dock which was used for submarine repairs by the Germans.

First Job for Deep-Sea Divers

This dock was cut in two, thus forming two pontoons, each over 200 feet in length and each fitted with workshops, electric power generating plants, an air compressor and gear used in ship-salvaging work. Powerful cranes have also been installed. When all is ready the two pontoons will be placed on either side of the vessel to be raised.

The first job is that of the deepsea divers. They will go down into the hull of the vessel to be raised and systematically stop up every hole in her from hatchways to the scabbles which the Germans opened in order to sink the ship. Metal patches, concrete and wooden blocks will be used in this work of patching holes.

Cuts will then be made in the various decks of the vessel and powerful electric pumps will be lowered. These are capable of ejecting 5000 tons of water an hour. The object is, of course, to empty the vessel of water so that she will start rising by her own buoyancy. Once this starts, the vessel will be taken at each tide to shallower water until it is found possible to keep her on an even keel and float her normally.

This in the operation that will be performed on the Hindenburg which settled upright, her funnels and topmasts even now extending well above the level of the sea.

The Seydlitz, which is lying on her side, presents a different problem. She will not be pumped out until by combined action of tides and pontoons she is dragged to shallower water.

Giant Sea-weed Hinders Work

The first effort at raising a vessel proved a failure. The destroyer V-70 had been partially raised and her masts and funnels removed. Heaving operations were then begun and the vessel lifted bodily seven feet when a chain snapped. Others followed. Only two wire straps held tight. The destroyer was allowed to sink back. In future, chains will be abandoned and wire straps used.

In working on the various ships the 12 divers now employed have encountered a monstrous sea-weed hitherto unknown in these waters. Its stalks are as thick as a man's wrist, have leaves 15 inches wide and trail 15 feet in length. To get at the pontoons it was necessary for the divers to slash their way through this veritable submarine jungle.

If the firm is successful with its first job, it may tackle the rest of the German fleet. It is estimated that it will take at least eight years to clear the harbor of all sunken ships.

DRACUT GRANGE

WILL HOLD FAIR

Dracut grange members, in regular meeting assembled last evening, voted in favor of conducting a fair in grange hall on September 8th. That will be "Neighbors' Night," with members of Tyngsboro grange on the entertainment calling lists.

Harry N. Fox, who leases a grassy field for baseball games, told his grange brethren that he did not object to the boys playing there if they would keep the field fences and walls in good condition and pay for any destruction of property.

Lecturer Ida F. Whiteley will be chairman of the fall fair committee.

END BENNETT-RAMON NOVARRO IN NEW ROLES

BY JACK JUNGMEYER

HOLLAND, July 22.—Red Niblo was in melancholy mood when he practiced "The Red Lily," an early release by the Goldwyn-Metro-Mayer combine.

It is a powerful but depressing drama of love trailed through the mire by force of circumstance, by insensate fate which takes no account of human striving toward the ideal. Only the strongest of their souls are permitted the victory toward of ceaseless striving. And audiences are likely to consider that meager reward unsatisfactory, I apprehend.

"The happy ending in 'The Red Lily' is really no happy; cannot be because of what has preceded it. But if you concede that motion pictures should reflect the ironies of the human battle-and-march, that they should peer sympathetically but direct into gloomy abysses, then you will appreciate this Niblo opus.

It is wholly a Niblo product because he wrote as well as directed it.

The picture traces the fortunes of a mayor's son and a cobbler's daughter from idyllic romance in Brittany to sordid chapters in Paris, where on the eve of proposed marriage the lives are separated by fateful intervention. In the purlieu of Paris the white lily of Brittany, driven to desperation by need, becomes scarlet. And the boy, despairing of finding his sweetheart, drifts to a life of crime.

End Bennett as "Marie" is in startling contrast to previous roles. Her usual placid, tender demeanor is completely overthrown by the pathetic graving of harassment among the Parisian demi-monde. She gives an arresting performance, a biting character study.

Ramon Novarro, too, presents a new camera personality as the hopeless, sullen victim of a father's meddling and misunderstanding. Consistently he hunts for his lost girl, "the maid with the face of an angel." When he finds her, the face is haggard—and he strikes her down in the frenzy of his vanished illusion.

Novarro shows a dignity and power ripening with each new performance. He displays it notably in this picture.

Among the surges stark of drama in "The Red Lily," the horrid reunion of the girl, still ailing, and the boy, who has become a criminal, is a scene of the place, he pushes her into a room with "The Toad," most repulsive of the lot, and closes the door upon the two. That horror begins his regeneration, and, after both have been near death, they take up the sorry fragments of their young dream in marriage.

Niblo has notably sustained a single mood throughout the picture. Only the slightest intrusion of humor leaves the tragedy. Without being able precisely to spot its cause, I feel that there is something not quite inevitable about the misery of the lovers. "Jean's" treatment of "Marie" after their reunion is so outrageous, if natural, that he will claim little sympathy from the average audience. That leaves an ink, a smart, which the attempted happy ending doesn't alleviate. The picture, that is to say, ends with disappointment.

Pitches in Poor Form

NEW YORK, July 22.—New York sits less securely on its American throne today as a result of its first game with Detroit in a series of four games which promises to go far toward shaping the destiny of both teams for the 1924 season. The Tigers' victory cut the Yankee lead to half a game. Washington kept within one game of the Cobblers by defeating Chicago, which retreated to the painful distance of six games behind the stars.

While Kolp mesmerized Phila. St. Louis touched up Himech and Rommel sufficiently to get a 4 to 2 victory. The Browns' victory, coupled with the White Sox's loss, brought the two teams into a tie for fourth place. Boston resignedly accepted its ninth straight defeat as Cleveland nosed out a 2 to 1 victory in the last inning. The Giants continued prodigal of their once seemingly foolproof lead in the National League and reduced their margin over the Cubs to six games by dropping another to Cincinnati while Chicago was downing Boston. McCraw's men surrendered by a score of 8 to 7 only after eleven grueling innings.

With Dazzy Vance holding Pittsburgh in the palm of his hand, Brooklyn returned a 6 to 2 winner in the first game of a double-header, but the Pirates turned the tables in the second to the tune of 4 to 2. Jimmy Johnston, Robin shortstop, was carried from the field in the opener with an injured knee.

Jess Haines' showing against Philadelphia would indicate that he pitched himself out in his no-hit, no-run effort last Thursday. The Phillies got him for 16 bingles, which they converted into a 7 to 4 victory over St. Louis.

FRIDAY NIGHT
Bellevues vs. Americans.

The Centralville East Ends lost a heart-breaking game to the Pawtucket A.A. in a bitterly-fought City Twilight league game on the South common last evening. The score was 6 to 4, a home run in the sixth inning by George Scully enabling the P.A.A. boys to come from behind and score four runs to win the encounter after the East Ends had been leading by a two-run margin.

The crash came in the first half of the sixth when the Pawtuckets annexed a foursome by heavy hitting, aided by a few misuses on the part of the players from over the bridge. For a while, the game was a heavy-hitting affair. The bingles were not as numerous as on many previous occasions, but they were of large proportions. Steiner Golden and G. Scully connecting for dramatic slams, McDonald and Jimmy Scully for triples, and Dow for a double.

Chief Tardiff did rubber duty for the Pawtuckets, and Phil Payton for the Centralvilles. Both were in rare form, Payton being especially effective in the early stages of the fray, while Tardiff settled down after the second to hold the East Ends scoreless the remainder of the journey.

All the East Ends runs were registered in the first two frames, three runners crossing the pan in the initial stanza and a fourth tripping over the rubber in the second. From then on until the fourth, it looked like a Centralville victory, but the plucky Pawtuckets boys, realizing that a win would again put them on the heels of the Bellevues in the pennant chase, got their batting wagons into action and scored once in the fourth, again in the fifth and then topped it all off with four markers in the sixth.

All league managers are asked to be present at Crescent rink at 7.15 o'clock this evening as a special league meeting is scheduled to take place. Several changes have to be made as teams are due to come up for discussion.

Marie's Americans will play the Lawrence K. of C. in the down-river city this evening. Manager John Peters promises to attend the league meeting as soon as the game is over.

All Marie's Americans players are asked to report at Marie's restaurant, Central street, at 5 o'clock this evening.

Tomorrow night's City Twilight game will bring together Richard Belmonts and the Butlers. Although holding down last place in the league standing, the Belmonts are far from a beaten negro. They have been playing in hard luck all season and hope to wipe out the jinx against Billy Rogers' Buts this evening. Frank Rivet, well-known promoter of clean athletics, will donate three valuable prizes to the holders of lucky tickets at the game.

HAGEN AFTER NEW LAURELS

Having Won Three National Titles Walter Plans Another New Attack

To Make a Try for Canadian Championship at Montreal in August

BY JOE WILLIAMS

Walter Hagen is going after the Canadian championship next month at the Mount Bruno Country club, Montreal. This is the only open championship of consequence the American home bird hasn't won.

The American, the British and the French open titles have fallen to him. Now he plans an onslaught on the Canadian, and, if he is anywhere near his usual form, he will be hard to beat.

To be known in history as a player who held all the open titles of importance in the world is a rather enviable distinction, and our Mr. Hagen is not at all adverse to accepting enviable distinctions.

Incidentally, Hagen will not be the only American star to compete in the Montreal classic. Joe Kirkwood and Leo Diegel have entered and it is expected Cyril Walker, the new champion, and his exhibition match partner, Bob Cruikshank, will be among the starters.

The record score for the Canadian open was made by J. Douglas Edgar, an Englishman, who was connected at the time with an Atlantic club. Edgar turned in a total of 275 for 72 holes in the 1919 event, a mere matter of 10 better than even 48.

Edgar's feat broke the record by 17 strokes. Only two other players in the history of the game have done better in a championship tourney, and in each instance the prize involved was comparatively unimportant. George Duncan won the Switzerland championship in 1914 with a score of 254, and Jimmy Hagan won the Ohio state title in 1922 with 274.

Edgar was killed several years ago in an automobile accident. In many respects he was the most interesting golfer this writer ever met. He was a firm believer in the power of mind over matter. Psychology was his craze and he gave it free rein in his discussions and instructions. At the time of his death he was working on a book dealing with simplified golf which he earnestly believed would revolutionize the game.

CASEY STENGEL CUTS COMEDY

Veteran Outfielder Says Fans Refuse, However, To Take Him Seriously

Funny Stuff Profitable on Stage But Loss on Diamond, He Finds

NEW YORK, July 22.—Casey Stengel, veteran outfielder of the Boston Braves, has come to the conclusion that it does not pay to attempt to mix comedy with baseball. Because he has done that very thing in the major leagues for many years the fans now refuse to take him seriously no matter how hard he tries or how sensationally he performs, and he is one of the most consistent and reliable players in the game.

"Comedy pays well on the stage," said Casey recently, "but it doesn't get you anything in baseball. It's nice to make the fans laugh once in a while but the players who do so find he can't do anything else with them, no matter how hard he's trying. They don't take him seriously and the consequence is they never give him as much credit as he deserves—or thinks he does."

Fans are indulgent of the baseball comedian's pranks only to a limited extent, according to Stengel. In proof of this statement the Braves' veteran outfielder related a personal experience of his Philadelphia days. "The Phillies were playing the Giants, and the relative standing of the two teams was about the same as it is at present.

In the particular game to which Stengel referred the Giants were leading by an overwhelming margin and Casey decided he would inject a little humor into the uninteresting contest. When in the eighth inning a New York batter drove a liner straight at Stengel in right field Casey pretended not to see the ball and did not make a move to catch it until it was almost upon him. Just as it reached him he stuck out his glove and snared it.

"I thought that would make the boys laugh," Casey commented, "but all I heard was a bird in the right field stand yelling, 'You big ham! Cut out that comedy and play ball! That's what the matter with this ball club. It's so full of comedians there ain't any room in it for ball players.'"

WONDERFUL BALL GAME

Unbridled Youth Too Fast and Too Strong for Their Older Brethren

Single Men of The Sun Defeat Married Men by a Score of 18 to 15

A game known as baseball was "played at" by teams representing the married and the single men of The Sun at Alumni field last evening. The score at the conclusion of the seventh inning was 18 to 15. In whose favor? Pardon us. The non-supporters were victorious, mainly because they were able to stand the game better than their ill-fated brethren of the matrimony brigade, who were forced to take cognizance of the famous adage that "Youth must be served."

Of course, the married men did not display their best wares last night. The only individual who carried along his best "weas" was Henry Mulcahy, who knickered about the plate field in debonaire fashion and felt the ball once or twice for the sake of Auld Lang Syne. Joe Kelly tossed 'em over the plate for the losers, and as a general rule he tossed 'em away over. It was learned after the game that Joe took things easy. He was stalling for bets. Chai you bent that?

The game proved a bachelor party all the way through, the single men getting the jump in the early stages, and the "double" men trying vainly for a comeback to the game. The comeback didn't come last night, however. It came today, not only in the back but in arms, legs and other delectable members of the ordinary man's physical makeup. The proper quotation on today's stock market, therefore might well be: "Ask dad, he knows!"

MYSTERIES LOSE TO THE PAWTUCKET BLUES

The Mysteries of Centralville went down to defeat last night on the North common before the terrific onslaughts of the Pawtucket Blues of the Junior League, by the score of 8 to 4.

At no time were the Blues in danger. Starting the game with a sweep, they rang up five runs in the first stage. After that there was no need of worry, although the Mysteries made a gallant effort to break their jinx. The only exciting feature of the game was the lone slam for a round trip, made by Conner. ## LIFE SAVING

By MARGARET PLUNKETT

In cases of rescue, there is a great risk of overturning a boat when the rescuer does not understand the proper way to lift a body out of the water.

Also, it is a common occurrence that swimmers who have brought drowning persons to a dock or a float are sometimes so exhausted that they are unable to lift the other readily out of the water.

Here are a few simple directions adaptable to such instances:

Place one of the rescued person's hands on top of the other on the edge of the float or boat.

In climbing out of the water, keep one of your hands on the two hands of the other person.

Then face the person in the water, cross your own hands and take hold of the other's.

Lift up and down until momentum is gained, and then lift the body above the water, uncrossing your hands as you do so.

This movement will bring the person up, with his back to you. In this way you will not have to lift him completely out of the water, but only high enough to sit down.

RECRUITING FOR THE REGULAR ARMY

Although the enlistment of raw recruits for the regular army has been suspended temporarily, because the army rosters have reached full strength, recruiting stations are allowed to enlist men who have had previous service in the regular army and have been honorably discharged. Sergt. Kimball, of Central st. recruiting headquarters, 62 Central st., explained the situation as follows:—
"Military appropriations for the current fiscal year make funds available for an average enlisted strength of only 113,750 men, and in order not to exceed the average figure, the actual strength on any given date should not be much greater than 120,000. While the reports for June 30 have not yet all been received, an analysis of those at hand indicates that the enlisted strength of the regular army today is about 123,753 men. It is necessary therefore to suspend all recruiting except of men needed to replace future losses as they occur."

"For the next few months, it is believed, any such losses can be made good by the re-enlistment of men whose service has expired, or of other men with prior service. While the recruiting service will be ready to resume operations on a full scale at any time, Major General Robert C. Davis, adjutant general of the army in charge of recruiting, issued instructions Saturday to discontinue all enlistments of men without prior service."

Sergt. Kimball explained that enlistments can be made of former members of the national guard or present members by transfer. This is made possible because the national guard today is federalized. Present members of the guard can receive discharges promptly if they desire to enter the regular army.
This morning the local recruiting station began enlisting men for legion guards for service in the Orient. This is the first time that enlistments in this branch of the regular army have been called for in more than a year. Sergt. Kimball obtained his "No. 1" enlistment shortly before 10 o'clock this morning, soon after receiving notification from army headquarters in Boston.

The accepted applicant, who is now on his way to join the new U. S. legion troop destined for police duty in China ports where Americans need additional protection owing to increasing disorders and "warlike" territories just outside the seaports, was Charles Joseph Plunkett, former saddler with Troop F, 13th Cavalry, U. S. A., stationed at Fort B. A. Russell, in Wyoming.

Plunkett served for three years and was honorably discharged. He now desires to enlist in the legion guards going to China, and was readily accepted by Sergt. Kimball this morning, being a sturdy specimen of patriotic youth, 5 feet 11 inches tall, weighing 140 pounds, and with a service record the very best and "character" excellent," according to his former colonel, J. J. Boniface, of the 13th Troopers.

Rigid regulations cover the new campaign for legion guards. Men selected must be "picked." Character, mentality and physique count the most in final selections. Recruits who secure enlistments are provided with the very best of clothing, the best of food and first class quarters. Many former members of the army consider a position in a legion guard in the Orient, the finest of all in the foreign service. At this overseas post, American dollars are worth just twice as much as the money in circulation in the military station districts. Many soldiers can live so cheaply that they save considerable money from their wages on long stays.

Former Trooper Plunkett will be assigned to the legion at Peking. He will leave Frisco for China about Aug. 22.

DE VALERA IS REFUSED

Supreme Court Justice Burr of New York Denies Requested Order

NEW YORK, July 21.—Supreme Court Justice Burr today denied a motion of Eamonn De Valera and Stephen O'Mara, as trustees of $2,500,000 received here from the sale of Irish republican bonds, for an order enjoining the Irish Free State from proceeding with the trial of a suit for that amount before the high court of justice in Ireland.

"This court has no power to restrain the high court of justice in Ireland from proceeding with the trial of the action there pending," said Justice Burr. "It has no power and, being mindful of the comity required ought not to attempt to trample or restrain the Irish Free State, whose duly accredited minister plenipotentiary is recognized and received by our government from taking such measures and prosecuting such actions in its own court as it may deem necessary for the possession of its own interests and the welfare of its own people."

The trial of the suit in Ireland is scheduled to start tomorrow.

SARGENT SCHOOL HEAD PASSES AWAY

PETERBORO, N. H., July 21.—Dr. Dudley A. Sargent of Cambridge, Mass., a national authority on physical education and the head of a school that bears his name, died here today. He was widely known as the inventor of modern gymnasium apparatus, and of list of speed, strength and endurance for men and women athletes. Dr. Sargent was 75 years old.

Dr. Sargent died at the Sargent camp here, of which he was president. He had come there several days ago to recuperate from an illness of long standing. The body will be taken to Cambridge, Mass., for funeral services, and burial will be at Belfast, Maine, Dr. Sargent's birthplace. Dr. Sargent for 40 years was director of gymnasium activities at Harvard University and was in connection with this office that he devoted most of the modern gymnasium apparatus used in this country. ## Jack Daw's Adventures. Chapter 2

"I'll go down," replied Jack, as he climbed upon the railing. "All right," smiled the captain, "but watch your step as it is very slippery on icebergs." The sailors gathered around the spot where the rope ladder was fastened and watched Jack slowly climb down the side of the ship.

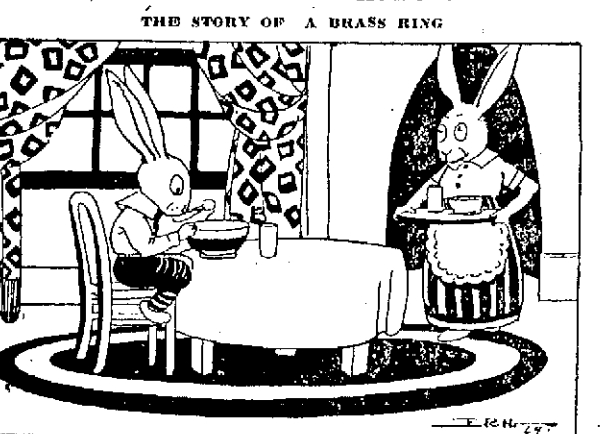

Flip stood up with his front paws on the railing and barked loudly. It seemed that he knew that his little master was entering into a new and thrilling adventure. The captain of the sailing vessel patted the dog on the head and whispered, "Your master will be all right, old fellow."

Jack, in the meantime, kept climbing down and he finally reached the bottom step of the rope ladder. Then he looked down and saw that he was about four feet from the ground of the iceberg. The sailors realized this, too, and one of them shouted, "Just let yourself drop. It won't hurt you." (Continued.)

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

Olive Roberts Barton

HE ATE HIS LUNCH IN A HURRY.

The merry-go-round in Happy Go Lucky Park was a jolly one. Nick made the music go, and a whistle went "toot-toot," and Mister Zip, the fairy-man, turned a handle that started the merry-go-round. Nancy took tickets sometimes, and sometimes she held the babies so they couldn't fall off and get hurt.

And, although the animals on the merry-go-round looked as fierce as could be, they were only made of wood and couldn't hurt you any more than a fly.

Besides, there was the brass ring. If you got the brass ring when you were whizzing past, instead of a black one, that gave you a free ride.

Of course, everybody tried as hard as ever they could to get the brass ring, you may be sure.

One day Cutie Cottontail got a job weeding a garden and, although they say that it wasn't all weeds he pulled up, still he earned enough money to go to Happy Go Lucky Park and spend it and the afternoon.

He ate his lunch in a hurry and put on his best striped shirt and away he hopped.

He bought a pack of chewing gum (really, I never knew before what it was that made bunnies wiggle their noses so), and went into the fun house and saw himself in all the fat and lean and lumpy mirrors, and got lost in the Puzzle Patch on purpose to see how quickly he could find his way out, and did a whole lot of things like that.

But all the time he was making his way to the merry-go-round, where Nancy and Nick were working. He liked the Twins and they liked him and when he was a passenger Nick always let it go around a couple of times longer so he would get an extra long ride.

"I'm gonna stay till I get the brass ring," said Cutie, as he drew near and heard the ting-a-lings-a-lings, dum-de-dum-de-dum of the music. "And when I get it I'm gonna keep it to show to my friends," he called Nick. "Hop on. You're just in time."

The little rabbit got on the merry-go-round and climbed up on a fierce-looking dragon with a curly tail.

"Hooryay!" he shouted as the whistle went "toot-toot" and Mister Zip, the fairy-man, turned the merry-go-round on its circular journey.

What's that? What did you say? It was Cutie, of course, for the fierce dragon was only made of wood, and even if he hadn't been, he'd have been

Cordage Worker at Plymouth

Then Turns His Pistol Upon Himself

PLYMOUTH, July 22.—Mrs. Rosario Pinto, 38, was shot to death at 7.10 this morning, at the Brannock farm, two miles west of North Plymouth, by Joseph Gullio, 45, a boarder, who is employed at the Plymouth Cordage Co. Jealousy is ascribed as the motive from a letter written in Portuguese which was found. Gullio then turned the pistol, a German gun, upon himself. He is on the danger list at the Jordan hospital with a bullet wound in his left temple. After shooting himself, Gullio, in a rage, attempted to cut the woman's head off with an axe. Remains of the 12-year-old daughter, Adelaide, disarmed him. If he recovers, Gullio will be charged with first degree murder.

WOBBURN LAD CAPTAIN OF BROWN TRACK

PROVIDENCE, July 22.—Alfred Elson Jr., of Woburn, Mass., will captain the Brown University track team next season, Dr. Fred W. Marvel, graduate manager of athletics, announced today. Elson holds the national Y.M.C.A. record for the quarter mile.

TENNIS TOURNAMENTS ON PLAYGROUNDS

A series of tennis tournaments, culminating in the city championship, will be held on the playground courts of this city during the months of August and September. The first tournament will be held August 7 and will be open to any boy under 16 years of age. The sets will be played at the Shedd park and Highlands tennis courts, with the final at the Highlands courts. All entries must be received on or before July 31, at the park department office. The playground tournament will be held the week of August 18. This will be in three classes, for boys and girls under 12, boys and girls under 16 and boys and girls under 17. The city championship match play will be held over Labor day with preliminary games the week previous at both the Shedd park and Highlands playgrounds. This will be for men only and will consist of singles and doubles. The championship match for women and girls will be held the first week of September and will consist of both singles and doubles.

WARNS OF PROPERTY SALES FOR TAXES

City Treasurer Fred H. Bourke announced today that all real estate on which the 1923 taxes, sewer or sidewalk assessments are unpaid August 2 will be offered for sale by him at public auction to recover the amount of taxes or assessments. Advertisements covering all property to be offered for sale will be inserted in the local newspapers August 4. The sale is authorized under the state laws, amended last year, which provide that the city treasurer may offer for sale all property on which taxes and assessments are unpaid one year from the issuance of the tax bill. Prior to last year, the law was that the city must wait two years to sell such property.

JUDGE RETURNS TO HIS JUDICIAL SEAT

Judge Thomas J. Enright returned to the district court this morning after a short vacation. When Court Officer Peter Cawley announced the opening of the regular morning session, the judge discovered that he had neglected to robe himself in his official gown. Mindful of the dignity of his office, he left the bench for a minute or two to restore the necessary vestment, and then smilingly resumed his duties.

PUTNAM AND LEWIS TAKE OUT PAPERS

Frank H. Putnam of 12 Marlborough street, senator from the eighth district for the past five years and prior to that time representative for three years took out papers today at the office of the election commission. Fred Oliver Lewis, 179 Princeton street, at the present time representative from the 15th district, also took out papers today seeking nomination as representative.

Await Sale of Warren Street Firehouse

remodel it and make it into a store and office building, with stores on the street floor and offices on the upper floors. Several fraternal organizations are anxiously awaiting an opportunity to bid on the property as the officers of the organizations feel that Warren street is an ideal location for club headquarters since the roadway has been paved and the sidewalks erected there. The ownership of this property was a matter of argument for some time after the Protective company was removed from there to the Central fire station, the Middlesex company and the city both claiming to be the proprietors. A decision in the land court recently favored the city's claim, and unless an appeal is entered by the Middlesex company within the time specified, the city will have the right to dispose of the firehouse as it sees fit. While no definite information concerning the disposition of the property could be learned at city hall, it is believed it will be offered at auction or bids called for its disposal just as soon as the time limit for the admission of an appeal to the land court decision has expired.

"DAD'S WEEK" AT CAMP NABNASSETT

The "Dad's week" at Camp Nabnassett, the Y.M.C.A. camp, came to a close Sunday afternoon after dinner, and the 50 dads who were in attendance departed feeling that they had not only spent a profitable and enjoyable week-end, but that they had also come to know their sons better. From their arrival in camp until the close Sunday, there was a continued program arranged by the boys for their benefit. The first event was a ball game between two of the boys' teams, captained by the dad of two of the boys. Camper Harry Jordan's dad captained and pitched for one side and Camper Jackson's dad pitched for the other side, which lost by the score of 6 to 5. Following the game there was a swim and water sports, and the late evening was spent by the boys in a camp banquet was served by Chef Girard, following which there was an address by William S. Roberts, general secretary of the Marblehead Y.M.C.A. After supper the fathers won the rifle shooting contest from the sons. Saturday morning, two events were staged. The first was a war game in which Capt. Herbert Barker's team won from Ken Keith's. The second was the ball game, Dads vs. Sons. The Sons won. On Monday evening the junior ball team won from the Brookside team. This is the third straight game in the series won by the team.

AWNING FIRE
An awning fire outside one of the windows of the office of D. J. Kuntz, at the third floor of the Wyman's Exchange building this morning spread to the window casing and curtains before it was extinguished by chemicals. The Protective company answered a telephone alarm to fire headquarters. Insurance was carried by F. C. Church.

FIRE DEPT. HAS ITS TROUBLES AFTER BLAZE

A slight fire in an automobile operated by Robert Toliaferro of Lowell while he was driving through Reading yesterday caused an expense of about $300 to the town for repairs to some of its fire apparatus. The fire in the automobile was caused by a lighted cigarette setting fire to the seat cushion. On returning from the blaze, combination A broke down and was being towed back to the fire house by hook and ladder 2. The towing chain parted and the combination wagon collided with one of the ladders. The front end of the combination also was damaged.

WANTS CHILDREN TO SEE "ASK DADDY" FILM

Supt. John Kernan of the park department, has received a letter from the Massachusetts Safety council, pressing the hope that every child in Lowell of school age may see the film, "Ask Daddy," which is being shown this week as a feature of the open air program. The scenario was written by a director of the Massachusetts Safety council, and it is considered the best safety picture yet filmed. The children in the cast are Massachusetts boys and girls, and many of the scenes were "shot" about Boston. It is to be shown to 50,000 Boston children during the playground season. This picture was shown last night on the South common and will be shown tonight on the North common, tomorrow night at the Lakeview avenue playground, and Thursday evening at the Shedd park playground.

ATTACK SAO PAULO AFTER BOMBARDING

BUENOS AIRES, July 22. (By the Associated Press).—Advices by La Nacion from Santos state that considerable anxiety is felt owing to reports that the federal troops, after several days' bombardment, have initiated a definite attack on Sao Paulo which is held by the insurgents. The first news arriving in regard to the new operation is somewhat confusing, although it appears that the government forces have obtained advantages and occupied position in Sao Paulo.

LIQUOR RAID AT NEW YORK HOTEL

NEW YORK, July 22.—Federal prohibition agents early today raided the roof garden of the Belvedere hotel, arrested the captain of waiters and a waiter charged with selling liquor and left a summons with the manager of the roof, W. Heath. The agents, dressed in evening clothes, declared they purchased a pint of whiskey for $6. No excitement was evidenced by the diners and dancers.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE IS DISMISSED

Charles H. St. Lawrence, operator of the Eastern Massachusetts electric car which struck and killed 33-year-old Andrew J. Atwell in North Chelmsford on June 3, was exonerated of a manslaughter charge in an inquest report by Judge Pickman filed in district court this morning. The aged man was almost instantly killed when he was struck by the car operated by St. Lawrence on the above date. The inquest finds that death was not caused by or contributed to by the criminal negligence of the defendant.

OFF FOR CAMP AT LONG-SOUGHT-FOR POND

"Pack up your awnings" was the wagon slogan heard at Y.W.C.A. headquarters today as the junior girls "piled" into the machines which transported them to the Y. W. camp at Long-Sought-For pond, Westford. About 20 girls left Lowell this afternoon for the camp where a two weeks' program of sports and educational activities will be in progress. The camp site comprises 1200 feet of shore land, 100 feet of sandy beach and 37 acres of wooded land. The camp accommodates 50 guests in two main houses, tents and screened in porches. Swimming, rowing, baseball, campfires, truck rides, hikes, picnics, athletic meets, good food and rest are offered the campers. The girls who left today are from the ages of 7 to 18 years inclusive. Upon their return the working girls and the house girls of the Y. W. will encamp for two weeks. The camp is under the direction of Miss Mildred Martin, physical director at the Y. W. She is assisted by Miss Dorothy Fleming, Red Cross life saving instructor and swimming director. Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Kider are acting caretaker and matron, respectively. Mrs. Kider being night matron during the winter months at the Y.W.C.A. Association building, locally.

The girls at camp care for their sleeping quarters individually and each has special camp duties to perform daily. A regular camp schedule is adhered to throughout the summer thus insuring regularity in program and the best results in health.

Mrs. John A. Stevens, camp chairman, was in charge of transporting the girls to the camp and she was assisted by Miss Francis Graves and others who graciously offered their machines. The camp will remain open until the Monday following Labor day at which time a special closing program of sports will be given showing the progress made by the girls while encamped.

PROBABLY THE SAME OLD DRUNK

The "In-again, out-again, in-again" phrase may be applicable to William Clements of Westford, who was arrested for drunkenness by Patrolman Clyde Aldrich yesterday noon, bailed himself out in the afternoon, and was re-arrested by the same officer this morning. Clements was first arrested in Middlesex street about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He had $100 in his possession, and with this he bailed himself out early last evening. This morning, in Middlesex street again, Clements was found in an inebriated condition, and was forthwith locked up for the second time within 24 hours. He will be arraigned in district court tomorrow.

COURT PROTECTS ODOR NOT ORIGIN OF LE FROMAGE

LOCHES, France, July 22.—Camembert cheese, be it ever so humble, does not have to come from Camembert in order to have the right to call itself by that name, a court decided here after hearing arguments of counsel for an association of cheese makers from Normandy. The cheese-men claim that a local dairy association had infringed their copyright by selling as Camembert cheese a product that was not made in Camembert, district of Normandy. The court held that Camembert has come to be a designation of a certain kind of cheese.

ATTORNEY-GENERALS IN CONFERENCE

BOSTON, July 22.—Atty. Gen. Jay Benton today said that no final statement could be given out at this time regarding the conference with Atty. Gen. Herbert L. Carpenter of Rhode Island which began with a 3-hour session here last night. These conferences have to do with the efforts of the Rhode Island officials to extend into Massachusetts their search for persons and facts connected with the alleged plot by which a gas bomb was exploded in the Rhode Island senate on June 19.

"We went into details pretty thoroughly in the course of our three-hour discussions," said Mr. Benton, but he added that he could not say that any conclusion were reached. "We plan to take the matter up further," he said. The incident of Saturday night in which two assistant attorneys general of Rhode Island with Providence police officers and others were arrested as suspicious persons notwithstanding their protestations of their identity to Massachusetts constabulary officers is still under discussion, with the Rhode Island officials seeking official explanation, and Massachusetts officers asserting it was all a mistake.

CHILDREN SAVED WHEN HOME BURNS

STANFORD, Conn., July 22.—Mrs. Barbara Villano, 30, died in the Stamford hospital of burns sustained during a fire in which she tried to rescue her three children from burning in their home early today. She had attempted to light a gas stove when leaking gas exploded, throwing her over, seriously burning her face and hands and setting the house on fire. She groped her way upstairs where her children were sleeping. The firemen arrived in time to rescue the children who were unharmed.

THIRD PARTY TICKET IN GRANITE STATE

DOVER, N. H., July 22.—Prominent Dover men of both parties are behind a movement to support La Follette and Wheeler. It is proposed to place in the field a progressive ticket embracing candidates for presidential electors, United States senator, congressmen and governor. Today a letter was sent to Secretary of State Enos K. Sawyer by Frank J. Grimes, a prime mover in the progressive movement, requesting information as to the necessary procedure for having the progressive placed upon the official ballot. For governor it is regarded as highly probable that ex-Senator John C. Hutchins, who was defeated in the primary two years ago by Fred H. Brown, will head the state progressive ticket. Arthur H. Morrison, independent republican of this city, has declared that he will be a candidate for presidential elector. Other well-known republicans and democrats in Keene and Berlin whose names are at present withheld are considering taking a like step, it is stated. A congressman in the 1st district, Herbert Pillsbury of Manchester is mentioned as a probable candidate. Progressive headquarters will be opened in this city and arrangements are being made to have Senator Wheeler visit New Hampshire.

MINOR CASES IN THE DISTRICT COURT

Charles A. Soden was fined $100 in district court this morning, for operating an automobile while he was alleged to be under the influence of liquor. He appealed the decision and was ordered to recognize in $300 for his appearance in superior court. Luther Soden withdrew his appeal, and Judge Enright continued the case for sentence until tomorrow. Daniel A. Murphy appeared on a capias for non-payment of a fine imposed some time ago for drunkenness. A suspended sentence was consequently revoked and he was ordered to stand committed on a sentence to the state farm. A similar revocation took place in the case of Agnes Richard, charged with drunkenness. Samuel A. Gout, breaking and entering and larceny on July 15, was continued until next Thursday. John McMullen, larceny, failed to put in an appearance and was defaulted. A suspended sentence of four months in the house of correction was imposed on Michael Remente on a non-support charge. Edward Zayas, also charged with non-support, was given a suspended sentence of four months. Louis Kurns was taken away without making himself known after failing to appear, was defaulted for failure to appear.

REMOVING RAILS AND TROLLEY WIRES

The final step towards doing away with rail connections between this city and Pelham, N. H., was taken yesterday when work was started on tearing up the rails and removing the trolley wires of the Southern New Hampshire Street Railway company's right of way from the foot of Moody street hill, Lowell, to Pelham. Service on this line was discontinued last August, the company officials asserting the line did not pay expenses. Since that time residents of the Mammoth Road section of Dracut and Pelham have appealed to both the Southern New Hampshire and Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway companies to provide some sort of service, but their appeal went unheeded.

FOUND KITTENS UNDER DOORSTEP

Agent Richardson of the Lowell Humane society was made aware of a peculiar incident today when the clerk in a local fish market called upon his office to remove 11 kittens which he had found secreted in a basket under a doorstep in the rear of his shop upon opening up. The clerk informed the Humane society agent that the little tabbies had caused him no end of anxiety for several moments before he discovered their place of concealment. Apparently hungry, the kittens were given to imitations when found, but were soon relieved of their sufferings when an employee of the humane agency arrived on the scene.

DAVIS' SPEECH TO BE SHORT

Democratic Presidential Candidate Will Require But 40 Minutes for Delivery
To Cover Field Generally With Emphasis on Need of Honest Government
DARK HARBOR, ISLEBORO, Mass., July 22.—A precedent in brevity is the goal of John W. Davis in the preparation of his address accepting the democratic presidential nomination. His idea now is to cover the field generally with emphasis on the more important issues of the day, such as honesty in government, foreign affairs, taxes and tariff and farm relief. The occasion requires the discussion of so many different subjects that Mr. Davis cannot make his speech as brief as he would like. While he has not determined finally upon even the frame work, his present intention is to confine the whole discussion to approximately four thousand words, which would require about 40 minutes to deliver. The nomination address to be made by Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, permanent chairman of the New York democratic convention, probably will be equally as brief so that the ceremonies at Clarksburg, W. Va., on the night of August 11 should be much shorter than have been similar affairs, at least in recent years. The nominee is studying the several party platforms and the keynote addresses delivered at the Cleveland and New York conventions. His first step was to discuss the whole subject generally with party leaders in the series of conferences held at New York during the week after his nomination. Many suggestions were advanced in these conferences and the nominee now has opportunity to mull over these in his mind in the peace and quiet of Seven Hundred Acre Island. Thus far, however, he has not even put in memoranda form any of the suggestions that have come to him. This stage of the preparation will come later in the week as he studies out his subjects while roaming the woods and fields on the Gibson estate, or occupying the studio of his host. After three days of rest and recreation here, Mr. Davis has a sparkle of the eye and a healthy glow of face which were lacking when he left New York. He declared tonight that invigorating Maine air, together with the dropping of political cares, has done him a world of good and he expects to return to New York in pink of condition for the hard months of campaigning ahead. Since the arrival of the nominee here the weather has been ideal. Having devoted two days to complete rest, Mr. Davis had his first recreation yesterday, a round of golf on the Tarrantine course, which winds along a cove and through woods where once the Tarrantine Indians pitched their wigwags or stalked game. Frank L. Polk, his former law partner and friend and advisor, was his adversary and they have arranged for daily matches. The nominee declined an informal invitation to dine with Maine fishermen last evening in Penobscot Bay. He said the job itself appealed to him, but that the hour of starting, 4 a. m., did not. If time permits, Mr. Davis probably will make a cruise around the many islands that dot the bay. For the present, Mr. Davis has arranged to divide his days so that he will have the mornings for work on his acceptance address and his mail with his afternoon free for golf or other forms of recreation. It may be that later he will find it necessary to devote more time to his speech as well as to his correspondence, which is beginning to pile up on him with each incoming steamer.

OUTING DAY FOR LOWELL ORPHAN CHILDREN

Three Meet Death in Liner's State Rooms; Lowell Man Purser of Rammed Vessel

Passengers Numbering 900 Leave Craft on Rafts and in Life-Boats

NEWPORT, R. I., July 22.—(By the Associated Press) Three passengers, two men and one woman, are known to have been killed when the oil tanker Swift Arrow crashed into the Eastern Steamship liner Boston off Point Judith late last night. Their bodies were seen in the wreckage of two staterooms when the Boston was towed into Newport harbor and beached there today.

Identification of the bodies was impossible here. They were caught behind ship's plates that had been crushed in and it was said the plates would have to be cut with gas torches before the bodies could be extricated.

Several passengers are known to have been injured. Of those the most seriously hurt so far as known is C. Copeland, of Brookline, Mass. He was rushed to this port on board the coast guard cutter Acushnet and taken to a hospital, where it was said that his leg and shoulder were broken and he had sustained internal injuries.

Passengers and crew were taken off in lifeboats and transferred to rescuing steamers and naval vessels which hurried to the scene after receiving the Boston's radio calls for help. A few were lured by the steamer Commonwealth, which proceeded to Fall River with other survivors. A large number went aboard the Fall River liner Priscilla, due in New York this afternoon.

Among those on the Priscilla is the purser of the Boston, who took with him the only available passenger list.

The Swift Arrow, apparently undamaged, stood by the Boston until daylight. Then she proceeded to an anchorage outside Newport, whence she sent ashore nine boats containing passengers from the Boston.

The Swift Arrow was bound from Tuxpam, Mexico, for Fall River with oil.

The collision came in a dense fog. The tanker struck the Boston amidships on the port side, cutting a gash 30 feet long and 20 feet high, three feet above the water line. A number of staterooms were crushed in and it was there that the casualties occurred. Half an hour afterward the steamer appeared to be sinking, with her engine room filled with water and her power and lights gone.

Survivor's Story
"The work of lowering the boats was begun then," said Jas. F. Rooney of 428 Pleasant street, Malden, Mass., one of the passengers who was landed.

GENERAL TOUR IS COOLIDGE PLAN

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Having determined on the outstanding features of the republican campaign organization, National Chairman Butler and his aides today turned to consideration of plans for the conduct of a nationwide campaign.

Mr. Butler announced completion of the campaign organization plans last night after a day of conferences here, and then went to the White House to report to President Coolidge. He declared the republican presidential contest would be carried into every section and would not be limited to any special group of states.

GRAPHIC TALE OF SEA SMASH

Disastrous Collision in Fog Between Liner and Freighter is Described

No Semblance of Panic as Passengers Manned the Life-Saving Appliances

NEWPORT, R. I., July 22.—The meeting in the fog off Point Judith early today of the Boston, coastwise liner with hundreds of persons aboard, and the Swift Arrow tanker, whose blow amidships imperiled their lives, was described by Chief Officer A. C. Morton of the Boston, whose home is in the Dorchester district of Boston. The calm of passengers, women and men, in the exciting moments of the early morning; the manner in which the water tight compartments functioned to keep the Boston above water, and save lives, and the success with which the transfer of hundreds of passengers to other vessels was accomplished, with loss of life only in the collision itself, were emphasized in his story.

Mr. Green was taken to a hospital here suffering from a shoulder injury and from shock. He had not been informed of his wife's death. He and Mrs. Green occupied stateroom 48, which was at the point of the Boston's bow where the prow of the tanker struck. Mrs. Green was killed instantly.

The three bodies brought on the Boston were brought ashore this afternoon by a navy tug. The coroner first paid a visit to the ship. The Swift Arrow later showed that a large hole had been torn in her bow above the water line. She left her anchorage this afternoon and proceeded for Fall River, arriving there shortly after.

Mrs. James H. Hinchey of New York, who was a passenger on the Plymouth, bound to New Bedford, said those from the Boston who were brought aboard that vessel apparently took matters very calmly and she saw no evidence of hysteria.

Many complained of the loss of their effects, however, and were impatient when the Plymouth, after taking off her quota of the Boston passengers, stood by endeavoring to get a tow line to the damaged vessel. In the fog, however, this was found to be impracticable, and after considerable delay the Plymouth resumed her voyage to Fall River.

Priscilla Ducks
NEW YORK, July 22.—The steamship Priscilla of the Fall River line arrived here this afternoon with 480 passengers of the steamship Boston who had been picked up in lifeboats after the collision off Point Judith.

MASKED WOMAN THROWS ACID AND FLEES

LEBANON JUNCTION, Ky., July 22.—A masked woman, appearing in the yard at sundown, walked to the porch where Mrs. Lillian Woodridge and her mother sat last evening, hurled acid in Mrs. Woodridge's face and fled. Town Marshal Leslie was informed today.

FENWAY COURT PALACE WILLED AS MUSEUM

BOSTON, July 22.—The will of Mrs. Imbelle Stewart Gardner, filed for probate today, leaves her Venetian palace, known as Fenway Court, with its art treasures, to seven trustees to be maintained as a public museum forever.

WOMAN VICTIM IS IDENTIFIED

Husband of Brooklyn Woman Says She Was Killed in Her Berth

Makes Statement on Arrival in Fall River With Other Survivors

FALL RIVER, July 22.—Mrs. Oscar Green, of 1281 Parkway, Brooklyn, N. Y., was killed in her berth on the steamer Boston in the collision with Swift Arrow last night. This was confirmed when her husband arrived here today on one of the rescue steamers.

After admission to the Fall River general hospital the injured man refused to stay. His case was one of nervous shock. He would not give his name. A story was in circulation that his wife was killed by his side as they slept.

Passengers aboard the Boston when interviewed were high in their praise of the discipline aboard the liner, and commented upon the courage of all aboard. A few women cried, and some men were excited but under the influence of the steadfastness of the majority any undue excitement was averted. There was not the semblance of a panic.

A special awaited the liners at the Fall River Line dock. It was to run express to Boston and left here shortly before noon. On board, attempts were made to unite families torn apart by the crash and subsequent transfer of passengers between the Boston and the rescue craft.

While the passengers showed evidence of high nervous strain they had been under, there was no hysteria at the dock. A few of the women apparently were more concerned in securing chairs in parlor cars than in the fate of their baggage.

The spectacle of a baldheaded man, clad in shirt and trousers, with his eyes-glasses set on the tip of his nose singing "Pack Up Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag" as he rowed aimlessly about the Boston did much to lessen the strain, passengers stated here. When another boat rowed by them off, raised a bottle to his lips, and looked around. The occupants of the second boat shouted for stimulants for the use of the women with them, whereupon the good-natured sculler tossed his flask and disappeared in the fog, still a firm believer in "what's the use of worrying."

LOWELL MAN IS PURSER ON LINER RAMMED IN FOG

The purser on the Boston, Eastern Steamship Co. boat rammed off Point Judith early this morning, is Harry G. Lawson, of 1501 Gorham street, Lowell, an employe of the company for the past eight years and for five years purser on the Northland before the palatial Boston was put into service.

A radio message received by his wife by way of Western Union this noon told of his safe arrival in New York. He was picked up by the Priscilla, Fall River liner, which stood by in response to "S.O.S." calls sent out by the Boston.

"My husband is safe in New York, that is all I know," said Mrs. Lawson this noon, "but I am thankful beyond words."

NAVY MAN IS HERO OF WRECK

Boatswain's Mate on Destroyer Freed Brookline Man From His Stateroom

Cut Through Three Partitions on Steamer Boston to Save Man's Life

NEWPORT, R. I., July 22.—Boatswain Mate Hayden of the destroyer Wright proved a man of action in an emergency. When the navy relief arrived at the wreck he answered the cries from one of the staterooms, finding C. L. Copeland, 11 Columbian Crescent, Brookline, Mass. Under Copeland's guidance, Hayden with an axe cut through three partitions and dragged the injured man from his berth and then carried him to his party with the result that Copeland was rushed ashore on the Acushnet attended by navy medical officers, but lies in the hospital in a critical condition with numerous injuries, including internal ones. Doctors will operate on him this afternoon.

The Point Judith coast guard has arrived with nine boats and a life raft, all belonging to the Boston, but they contain no survivors.

Copeland died at the hospital this noon while the doctors were contemplating an operation. They had a vague hope that by an operation they might possibly save his life but he died because he was so terribly mangled, and in such a weakened condition.

RARE OLD STUFF FOUND IN DANIEL WEBSTER INN

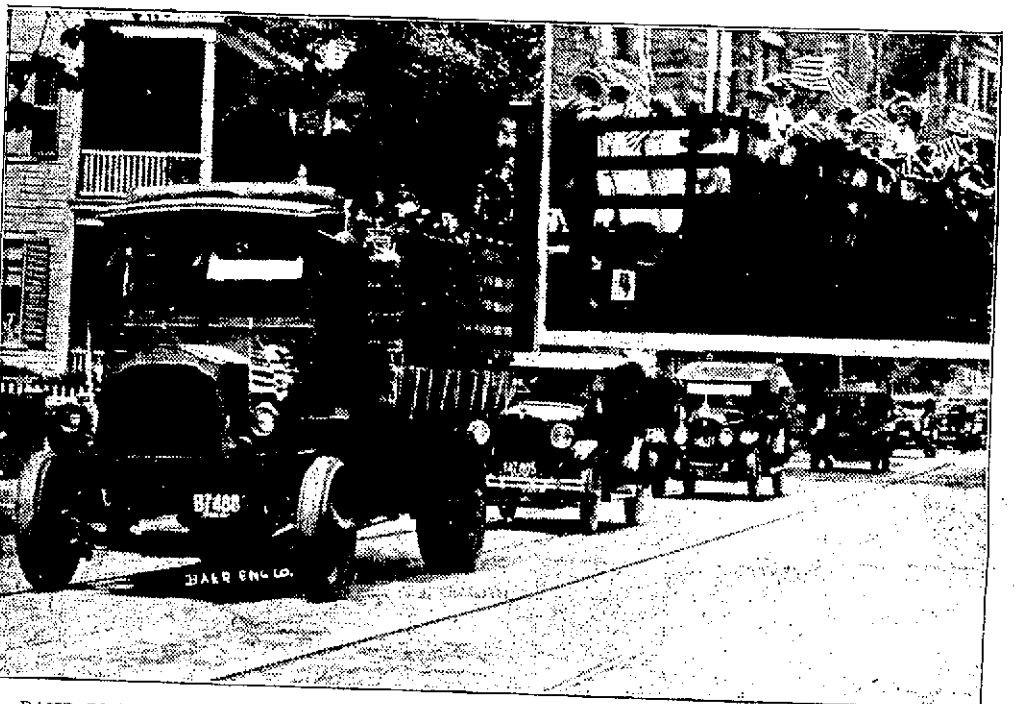

Historic Daniel Webster Inn at Southwick, fragrant in memories, on beautiful Cape Cod, where the famous jurist was wont to spend many happy hours in relaxation in hygienic surroundings, situated just across the street from the Sandwich court house and right next door to the pretty little Unitarian church, resounded strangely to the feet of federal prohibition agents led by Walter H. Sullivan, of Lowell, the other evening, and before the raiding party completed its work, liquor of rare, old vintage went out the door with them.

On the bottles confiscated from the old time hostelry were names to intrigue the most blasé of men, names to conjure with, such as James E. Pepper, John Dewar and Peter Dawson, all honorable men in their time and still going strong in places despite the ever-tightening strands of the federal prohibition net.

The proprietor of the inn, one Giovanni by name, was arraigned before a United States commissioner in New Bedford, and was bound over for the federal district court, there to answer to the charge of illegal possession and sale.

Thus does Daniel Webster Inn add to its fragrant memories.

Children of Local Orphanages Guests of Rotarians at Martin Luther Grounds

BAND LEADS PARADE OF 115 MOTOR CARS FILLED WITH HAPPY CHILDREN ON OUTING. INSERT—A TRUCK-LOAD OF YOUNGSTERS EN ROUTE TO PICNIC GROUNDS

Their dreams came true. This is "Orphan Children's Day," with every blessed member of Lowell Rotary club playing the cheerful, kidding host to a joyous throng of children and their colorful, epic and span appearance that showed the quality of the maternal care that they are given in the institutions where they live—was a striking one from every viewpoint. It provided ample proof, if proof were necessary, that the Rotarians still hold first position in the public life of Lowell when arranging summer outings for youth. Today's effort—the greatest yet recorded for boy and girl orphans of Lowell charitable institutions—sets a new and shining record.

The procession was scheduled to leave the Ayer home, where the Rotarians had their parade formation headquarters, promptly at 10.30, but several distinguished guests, including Lieut. Gov. Alvan T. Fuller, did not arrive on time. The parade was held up until 11.15, when word came that the Lieutenant-Governor had reached Lowell, but was on his way.

AWAIT SALE OF WARREN STREET FIREHOUSE

OLD BARN MAKES SPECTACULAR FIRE

A barn situated in a field between Beacon and Humphrey streets, was destroyed by fire this forenoon. It was under lease to Mrs. Mary Malone, 60 Humphrey street, and was unused except for the storage of a few mason's supplies, and an automobile, which was taken out before it was damaged.

It is believed that boys playing in the barn were responsible for the fire, as youngsters in the neighborhood were known to use it as a playhouse, and no other theory could be advanced.

Although situated several hundred feet from any other building, the barn burned so rapidly and fiercely that a few variant sparks fell on house roofs in the neighborhood, but were quickly extinguished.

When apparatus responded to an alarm from Box 619, the barn was on fire from end to end and was level with the ground within ten minutes. The blaze was spectacular while it lasted and could be seen from all sections of the city.

The loss will not exceed $500.

SEARCH FOR SLOOP

NEW YORK, July 22.—Long Island coast searchmen today began a search for three flushing men who left Block Island on a 25 foot sloop last Wednesday for Flushing Bay and have not been seen since. ## How to Build a Low-Loss Coupler For Regenerative Reception

HOOKUP SHOWING HOW LOW-LOSS COUPLER MAY BE USED.

BY ISRAEL KLEIN

N.E.A. Service Radio Editor
The most efficient coil for radio reception, one that involves as little loss as possible, is a winding of wire on an "air core."

This leaves the coil itself supported by nothing except through its own rigidity as wire.

The reason for this is that air is the most efficient dielectric or non-conductor obtainable. Hard rubber, vulcanite, ebonite or any other form of cylinder for holding the coil steals some of the received radio waves from the coil and thus causes a loss in reception.

Therefore, the aim in constructing a perfect receiver lies in seeking air core tuners, involving as little loss as possible.

Examples
The basket-wound coil, the spider-web and various of these are examples of low-loss coils. They consist of wire wound in and out of pegs formed in a circle, leaving not only an air core in the center, but air pockets or spaces between the windings.

These coils need special care for proper construction, for they must be able to remain firm and retain their original shape throughout operation of the receiver. Where the coils are movable, this difficulty has been overcome. In their stead, therefore, although not so efficient, is the combination primary, secondary and tickler coil—an untuned variocoupler—which must suffer slightly more loss than the complete air-core coil.

Only the primary of this coupler is practically of the air-core variety. Yet it is much more efficient than winding with primary and secondary close upon each other, on a dielectric base or cylinder.

Construction
This coupler is made from an ordinary 180-degree variocoupler. The secondary winding, or rotor, remains as made, and becomes the tickler in this instance.

The stator winding is removed and in its place should be wound 42 turns of 20 S. C. C. wire. Number 18 wire might be even better, the heavier the wire the less the loss. The ends of this winding may be kept in place by a touch of sealing wax at each end.

Around the middle of this winding, place a piece of thin, flexible cardboard, three-fourths of an inch wide and just long enough for the ends to meet around the coil. A strip of adhesive tape over the joined ends would secure the cardboard.

Now cut eight small blocks of hard wood, three-fourths of an inch long by three-eighths high by three sixteenths thick. These may be stuck to the cardboard at equal distances around the coil, with a touch of collodion.

The Primary
On these blocks and around the secondary goes the primary winding, consisting of 10 turns of the same wire used for the secondary. Care should be taken that the winding is tight, so that it will not come loose from the blocks. The ends may be secured to the blocks by pieces of tape, or by sealing wax.

Shunt the secondary of this coupler with a variable condenser of .0005 mfd.

NEW INVENTION FOR RADIO FANS

By N.E.A. Service
NEW YORK, July 21.—Inventors are getting ready to send heretofore unheard of ideas and apparatus for exhibition at the first radio world's fair, which will be held here Sept. 22 to 25. The promise of new inventions is so great that Managers U. J. Hermann and James F. Kerr have been compelled to enlarge the "New Inventions Section" for the exhibition of 100 devices.

Among the noteworthy American discoveries to be shown will be at least three different methods for transmitting photographs by radio. Europe also will be well represented here. The first program of radio motion pictures may come from this fair. Hermann and Kerr hope to be able to broadcast the first radio movie show on the opening night of the exposition.

WAR TANKS TO GET SETS

By N.E.A. Service
WASHINGTON, July 21.—Army tanks will be equipped with radio sending and receiving sets, according to word from the U. S. War Department.

This has been decided on after successful tests made with equipment suitable for rough usage such as tanks undergo.

The only difficulty with these is that the noise while the tanks are in motion is so great that the sets cannot be used. While the tanks are not moving, for proper transmission the sets have to be well shielded from metal bodies.

THEATRE ON AIR
The Mark Strand theatre in New York one of the largest movie theatres in the country, will broadcast its musical and special concert programs every Sunday night from station WMAF at South Dartmouth, Mass. A special telephone line carries the concert from the theatre several hundred miles to the station.

AERIAL CONDENSER
A variable condenser in the antenna circuit reduces the wavelength range of the receiving set. If this is intended, such a connection is best.

AIRMAIL RADIO
The airmail service has been assigned the use of wave lengths between 2000 and 4000 meters. All stations are called on the general 3995-meter wavelength.

BATTERY CONFERENCE
Dry battery manufacturers are planning to meet with government radio men in a conference to adopt certain standards for their products. The best kinds of batteries for radio use are opened.

OPERA BY TELEPHONE
Munich (Bavaria) telephone subscribers may now listen to their famous opera company by paying an additional fee. The music does not interfere with conversation along the same line.

THIS WOMAN'S MARVELLOUS RECOVERY

All Due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Truman, Minn.—"I was badly run-down and had pains in my side and back; sometimes I couldn't hardly move around in bed. My husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after taking it I was so much better I could do all my work again. I do my housework, have a garden, raise chickens, and in harvest time I worked in the field and helped pick corn. Sometimes I do chores and milk. I took the Vegetable Compound before and after my four-month-old baby was born, and it has always helped me wonder. I believe there is no better medicine made for women, and I hope every woman will give it a trial."—Mrs. August R. Wiernerfort, R. No. 2, Box 84, Truman, Minnesota.

Women suffering from troubles so common to their sex should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

RADIO PROVING OF BENEFIT TO BLIND

Innumerable articles have found their way into print about the benefits of radio to the deaf, the sick and to cripples who are bedridden, but scant attention has been paid to the inestimable boon which the new art of communication is proving to the blind.

At first thought, one might say, "Well there are not so many blind people." But unfortunately there are a great many—more than is generally realized. In the state of New York alone on January 1st there were 3000 blind persons. The number of blind in the United States exceeds 100,000. Numerous institutions for the blind in various parts of the country have provided radio receiving sets for their inmates, and in many homes where there is a blind person there is a receiving set. The day should come when every blind person in the United States should have one. The great majority of blind who enjoy radio now or will do so in the future will listen in at their own homes, for approximately four-fifths of the sightless are cared for at home instead of in institutions.

Radio appeals particularly to the blind because it puts them again in direct touch with so many phases of the world's activity from which their affliction has excluded them. Music, sports, lectures, plays and public gatherings are among the many resources of enjoyment and education which the new art brings to them. It is safe to say that they enjoy and appreciate radio more than ordinary people because it is a well-known fact that when a person is deprived of one sense, another becomes more acute. The ear of a sightless person is nearly always much more sensitive than that of the average individual. For this reason it is very important in building a set for a blind person to select the very best type of amplifiers when every blind person in the United States should have one. The great majority of blind who enjoy radio of a blind person is much more sensitive to poor tonal quality than the ear of a normal person.

Without doubt, radio is more of a boon to the blind than to any other class of persons who through infirmity or illness are shut out from the ordinary pursuits and diversions of life.

FANS WILL LISTEN FOR WHU CALLS

(By NEA Service)

CHICAGO, July 21.—Radio hereafter will keep the world in closer touch with its explorers and adventurers than has any other means of communication heretofore.

First actual example of the efficiency of wireless for this purpose has been shown by contact made with the MacMillan arctic expedition by radio amateurs in Canada and the United States.

Now a second expedition has been started on its way, and complete radio equipment has not been overlooked for continued communication with the world.

The expedition is that of William Hale Thompson, former mayor of Chicago, in search of the much-heralded tree-climbing fish of the south seas.

In a 68-foot auxiliary ketch, the "Big Bill," the crew of seven is now sailing down the Mississippi on its first leg of its adventurous journey. For two years this little sailing vessel is expected to roll about the south seas in search of the elusive fish that has aroused the curiosity of scientists.

To Take Movies
To guard against having to return with any stories of the "big one that got away," a motion picture camera and an expert photographer are on board. What fish are caught will be taken to the Field Museum here.

Incidentally, Thompson plans to spread the idea that Chicago should be the greatest seaport in the world, with the Great Lakes navigable for ocean-going liners. This is in the interest of the Great Lakes-to-the-Sea project which has been agitated for years.

For the two years that the "Big Bill" is expected to be in southern waters, the world will learn of its

RADIO SETS FOR CLEVELAND CO'S

CLEVELAND, July 21.—Radio-casting for the prevention of crime and detection of criminals is soon to be employed extensively here, Chief of Police Graul has announced.
Small sets with headphones are to be installed on every squad car and motorcycle. Radio sets will have only one wave length, but will enable motorcycle officers in outlying districts to listen in on bulletins from the central station.

OSCILLATION TROUBLE

If a regenerative receiver has stopped oscillating, check up on connections and on the A and B batteries. If both are all right, excessive voltage on the plate may have paralyzed the tube. To cure this keep the tube lighted for half an hour with the B battery disconnected.

Wanderings through the activity of E. C. Page, its youthful radio operator.

Equipment
His equipment consists of a 100-watt transmitter and two receiving sets. He is able to send his messages on waves ranging from 100 to 600 meters, and to receive on wavelengths of from 50 to 6000 meters. The official call of the vessel is WHU.

This radio equipment has been tested and from Chicago Page has succeeded in talking with Atlantic and Pacific coast amateur radio operators.

Besides trying to get in touch with amateurs in the United States, while the vessel is in the south seas, Page expects to communicate with operators in South America, Europe and Australia. So far no radio is present an opportunity to study the efficiency of the shorter wave-lengths in the climate peculiar to southern waters.

Besides Thompson, Page and Captain Duken on the trip are Mrs. Duken and her 10-year-old son, J. Ellsworth Cross, camera man; A. M. Caron and Ray Martin, engineers and navigators.

METROPOLITAN DEATH RATE INCREASES

ALBANY, N. Y., July 22.—The mortality rate of New York state exclusive of New York city during 1923 was 14.8 per 1000 population as compared with 14.4 in 1922 and with 15.8 the average annual rate for the five years from 1917 to 1921, it is indicated in provisional data of the state department of health.

The increase in 1923 was due in large measure to the greater mortality in cancer, organic heart disease, nephritis, automobile accidents, tuberculosis and acute respiratory diseases, in the opinion of Dr. Matthias Nicol, Jr., state health commissioner.

During 1923, however, decreases were shown in the number of deaths from typhoid fever, diphtheria, diarrhoea under two years of age and infant mortality.

ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT OF O. M. I. CADETS

The annual encampment of the O.M.I. Cadets will officially open on Monday when the main detachment will arrive at Millington, Conn. The O.M.I. Cadets, about 200 in number, are already en route. The cadets will leave the parade grounds on St. James street at 12:30, Monday, and will make the trip to the grove by automobile.

There will be an important meeting of the cadets Wednesday evening at 8:30 to discuss and complete the final plans for the encampment. The lists will then close and no more names will be accepted.

All scouts who make the trip must be supplied with the following: Uniform, two blankets, towel, soap, comb, brush, tooth brush, tooth paste, underwear, stockings, bathing suit, shoes, brush, rain coat, and a baseball outfit (bat, ball, glove, etc.).

Throughout their stay in camp the cadets will be under the care of a competent staff of instructors. During the swimming periods the shores of Silver Lake will be patrolled by cadets and life-guards to protect those in the water. All boys who are unable to swim will receive instructions in that art from Michael Ryne. Two nurses will always be in attendance in case of accident or illness of the boys. A doctor will make daily visits to the camp.

The personnel of the staff is as follows: Rev. Denis A. Sullivan, O.M.I., chaplain; Adjutant Francis E. Gargan, military instructor; John Gill, assistant military instructor; Michael Ryne, swimming instructor; Edward Duffy, chef; Howard Hartley, assistant chef; Dr. Francis A. Kingman, medical attendant; Miss Maria Curran and Miss Catherine O'Connor, nurses; Joseph Boyd, senior, major of engineers.

The following daily program of activities has been arranged: 8:00 a. m., reveille; 8:45, morning prayer; 7:00, breakfast; 7:45, police drill; 8:15, inspection of tents; 9:00, drill; 11:00, swimming; 12:15, dinner; 12:45 to 4:45, recreation; 5:00, dress parade; 5:45, evening prayer; 8:00, supper; 8:30 to 9:45, recreation; 9:45, call to quarters; 10:00, lights out; 10:15, taps.

A detachment of the older cadets will be on duty at the camp night and day to cope with any emergency that may arise.

Visitors will be welcomed every afternoon and evening, after Tuesday.

Hearing Over Leopold-Loeb

of not less than 14 years, are faced by Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, millionaires' sons whose pleas of guilty to kidnapping and killing Robert Frank have swept aside carefully prepared insanity defenses and thrown them on the mercy of Judge John R. Caverly.

Only evidence tending to mitigate their punishment can be submitted without a jury at a judicial proceeding beginning tomorrow. The prosecution, which demands the gallows for the two University students, plans to examine a hundred witnesses.

The defense hopes for a life sentence, expects to submit testimony of alienists regarding the mental responsibility of the youths. More than three weeks are expected to be consumed for the hearing.

The parents of the two boys do not wish them to have their freedom, attorneys for the defense say. Neither, it is said, do they desire that their incarceration be in an asylum. Consequently the corps of alienists will make minute examinations and prepare voluminous reports will make the effort to gain leniency.

"I am confident that both will be sentenced to hang," said State's Attorney Crowe. "It is the only just punishment for their crime. The state is going to prove not only that they are guilty, but that they are absolutely sane and should be hanged."

The wealth of their families was partly responsible for the pleas of guilty, Attorney Darrow of the defense said.

"If these boys were poor," he said, "I am confident I could get a verdict of acquittal. Their wealth is a tremendous handicap. We have thrown ourselves upon the mercy of the court because I firmly believe that nowhere in this broad land could there be gotten together a fair-minded jury to try the case."

Extra guards have been stationed at the cells of the boys and a careful inspection is to be made of all their food to prevent poisoning attempts, Sheriff Hoffman has announced.

YANKEE FLIERS AWAIT OFFICIAL WORD TO START

BROOKLYN, Eng., July 22.—(By the Associated Press) The American aviators will be ready to resume their whirl round the world tomorrow, but will wait in this tiny village by the lumber until Washington says the word "Go." The process of converting their three planes from the overland type into seagoing ships will be completed tomorrow. This will be the last labor of the six days of hard work which the fliers have put in on their machines.

3000 KILLED IN REVOLUTION

No Americans Numbered in Casualties State Department is Informed

Brazilian Federal and Revolutionary Forces Engaged About Sao Paulo

WASHINGTON, July 22.—3000 civilians are reported to have been killed and injured in fighting at Sao Paulo between Brazilian federal and revolutionary forces.

Reports received today by the state department said, however, that no Americans were included among the casualties.

The heaviest fighting of revolt, the message said, took place during the night of July 20, but the result did not materially change the situation.

DE VALERA ADVOCATES IRISH INDEPENDENCE

DUBLIN, July 22.—Eamon De Valera advocated independence for Ireland in his speech at the Mansion House last night. It was his first public appearance since his release from prison. A wildly cheering audience enthusiastically acclaimed him as president of the Irish republic. Three hours before the appointed hour for the speech crowds of many parts of the country formed a line outside the building, which was unable to hold more than a small fraction of those who desired to enter.

Mr. De Valera said that the republic no longer formed the rear guard but were the main body of the nation. The present time, he continued, was a time for acts, not words. What was most needed was unity in defense of the country. The republicans, said Mr. De Valera, would do their utmost to create friendly relations with their neighbors, whether they were English, French, American, Scottish or Welsh.

RECOVER BODIES OF TWO LOST YOUTHS

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 22.—The bodies of two boys in the party of seven children who lost their lives in the sinking of a canoe last Thursday afternoon, were recovered just before noon today, off Fanebor's dock. This was about a mile from where they were last seen alive.

GOV. COX ASKED TO PROBE ARRESTS

PROVIDENCE, July 22.—Governor Channing H. Cox of Massachusetts has been asked by Governor Flynn to require a complete investigation of the arrest of Rhode Island officials in Massachusetts Saturday, in order to establish the ultimate report for this most unfortunate and embarrassing incident.

Gov. Flynn states in his letter that "the mission upon which the Rhode Island officials were engaged is of such grave importance to this state and the interference with their efforts by the Massachusetts officers seems to have been so entirely unwarranted" that it is felt necessary to call the incident to the attention of Governor Cox.

MEDICAL COUNCIL ON CARE OF VETS

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Advice on the treatment and care of disabled former service men was sought by Director Hines and other Veterans' bureau officials today from more than a score of the nation's most prominent medical authorities.

The assembled authorities are members of the council on medical and hospital affairs appointed by Director Hines as a volunteer advisory board to assure the veterans of the best treatment possible to obtain.

Three Meet Death on Liner

here. "Women and children went first in accordance with the law of the sea, then the men passengers and afterwards the crew. Captain A. W. Call and a radio operator were the only persons remaining aboard. The ship's officers did everything possible for us. There was some difficulty in lowering the boats, but as the sea was calm there was no danger."

Similar stories were told by H. B. Darling of Franklin, Mass., and V. M. Smith of 52 Westland avenue, Boston. A narrow escape was related by A. W. Raynor of 127 Lake avenue, Newton Centre, Mass.

Survivors Make Port
Between 500 and 900 passengers of the Eastern Steamship liner Boston, rammed by the tanker Swift Arrow off Point Judith last night, were steaming to New York. The Plymouth and the Commonwealth brought several survivors to Fall River.

The Boston, partly filled with water, was beached at Newport, R. I. The Swift Arrow anchored off Beaver Tail, R. I., and sent out nine boats filled with passengers for Newport.

Former Aboard Priscilla
The bodies aboard the steamer cannot be identified. The pursuer of the Boston, carrying the passenger list, is on board the Priscilla, due in New York this afternoon.

The Fall River line steamer Priscilla and Providence reported by wireless that they would dock here about 3:30 p.m., daylight time, and that "some" of the Boston's passengers were aboard.

Tanker at Anchor
NEWPORT, R. I., July 22.—At 11 o'clock the tanker Swift Arrow anchored off Beaver Tail and started nine boats filled with Boston's passengers for Newport.

NEW YORK, July 22 (By the Associated Press).—The steamer Boston, bound from Boston to New York, which was rammed amidship in a heavy fog late last night off Point Judith, sent out a wireless message at 5:15 this morning stating that several lifeboats, crowded with passengers, were missing.

One of the prize ships of the Eastern Steamship company, was reported taking in water rapidly through a gaping hole in her side. She was being towed toward Newport by the steamer Commonwealth of the Fall River line, but it was also reported that it might be necessary to tow her ashore very low in the water and might sink almost without warning.

Four Thought Killed
Four passengers are thought to have been killed when the Boston was rammed by the tanker Swift Arrow, two and a half miles southeast of Point Judith. The number of passengers aboard was unknown, but estimates ran as high as 1000, this being the peak of the vacation season for the coastwise steamers. The ship has accommodations for 1000 passengers.

At the time the collision occurred the ship was crowded with passengers, many of whom were sleeping. The ship was unable to signal her exact whereabouts with her whistle, because of the lack of steam.

Immediate Aid Given
The passengers were immediately ordered to the boats, and put out into the dark, as it was not known how soon the vessel might go down. The Boston's sister ship, the New York, was nearby, and the Commonwealth and the Priscilla, of the Fall River line, sped to the rescue.

Because of the fog, however, the ships feared to approach too closely, thinking that they might run down some of the lifeboats. The Boston was unable to signal her exact whereabouts with her whistle, because of the lack of steam.

Two Left Aboard
The rescuing ships brought their searchlights into play, but due to the fog the radius of visibility was extremely short, and it was only possible to pick up the survivors whose lifeboats happened to drift into the glare. Many were taken aboard by the Swift Arrow, but later were transferred to the Priscilla to be taken to New York.

Reports received by the Independent Wireless Telegraph company at Easthampton, N. Y., stated that the captain and wireless operator were the only ones remaining aboard the sinking ship. Two tugs arrived from Newport and were placed on either side of the Boston, as she was being towed by the Commonwealth in an effort to keep her afloat until she should make Newport.

Relatives Hysterical
News of the collision spread rapidly and the offices of the Eastern Steamship company in Fulton street were besieged early this morning with hundreds of persons seeking information concerning relatives and friends aboard the Boston. Many women in the crowd were hysterical.

Officials of the line at 9 a. m. said they still were without definite word as to how many survivors were on board the Priscilla. The only information they had, they said, was that the Priscilla was "loaded to the rails," with survivors.

Officials said they believed the Priscilla would dock here soon after noon, unless the fog should further delay her progress.

Amidships at Wharf
NEWPORT, R. I., July 22.—A radio call to have ambulances at the Fall River line wharf here was received this morning. Shortly afterwards the whistle of an approaching steamer was heard through the fog. The identity of the vessel, which might be held up in the bay for several hours, was not known, nor was the origin of the message given.

Many on Priscilla
NEWPORT, R. I., July 22 (By the Associated Press).—Struggling back after collision in fog with the oil tanker Swift Arrow, the coastwise passenger liner Boston was being towed here today, while some of her 500 to 900 passengers were lost in the dark in Rhode Island. It was reported that four, who were killed in the crash, most of the passengers were aboard the Fall River liner Priscilla bound for New York.

To Land at New York
BOSTON, July 22.—The Eastern Steamship Co. offices here received word by radio today that the steamer Priscilla will take in New York the passengers that were aboard the disabled steamer Boston. This was the first definite word of the intention to land the passengers at New York. Eastern Steamship company officials still explained that they were unable to say just how many passengers the Boston carried on last night's trip, estimates ranging from 800 to close to 1000. They confirm reports from Captain Call that there was "casualties" to some of the Boston's passengers, but believe these did not involve loss of life.

Hammed By Tanker
NEWPORT, R. I., July 22.—The Boston, only two months from her builders, on the Eastern Steamship company's Boston-New York run, was off Point Judith shortly after midnight, poking through the fog on her way to New York, when the Swift Arrow sank her nose in the Boston's side. The whaleboats were lowered overboard and passengers placed aboard while only Captain A. W. Call and the radio officer remained on board.

Successing vessels, among them the Priscilla, the Commonwealth and the New York, which is sister to the Boston, soon steamed up in answer to the calls, bringing their searchlights to play on the scene. Within an hour or two it was reported that virtually all had been rounded up, most of them on the Priscilla, and that the loss of life was limited to four, who were killed when the two ships collided.

Ship Steadily Filling
Later came the word that several of the lifeboats were adrift in the waters of Block Island sound. At the same time the Boston sent word ashore that with a hole in the hull on the side, she had been steadily filling, and that the water had broken into the boiler room.

The Boston was being towed to the Narragansett by the Commonwealth on one side, and the Bobolink, naval tug, on the other. The Boston's crew for the most part were on the Commonwealth.

Tanker Gave Aid
Of the several hundred persons on the Priscilla, a large number had been trans-shipped twice during the exciting night. Pushing off from the crippled liner, they were picked up by the Swift Arrow, damaged, but not seriously. When the Priscilla came up, however, board like the Boston, New York, it was decided to transfer the Boston's passengers again. The crash cut off the Boston's steam for signaling by whistle.

With the waters littered with lifeboats, steamers trained their searchlights to get a broad sweep across the seas, that they might not run down again the hapless ones that they sought to help. There was a lot of rescue work accomplished effectively under those difficulties. When a call came from the radio of the Boston for doctors, three responded from ships in the vicinity.

Was Coastwise Queen
Built on the lines of an Atlantic liner, the Boston, with her sister ship, the New York, was probably the newest and finest of the big passenger ships in the American coastal service. She cost $1,750,000. With passenger accommodations for 1000 persons, the Boston also carried a crew of 180 men and women.

She was driven by two great turbines, burning oil as fuel, which could drive her 400 feet of length, with draft of 17 1/2 feet and displacement of 5500 tons, at a speed of 20 knots an hour.

Lieutenant Northington, who was aboard the navy tug which removed Copeland, said he had been informed that four men and one woman were killed in the collision and a number of persons injured.

Of those hurt, he said, Copeland's case was the most serious. The tug, he added, had passed a number of lifeboats filled with passengers and members of the crew of the Boston, but as the sea was smooth and they were not in danger the tug made no effort to pick them up, proceeding direct to the Boston.

UXBRIDGE WORSTED OFFICIAL ABOARD
WOONSOCKET, R. I., July 22.—Harry Nichols, an official of the Uxbridge Worsted company at Uxbridge, Mass., connected with the New York office of the company, together with Mrs. Nichols, were passengers on the Boston last night, according to advices from Uxbridge. Mr. Nichols was returning to New York after a tour of inspection of the Uxbridge plant.

LAWRENCE NURSES
AMONG PASSENGERS
LAWRENCE, July 22.—Misses Irene Sipsy and Mary Corhill of this city, returning to St. John's hospital, Brooklyn, N. Y., where they are training to become nurses, were on the Boston which was wrecked last night. They had come for a vacation.

FITCHBURG MEN ON BOARD THE BOSTON
FITCHBURG, July 22.—Frederick H. Sprague, Fitchburg garment manufacturer, and John P. O'Connor, superintendent of one of the Sprague plants here, were believed to be aboard the Boston, rammed off Point Judith. No word has been received from the Fitchburg men up to 10:30 o'clock today.

696 SURVIVORS ARE ABOARD FOUR SHIPS
NEW YORK, July 22.—The Eastern Steamship company announced that the Boston carried 696 passengers. These have been transferred to the following ships of the Fall River line: Providence, carrying 45 to New York; Priscilla, carrying 150 to New York; Plymouth, carrying 130 to Fall River, Mass.; Commonwealth, carrying 40 to Newport.

Decide to Beach
NEWPORT, R. I., July 22.—Intention to beach the Boston was indicated in a request by radio from Capt. Baez from the Commonwealth, who was in the Boston in tow, that "T. A. Scott Wrecking company of New London sent a tug to help. It was pointed out here that the Commonwealth was too big to take any part in the beaching process."

Salem Men Aboard
SALEM, July 22.—The passengers on the steamer Boston included Ralph C. Browne of this city, who was the inventor of the contact fuses in the deep sea mines striven by the British in the North sea during the World war. He was accompanied by Eleanor C. of New York.

Cutter Lands One
NEWPORT, R. I., July 22.—The first injured passenger brought ashore from the steamer Boston was C. Copeland of Brookline, Mass. He was landed by the coast guard cutter Acushnet and taken to a hospital suffering from a fractured left leg, fractured shoulder blade and internal injuries.

Officers of the Acushnet said they Continued to Page Seven

MISS CECILE A. KIRWAN, WHO, AT 23, HAS BEEN MADE EDITOR OF A BIG NATIONAL MAGAZINE

By N.E.A. Service
CHICAGO, July 21.—Cecile A. Kirwan wanted to be an editor. She worked first on the Daily Illini, the university paper; then the News-Gazette at Champaign, Ill. There she did every kind of newspaper job, including the giving of advice to the love-lorn. Her advice was taken to heart by herself, too, because she is not yet married.

Her work took her to Tulsa, Okla., then to New York, then back to Chicago, where she walked the streets in search of a newspaper job. She got some income as press agent for an evangelist and then a friend said she might get on the Woman's Weekly. Her first assignment was politics, of which she said she knew nothing. To the editor's surprise she had a good story ready next day. Then she was put on the payroll.

Orphans Guests of Local Rotarians

Then the committee decided to move. Led by Grand Marshal Alvan Weaver, of the Rotary club, and Altken's band of 20 pieces, with the first automobile containing Mayor John J. Donovan, the parade of the orphans started from the corner of Pawtucket and Moody streets, heading for the center of the city.

Route of Parade
The route took the automobiles—there were just 151 in line, each containing from three to seven children of both sexes—down Merrimack street, to Central, to Middlesex, to Dutton, to Merrimack street, and thence to the Martin Luther picnic grounds in Tyngsborough. The children, each armed with American flags and wearing round cards containing the number of their assigned cars, made a picturesque passage as they were driven through the streets that were choked with spectators in many sections of the city. All traffic, vehicular and street railway, was suspended during the course of the parade, which was nearly half a mile long.

Many of the automobiles were driven by members of the fair sex, eager to aid the Rotarians and provide ample transportation facilities. There was a shortage of motor cars last year; today there were six extra cars, but these were used to take along picnic baggage.

When vigorous youth parades in all the parades of the world, bubbling joy and high expectations, the world stands still to see the sparkling spectacles which, though oft repeated, never grows stale or unattractive. No Roman holiday, no Mardi Gras festival, no martial passage in public review of the men of war in glorious celebration, can quite compare with the parade of the orphan youth in its teeming, when life is in the making, ambitions soaring and the world at large a delicious field of exploration, with mysteries abounding and delights in measures full.

Today, thousands of Lowell citizens enjoyed the spectacle parade of nearly 800 orphan children. Smiles there were on every face, smiles genuine, nourished by pleasure that follows the appearance of children in joyful parade. And yet the attractive parade of youth in summer picnic array that transformed a workaday city for a brief space of time this morning into a sea of smiling humanity, was not without a tinge of pathos.

It was "Orphans' day," and happy fathers and mothers, hanging upon the lips of the children, realized in full measure the meaning of the word "orphan." Because this was a parade of Lowell orphans, it was all the more interesting and all the more to be admired and cherished, and that was one of the things that made it such a wonderful success from the start at Ayer home, until the days of Martin Luther around in Tyngsboro were reached.

Formation of Parade Line
The formation of the parade line was conducted without a hitch. Rotarian members were assigned to posts of duty several days ago and reported at the six different orphan institutions promptly. The number of automobiles was amply sufficient in each case, and the parade line formed with the mayor's car in the lead, resting at the corner of Moody and Pawtucket streets, until the orders were issued for the parade through the city.

Police Lieut. Connors ably handled the traffic on Pawtucket and Fitchburg streets, aided by alert Motorcycle Policemen Frank Murphy and Barney Judge.

The street railway lines were kept wide open until the parade started, Inspector Edward A. Welch being on duty in front of Ayer home. At the corner of Moody and Pawtucket streets, a state policeman was stationed both before and during the parade. Six other state police officers were stationed in the heart of Lowell at important street intersections. The state policemen were on duty at the picnic grounds this afternoon.

Mrs. Tarr, matron of Ayer home, had charge of grouping and seating the children from that institution, 14 automobiles being required. Numerous citizens donated their machines for the day. Secretary-Manager George F. Wells of the chamber of commerce was among the first to arrive and secure his passenger allotment.

Grand Marshal Weaver Busy
Grand Marshal Weaver hustled around, here and there, delivering or-

GAS AT 17c SOLD BY CHELSEA MAYOR

CHELSEA, July 22.—After several announcements to the effect that gasoline, supplied under municipal auspices, would be available in Chelsea at 16 cents a gallon early this week, Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley announced that arrangements were completed to open stations this morning where gasoline can be obtained at 17 cents a gallon. The mayor said he had 800 gallons to sell at this price, with prospects of getting at least 8000 more.

In a statement issued last night, Mayor Quigley said that though he had encountered many setbacks during the last five days, he intended to continue selling gasoline at reduced cost until a substantial reduction in price is authorized by the large producing companies.

Sales Manager Henley of the Lincoln Oil company said that the 8000 gallons obtained by Mayor Quigley was little more than enough for a day's supply for any one of the big stations of the city.

Others, catching up loose ends of the program tangles and keeping everything moving briskly. The work was performed without a hitch, the only break in the schedule being the absence of Lieut. Gov. Fuller, who disappointed many Rotarians by his non-appearance in season to be photographed and featured at the head of the street procession.

The afternoon program included sports of all kinds, games old and new, with distributions of balloons and souvenirs and a real circus. There were clown features, also, with certain money obtained informally for the education of the orphans. At noon, Page served a basket lunch, and everybody had all the ice cream that was good for them.

Numerous Lowell business men loaned large trucks to carry the children from several institutions. The happy picnicers represented the Ayer Home, the French-American orphanage, St. Peter's orphanage, the Chelsea Home, Father Home and the Day Nurseries. Harry Pitts was chairman of the "Orphans' Day Outing" committee, having supervision over all preliminary details for the 1924 annual.

BOX STRAPPING DRIVE

Lowell chamber of commerce officers and members, co-operating as a unit, are backing a new campaign started to encourage the use of box strapping as a means of strengthening and protecting from pilferage packages offered for transportation. The American Railway association, freight claim division, is sponsoring the campaign, and business men and large shippers of merchandise the country over, are cheerfully giving their cardinal support to it. Lowell merchants in round numbers are supporting it according to reports received by the chamber of commerce.

An editorial in "The Bulletin," the local business organization's official publication, calls attention to the now-method packaging campaign, as follows: "There is no question that a package reinforced by box strapping or wiring, is a protection against damage and a security against pilferage. From the shipper's standpoint, it is really an inexpensive insurance and a selling adjunct of unquestionable value."

It has been demonstrated that many boxes may be made more serviceable and practically pilferage-proof by the addition of metal strapping, without extra expense, and frequently at a saving in the cost of lumber, as it is often possible through its use to construct the container from lighter stock without sacrificing strength.

Local freight claim prevention committees have been formed by railroads throughout the United States and much has already been accomplished to overcome expense to the carriers and annoyance and loss of sales to the shippers. It is thought by many Lowell chamber business executives that the present campaign will result in converting many shippers to the use of some better form of container reinforcement and this will prove a strong factor in reducing the enormous waste now borne by carriers and shippers alike.

It is announced that the distribution of illustrated circulars relating to the subject will be made to shippers and receivers of Lowell freight shipments, very soon. This work will be handled in Lowell by local freight agents of the Boston & Maine and N.Y., N.H. & H. railroads, working jointly with the Lowell chamber of commerce, which is now co-operating in bringing the matter to the attention of all its members.

DRUNKEN DRIVERS LOSE THEIR LICENSES

(Special to The Sun)
BOSTON, July 22.—One hundred and fifty persons were barred from the highways of Massachusetts last week as a result of operating a motor vehicle after drinking intoxicating liquor.

This number constitutes a new record of licenses revoked or suspended for this cause, and amply bears out the statement made by Frank A. Goodwin, registrar of motor vehicles, that the increase in the number of persons whose license is on the increase and is likely the courts and the police bear down more severely on those who indulge in the practice.

Ninety-three persons were convicted in the courts of the state on the same charge, but this number shows a decline of 22 from the figure reached in the preceding week. The remainder, 67 in number, Registrar Goodwin barred from the highway because he learned from other sources that they have been drinking before operating their machines.

Seven persons were committed to jail last week on drunken driver charges, four from the lower courts, and three from the superior court. In the lower courts, 14 appealed from jail sentences, and four others sentenced to jail were given suspension of the sentence. Forty paid fines or obtained suspensions, and seven appealed from fines.

In the superior court, five persons sentenced by the lower courts to serve a term in jail were let off with a fine, while two, appealing from fines, were sent to jail. Eight persons, appealing from fines, succeeded in getting their cases filed.

Besides the 150 licenses taken away on liquor charges, there were the following number of revocations or suspensions for other reasons: operating recklessly or endangering the safety of the public, 46; going away after accidents, without disclosing identity, 5; operating without the consent of owner, 7; deemed to be improper persons, 64; operating in an improper manner, 53; second conviction of speeding, 2; improper equipment, 55; fatal accident investigation, 38.

DRACUT AUTO KILLS LAWRENCE BOY

Leo Thibault, 9, of 20 Hampshire street, Lawrence, was struck and killed in Lawrence yesterday by an automobile owned and operated by Edward B. Bailey, Nashua road, Dracut, Bailey, after reporting the accident at Lawrence police headquarters, was formally charged with manslaughter and released under $1000 bonds. In reporting the accident, Bailey said it occurred at West and Haverhill streets while he was about to pass another machine. He did not see the boy until he was directly in front of his car and was not able to avoid striking him although he made every effort to do so.

IRISH LEAGUE DROPS NAME OF KING

DUBLIN, July 4 (By the Associated Press).—At the recent ceremony of the inauguration of the new Free State judiciary, one of the most striking features was the speech in the Irish language delivered by Chief Justice Kennedy, said to be the first official utterance by a judge in that tongue since the time of the Brehon laws many centuries ago.

Under the new judicial regime legal procedure is to be greatly simplified, and the old cumbersome forms of indictment are to be abolished. A significant change is the disappearance of the name of the king. In the past, offenses were described in the indictment as "against the peace of our sovereign lord the king, his crown and dignity," and jurors were sworn to "true deliverance between our sovereign lord the king and the prisoner at the bar." These forms are now abolished. Prosecutions were laid as "The King v. Su and So." They are now to be laid in the name of the attorney general.

The new Free State court of appeal is an ultimate tribunal. Appeals to the house of lords have been abolished and appeals to the privy council can only be had by petition to the king for permission likely to be granted only in very exceptional cases. "The courts will," said the chief justice, "stand between the people and any and every encroachment upon their constitutional rights and liberties by whomsoever attempted."

MINISTRY-AT-LARGE SECURITIES INTACT

At a meeting of the Ministry-at-Large yesterday afternoon at the chamber of commerce rooms, the resignation as treasurer of J. Henry Boardman was accepted, and Harvey B. Greene, a former treasurer of the organization, was elected in his place. Mr. Boardman had held the office for ten years, but prior to that Mr. Greene served for six years in that capacity. In reply to rumors and suggestions that the finances of the society were impaired, Dudley L. Pace, president, stated that a thorough examination of the securities held proved them to be entirely intact.

INCREASE IN AMOUNT OF COTTON RECEIVED

Thirteen hundred and one bales of cotton were received by Lowell textile mills via Boston & Maine railroad since July 1. This total exceeds the amount received by local plants over the rails during the first 20 days in June.

Cotton by the bale is higher in price today and this is retarding purchases in large quantities. For the first time in many months, Hamilton Manufacturing company is operating weave rooms in the department mill on the Middlesex street side of its property.

Recent announcement made by the selling agents for the Tremont & Suffolk mills, to the effect that napped goods have been under-produced, has created quite a stir in the trade and attention in large measure is now directed at the activities of the T. & S., which has new orders for the goods specified.

It has been previously stated that large eastern mills were curtailing output strictly in accordance with orders in hand. It has been reported for in just two or three weeks that retailers who ordered lines of napped goods for taking them and were not cancelling, as it was feared they might when prices on other lines of cottons eased up. Buyers have already become busy on napped goods and for the next three or four weeks it is expected that orders will come along to an extent that will soon restore mill production to a very considerable degree.

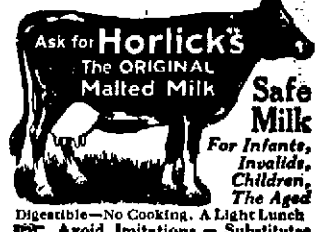

Two of the largest national distributors of napped goods have been in the market the past week. Activity in hosiery manufacturing circles has also been noticeable during the past ten days.

From Los Angeles to Bangor

Swift's Premium Brand, with its reputation for uniform goodness, is of long standing. It has behind it more than thirty years of leadership in scientific curing and smoking.

As early as 1889, Swift & Company's products had received highest awards at international expositions. One of the four medals awarded at the Paris Exposition of 1889 was for Premium smoked meats, and another was for "Silverleaf" Brand Pure Lard.

Premium Hams and Bacon were acknowledged the best then. They are better today. Laboratory control, constant, steady experiments, more careful selection, and painstaking care assure you of better meat with unfailing regularity.

Premium Hams are uniformly mild and delicious whether purchased in Los Angeles, in Bangor, or in Miami.

The pre-eminent position of Swift's Premium Hams and Bacon is indicative of the development of the packing industry—to which Swift & Company has contributed no small part in carrying to the table of the millions "More Meat and Better Meat."

This service is performed at a profit from all sources averaging only a fraction of a cent per pound.

MAINE AS THE BAROMETER

This week the attention of politicians throughout the country will be turned to the state of Maine where important developments are in progress in the contest between Farrington and Brewster for the republican nomination for governor. Farrington won by a few hundred votes; but it seems that the supporters of Brewster, the avowed candidate of the clans, charge unfair methods and as a result the entire vote of the state is to be recounted. There is to be ample opportunity to count Farrington out, and that seems to be the aim, the pretext being that he received the votes of democrats who entered the republican primary to defeat Brewster. But if democrats wished to register as republicans for that purpose, we do not see how their votes can be challenged.

As a result of this conflict the republican leaders realize that neither candidate can be elected and they are, therefore, appealing to both to withdraw and let the nomination go to Governor Baxter. The Maine election will have special importance as the political barometer this year, coming as it does in September following a campaign in which the leading spellbinders of both parties will be heard. Already it is arranged that Charles G. Dawes will be among the republican speakers who will plead the cause of that party and John W. Davis, the democratic standard bearer, will also deliver several addresses in the campaign; so that the Pine Tree State will have one of the liveliest campaigns in its history. Maine, although for a time the stronghold of the clan, is now getting tired of the hooded order and is not disposed to allow its kingly to get political control of the state as would be the case were Brewster elected governor.

JACKSON VS. FULLER

In a public address at Wareham Saturday afternoon, State Treasurer J. M. Jackson, candidate for the republican nomination for governor, delivered an exhorting attack upon Lieut. Gov. Fuller, charging him with neglect of duty, indifference to the public good and general inefficiency in public office as judged by lack of results. He further charged the lieutenant governor with making a specialty of attacks upon public men, and in this connection he pointed out that Lieut. Gov. Fuller made charges of corruption against public officials and begged the voters to send him to the state house with a lantern to search for Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves. "Mr. Fuller," said Mr. Jackson, "was sent to the state house to smoke out the crooks on Beacon Hill, but thus far he has been unable to discover the elusive Ali Baba and his cohorts, nor has he ever disclosed any irregularities in the acts of individuals connected with our national or state affairs. This is a serious arraignment and it remains to be seen how it will be met by the lieutenant governor. In general, Mr. Jackson's charge is that Mr. Fuller's record in public office is one of neglect of public duty and disregard of his obligations to the citizens of Massachusetts.

It is expected, of course, that the lieutenant governor will defend himself against these charges and refute them, if such is possible. It is expected, also, that Mr. Fuller, judging from his aggressive tactics in other cases, will give the public a little insight into the political record of Mr. Jackson, who launches his candidacy as if he had a spotless record and impregnable against attack.

Mr. Jackson endeavors to pull the props from beneath the growing custom of political succession under which the lieutenant governor lays claim to promotion to the higher office after serving one or two terms. He shows that since 1780, when the Massachusetts constitution was adopted, there have been but 16 lieutenant governors who have become governors of the state. This is rather misleading, as the custom in advancing the lieutenant governor by way of promotion started some 25 years ago, but it is merely a republican custom for which there is no constitutional warrant.

VETERANS' COMPENSATION

Too much emphasis cannot be given the necessity of war veterans entitled to consideration under the recently passed adjusted compensation act, filing their forms without delay. Veterans are dying daily in three numbers. In every case where a veteran dies before filing his application for consideration under the adjusted compensation law, it means a direct actual cash loss to his family. The American Legion and the Red Cross both are distributing blanks for veterans and they may be had for the asking.

The post-office authorities, the police, the Legion, and the Red Cross stand ready to give every assistance in filing out the blanks without delay. Members of every veteran's family, for their own protection as well as the protection of the veteran's interest, should insist upon it and keep after the veteran until he has filed.

TEXTILE INDUSTRIES

One of the textile journals is authority for the statement that the woolen and worsted mills of this country bought heavily of supplies of wool when the price recently reached a low level. At the present time, the price of wool shows an upward tendency and western growers are demanding higher prices for the better grades than they did two weeks ago. The foreign wool market is also much firmer and hence the general conclusion among men familiar with the manufacture of woolens is, that the woolen mills will soon show greater activity with the prospect of a busy season after the summer holidays. Usually, the woolen industry pulls through a dull period more successful.

A Thought

Made Him Break

"I guess I made a bad break," admitted the press agent of Dimple Simple, the movie queen. "How so?" inquired the handy interlocutor, or playboy. "I told her domestic stuff was good publicity and insisted that she take a pie." "What's wrong with that?" "Now, I gotta eat the pie."

Was Too Attractive

All the more people had been told to exercise salesmanship all the time. Thimas were dull at the necktie counter. A well-dressed gentleman dived and landed in an endless sort of way and paused at one end of it. He may have been waiting for somebody. The pretty salesgirl approached him somewhat shyly. "Can I," asked she, "interest you in a necktie?" "Not when I look at you."

Showing Palm Beach

Proprietors of small town picture palaces have to feel the public pulse with care. It was a raw and windy day that one such called a business friend into consultation. "Tom," said he, "I'm considering showing Palm Beach in the films." "Well," "What do you think? Would my patrons go to see it in this weather for 20 cents, or would it make them mad?"

The Clever Friend

A shy young hostess, in an effort to be genial, led aside the comparative stranger, whose name, somehow eluded her. "Look," she said, "I've paired you off with that lady in the corner. Will you take her in to dinner? My husband, naughtily man says she's a bit of an old tramp, but she's got lots of money, and one of his clever friends has just married her. For it, so we must be nice to her." "If I am sorry, madam," said the guest, "but I am the clever friend in question."

Went Too Far

The great Bumpfeller of phrenological fame was performing in the Scudville schoolhouse. The first man to have the hills and valleys of his head explored was a burly blacksmith. As he took his place a friend whispered in the phrenologist's ear: "He's very fond of veal." Bumpfeller nodded gratefully and proceeded to translate the blacksmith's bumps into varying degrees of acquisitiveness, inequity, receptivity and so on. "Finally," declared Dr. Bumpfeller, "I come to your diet. If there is one thing of which you are fond it is veal. Why?" But the sentence was never finished. The blacksmith rose suddenly and, hitting out, struck the phrenologist on the chin. "But veal," he roared, "What's it got to do with you if I steal a calf?"

The Shrine of Yesterday

Light me a candle white and tall. Let it burn with a clear, pale flame. At the shrine of the dear, remembered things That never will be the same. Light me a candle and let it burn. At the shrine of the days gone by. At the shrine of things as they used to be. When you were a child, and I ....

I must not live in the yesterday's I must live in today—and yet Once in a while I have to look back At the things that I can't forget. Here at the shrine of all yesterdays Let the candle be white and tall. And I will kneel for a little while Like a shadow against the wall. —ALFRED, CRESSON.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

Some of the proposed regulations just promulgated by the state department of public health relative to pasteurized milk, contain a sentence that milk distributors and receivers may do well not to overlook. It calls for stringent action in pasteurizing and demands that all "Grade A" milk "shall be pasteurized within this commonwealth." Is that an adroit move to keep out that irritating "flood" of "northern milk," reads as follows: "Grade A milk shall be pasteurized within this commonwealth, and shall be natural cow's milk not more than 14 hours old when pasteurized by heating for a period of not less than 30 minutes to a temperature of not less than 110 degrees Fahrenheit, nor more than 115 degrees Fahrenheit, and immediately thereafter cooled to a temperature of 50 degrees Fahrenheit, or lower, and shall be kept at such temperature until delivered to the consumer."

"Lost in Canada" is the message I recently received on a postcard from Capt. David Petre of the local police department. Recalling the episode in recent some time ago which occurred during the captain's visit to Canada, I shouldn't wonder that he'd want to be lost up there. According to his own admission, he is feeling blue and expects to return to Lowell fully re-converted.

A great man once said that the hardest part of living was dying. In a somewhat similar vein, let me say that the hardest thing about a vacation is getting back to work again. Right? I knew you'd agree with me. Well, I've had mine, and enjoyed it immensely. Wish you the same.

The pleasure this day brings to 700 members of Lowell through the generosity of the Rotary club is good to contemplate. Not only is this outgoing day one of the bright spots of the year in their individual lives, but it is to the everlasting credit of Rotary in Lowell that this splendid organization is annually perpetuating a custom of doing good and bringing happiness to other lives less fortunate than their own. How children of these things and plants and mortal knowings are conscious of almost as much fun as the youngsters who are being fed. If memory serves we typed a paragraph

Quite similar to the present one for this column at this time last year, prompted then by the same feeling as now, that it is a fine thing for the Rotarians to do and worthy of city-wide commendation.

The news of Police Supt. Atkinson's illness, coming out of a clear sky, was received throughout the city with expressions of regret from men and women in all walks of life who knew or had business with the police chief. Transgressors of the law even who had been hated before the chief on "matters of business" expressed their regret for he always treated them squarely—in their own language, "gave them an even break." And everyone I have heard speak of the chief, wished that the days be few before he returns to his desk in the old police station.

The papers carried a story a few days ago about a raid by police and federal agents in New York that netted several thousands of dollars worth of narcotics. And it is only a short time ago since the Lowell police made several important seizures. All have declared war on the violators of the anti-narcotic laws.

The fate of the drug addict is a fearful one. The truth of this was forcibly impressed upon me a short time ago.

I had occasion to visit a large city quite a distance from Lowell. As the weather was inclement and as I had finished my business I took in a show. It was well after eleven when the final curtain fell and I started back to my hotel.

A canopy had been stretched from the theatre to the curb to protect the theatre-goers from the driving rain. As I traversed the short distance to the waiting taxi I noticed a woman—a girl, rather, who had sought shelter from the fury of the elements. She was tall and bony and seemed deathly sick. She stood almost directly beneath the flap from the awning and her short, thin skirt was soaking and clung brazenly to her limbs.

Even as I looked she gave a choking gasp and fell to the pavement in a pathetically huddled heap. The bystanders attended her, although most of us knew that she was beyond all human care.

A few minutes later an ambulance doctor hurried up and after a hasty examination explained all in a word—said that word, terrible in its import, was "cocaine."

LA FOLLETTE TO ENDORSE SLATE

Will Announce Preferred Congressional Candidates Before Election Day

Have in Mind the Increase of Insurgent Blocs in Both Houses

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Determined to increase the strength of the insurgent blocs in the house and senate, those in charge of Senator La Follette's independent campaign for president plan to let others know, well in advance of election day, which congressional candidates they favor.

Senators and representatives who have been in accord with La Follette policies and are up for reelection will be given endorsement, while in some states and districts encouragement will be given "liberal" candidates in the field against members of the senate and house whom the followers of the Wisconsin senator classify as "reactionary."

Tentative plans worked out for the campaign place endorsement of congressional candidates in the hands of the campaign committee of 11 members which probably will begin functioning within a few days.

NATIONAL CONVENTION OF THE GRAND ARMY

Grizzled old veterans, heroes of the war of other days, will march the streets of Boston, probably for the last time, during the week of Aug. 10-13, at which time will be held the 56th national convention of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Lowell veterans of the Civil war—every single one that is not incapacitated—will be there. It is hoped to have at least 50 members of Posts 42, 22 and 18 in the monitor street parade that is to be participated in by Civil war veterans from nearly every state and territory of the American union. Several Lowell war veterans have already been named on important official encampment committees.

Post 185 has been especially honored in this respect, with Comrade Albert I. Gilman named for duties in connection with the entertainment of veterans at the convention. Other appointments to aid in the reunion program will be announced later in the week.

In order that the veterans visit to the city may be one long to be remembered, Mayor James M. Curley, as chairman of the executive committee, has outlined a program that will open wide the gates of hospitality of the city.

It is estimated that the convention will draw at least between 40,000 and 50,000 visitors, including delegates from every state and the various national possessions. More than 10,000 veterans, in their uniforms of blue, will take part in the parade which comes on Tuesday, Aug. 12.

A monster review—land has been created on Lafayette mall, Boston common, where Gen. Gaylor M. Sultzgaber, commander-in-chief of the G.A.R., and the national G.A.R. officers, Governor Channing Cox, Mayor Curley and other dignitaries will review the parade.

An elaborate program has been mapped out by the executive committee, which includes band concerts, a pageant at Braves' field, fireworks display, harbor trips and auto rides to historical spots, including Lexington, Concord and Acton.

Monday, Aug. 11, has been set aside for tree planting. Mayor Curley will plant one tree for each G.A.R. department in attendance at the convention. The planting ceremonies will be held on Boston common.

Housing accommodations are completed, which will take care of every delegate to the convention.

All the latest dance hits are being featured by this team, and the dancing surface is in excellent condition. For an evening of real enjoyment the Commodore offers everything that will satisfy. The admission tonight is 10 cents.

Tomorrow evening an "Old Times" night will be staged, with Mr. Doyle's orchestra playing some of the old dance favorites with their modern numbers included in the program. Admission 10 cents.

THE LADY MARY VILLIERS

The Lady Mary Villiers lies Under this stone: With weeping eyes The parents that first gave her breath, And their sad friends laid her in the earth. If any of them, reader, were Known unto thee, shed a tear: Or if thyself posses a gem, As dear to you as this to them; Though a stranger to this place, Bemoan in theirs thine own hard case; For thou perhaps at thy return Mayest find thy darling in an urn. —Thomas Carew.

SQUEAK

No matter how new or how old, so to speak, you can always find fault with your bus. Someone in the family will locate a squeak and it's cause for considerable fuss.

"The window is loose and it's rattling loud," poor mother will boldly declare. So dad with a new little worry's endowed since he knows that the squeaking is there.

Then Sister Sue shouts, "Oh, the springs are all rust and they scrape when we bounce up and down." And therefore the spring parts are forcibly cussed by the tribe as they're motoring round.

The hood rattles loud as you drive o'er a bump and the steering wheel wheezes a bit. A fender announces its weak with a thump, and there's many a bolt doesn't fit.

But still, after all, your old auto seems grand, though it sounds like a bundle of tin. When you buy a machine, you should well understand, that a whole lot of squeaks are thrown in. (Copyright, 1924, The Lowell Sun)

He refused to make any comment on his appointment other than that he will confer with the selection with a view to determining what the proportions of a proper bathing suit should be.

VIOLATION OF THE PLUMBING RULES

A routine meeting of the board of health was held yesterday afternoon and was presided over by Dr. Pierro

Brunelle in the absence of Chairman Dr. Francis R. Mahony.

A case concerning violation of the plumbing rules by a North Chelmsford contractor, which was heard at a recent meeting, was reopened yesterday when William McElholm and John M. Regan, representing the Master Plumbers association, introduced new evidence. No action was taken except a vote to reopen the case and it will be heard at a future meeting of the board.

The isolation hospital report showed 54 patients confined there at the present time. Weekly payroll of the department were approved. Owing to complaint concerning a brook at Mansur street, which is creating a nuisance in the vicinity, the board voted to request the public service board to extend the Mansur street sewer to drain the brook.

LARGE HATS RESTORED TO FAVOR FOR SUMMER WEAR

(NEA Service Writer)

The large hat has staged a real comeback this summer.

Just make a tour of the smartest roof gardens and restaurants and you will find the debauche and dowagers alike basking under wide brimmed models.

Nine out of ten are of black millan or leghorn with a bow of velvet or sat in ribbon that weighs it down on one side and gives the wearer a chance to peek out coyly from the other.

But there are novelties such as the ones photographed. There is the combination of straw and fur that Paris likes very much this summer that is most unusual.

Or the checkered model with the upturned brim that is bound to make the wearer look at least five years younger than she really is.

For festive occasions such as the wedding or garden party, there is the leghorn picture hat lined with pink tulle under the brim and riched and banded with it on the outer. And on one side fastened by a bunch of old-fashioned roses.

$200,000 for Digging Up Junk That Once Was German Navy

(NEA Service Correspondent)

LONDON, July 22.—To spend $200,000 on the off-chance of getting great piles of scrap iron and scrap steel from the bottom of the sea looks like risking a lot of money. But Cox and Danks, marine engineers of London, are taking the gamble on what promises to be the greatest sea-diving and ship-salvaging feat in the world's history.

British industry will seek to overcome the results of German determination. Penetration business will seek to make use of war-time propaganda.

For the job the London firm has set for itself is nothing less than raising from the murky waters of Scapa Flow the once proud and mighty German battle fleet. When fished up, all it will be good for will be to tow it to shore, break it up and sell it as a scrap. And if the market is good, there is lots of money in scrap.

Five years ago, in compliance with the terms of the armistice, the German battle fleet steamed into the great harbor in the Orkney Islands to the north of Scotland. British and American battle fleets were on hand to receive them. The allied vessels had guns ready in case the Germans tried a last-minute act of desperation, but everything passed off peacefully.

Then on June 21, 1919, the world was startled by the news that the Germans the night before had sent almost their entire fleet. Seven or eight battleships, five battle cruisers, eight light cruisers and 50 destroyers were sunk. They have been lying there rusting ever since.

Cox and Danks have a preliminary contract to raise 24 torpedo boat destroyers and two of the biggest battle cruisers, the Hindenburg and the Seydlitz, each of 27,000 tons. For this purpose they bought from the British government the great German floating dock which was used for submarine repairs by the Germans.

This dock was out in two, thus forming two pontoons, each over 200 feet in length and each fitted with workshops, electric power generating plants, an air compressor and gear used in ship-salvaging work. Powerful cranes have also been installed. When all is ready the twin pontoons will be placed on either side of the vessel to be raised.

The first job is that of the deepsea divers. They will go down into the hull of the vessel to be raised and systematically step up every hole in her from hatchways to the sea cocks which the Germans opened in order to sink the ship. Metal patches, concrete and wooden blocks will be used in this work of patching holes.

Cuts will then be made in the various decks of the vessel and powerful electric pumps will be lowered. These are capable of ejecting 5000 tons of water an hour. The object is, of course, to empty the vessel of water so that she will start rising by her own buoyancy. Once this starts, the wreck will be taken at each tide to shallower water until it is found possible to keep her on an even keel and float her normally.

This is the operation that will be performed on the Hindenburg which settled upright, her funnels and topmasts even now extending well above the level of the sea.

The Seydlitz, which is lying on her side, presents a different problem. She will not be pumped out until by combined action of tides and pontoons she is dragged to shallower water.

Giant Seaweed Hinders Work
The first effort at raising a vessel proved a failure. The destroyer V-70 had been partially raised and her masts and funnels removed. Heavy operations were then begun and the vessel lifted bodily seven feet when a chain snapped. Others followed. Only two wire straps held tight. The destroyer was allowed to sink back. In future, chains will be abandoned and wire straps used.

In working on the various ships the 12 divers now employed have encountered a monstrous seaweed which has been unknown in these waters. Its stalks are as thick as a man's wrists, have leaves 18 inches wide and trail 15 feet in length. To get at the pontoons it was necessary for the divers to slash their way through this veritable submarine jungle.

The first job is that of the deep-

CORN AND HOG PRICES AS ELECTION INFLUENCE

BY HARRY B. HUNT
(NEA Service Writer)

WASHINGTON, July 21.—"Corn and hogs can win the election."

That is the dictum of keen minded political gentlemen who are watching with interest the steadily mounting quotations on the above farm products. In them is seen much more than a mere market report; even much more than an index of at least temporarily returning agricultural prosperity.

For as a factor of real importance in the coming campaign, more potent than the fact that William Jennings Bryan will campaign for the democratic ticket or that Charles Dawes helped win the year, 410 hogs and 41 corn may be the most persuasive of all arguments to millions of voters.

Tariff and taxation are abstruse, inviolable issues at best. But corn and hogs?

There's something definite, tangible, readily visualized and easily understood.

Is the steadily strengthening market for these staple farm products an entirely natural and normal process, or is it being assisted by artificial stimulation for political purposes?

That is a question that is being studied closely by economists in both the democratic and independent camps. There is an underlying suspicion that just as the farmer was "deflated" the last election, he is now being "inflated" on instructions from the same source.

The theory, of course, is that strong markets and better prices through the next five months may make it possible to hold in the republican ranks the normally republican agricultural vote, which has been threatening to run amok.

Improving prices for farm produce whether naturally or artificially sustained, inevitably give aid to the Coolidge campaign.

Oddly enough, coincident with the upward trend in corn and hogs, comes an announcement of reduced prices on a long line of staples, from cucumbers to corn shreds, which big mail order houses supply to farm buyers.

That, incidentally, and independently, is the latest, looks a suspicious something wrong somewhere. Better investigate! So they do.

Result: They find it's been a sold, wet spring. Farmers were late getting plowing and planting done and crop generally is delayed. Probably will be under normal in yield. Therefore the mounting corn prices.

Early pigs don't thrive during unseasonable spring. His of pig industry multiplied and death rate increased. Fewer pigs, more valuable. Also, rearing pigs must be fed higher priced corn. Higher pig prices imperative.

On the reverse side, the declining prices on what the farmer buys, the trail leads back to the weather again. Late, backward spring. Resulting light haying. Merchants and dealers overstocked. Prices slashed in order to move stocks before fall.

That's as far as the "investigations" have gotten to date. And while the skeptics are sniffing around trying to scent something rotten in Denmark, not yet willing to accept the situation as altogether natural, republicans smile broadly and give their explanation. Which is: "Coolidge Luck!"

The one uncertain factor in the equation is: "Will the farmer, this year, abstain according to Hovell? If he does, a corn and hogs give Coolidge an advantage."

But with both dams and independent-ents set on keeping Coolidge from "hogging" the vote, there's a real fight ahead anyway.

ENID BENNETT-RAMON NOVARRO IN NEW ROLES

BY JACK JUNGMEYER
N.E.A. Service Writer

HOLLYWOOD, July 22.—Fred Niblo was in melancholy mood when he produced "The Red Lily," an early release by the Goldwyn-Metro-Mayer combine.

It is a powerful but depressing drama of love trailed through the mire by force of circumstance, by insensate fate which takes no account of human striving toward the ideal. Only the salvage of their sullied lives is permitted the victims as reward of ceaseless striving. And audiences are likely to consider that meager reward unsatisfactory, I apprehend.

The happy ending in "The Red Lily" is really so happy: cannot be because of what has preceded it. But if you concede that motion pictures should reflect the tragedies of the human battle-and-march, that they should peer sympathetically but direct into gloomy abysses, then you will appreciate this Niblo opus.

It is wholly a Niblo product because he wrote as well as directed it.

The picture traces the fortunes of a mayor's son and a cobbler's daughter from idyllic romance in Brittany to sordid chapters in Paris, where on the eve of proposed marriage they are separated by fatal intervention. In the perils of Paris the white Lily of Brittany, driven to desperation by need, becomes scarlet. And the boy, despairing, finding his sweetheart, drifts to a life of crime.

Enid Bennett as "Lily" is in startling contrast to previous roles. Her usual placid, tender demeanor is completely overriden by the pathetic pleading of harassment among the Parisian demi-monde. She gives an arresting performance, a biting character study.

Ramon Novarro, too, presents a new camera personality as the hopeless, sullen victim of a father's meddling and misunderstanding. He constantly he hunts for his lost girl, "The maid with the face of an angel." When he finds her, the face is haggard—and he strikes her down in the frenzy of his vanished illusion.

Among the surges of drama in "The Red Lily," the horrid drama above mentioned is paralleled when the girl, still with anguished heart despite her experiences, follows him to a dive. Before the grinning gargoyles of the place, he pushes her into a room with "The Toad," most repulsive of the lot. That horror begins his regeneration, and, after both have been near death, they take up the sorry fragments of their young dream in marriage.

American Legion Post Elects Delegates and Alternates to State Convention

A special election of Lowell post 57, American Legion, for the purpose of selecting nine delegates and nine alternates to the annual state convention to be held this summer, was held last evening in legion headquarters in the Memorial Auditorium.

Polls were opened at 8 o'clock and closed at 9:30, with the election in charge of George Walsh, John J. Murphy, Cornelius Flannery, William Lane and George Budd, Jr. Considerable interest was shown in the election, and over 125 ballots were cast during the one-and-a-half-hour period.

The following delegates were elected: Commander Colin C. MacDonald, Senior Vice Commander George A. McCarthy, Robert J. Rutledge, Joseph M. Dunne, Henry J. Sullivan, John J. Walsh, Joseph A. Molloy, James P. McCready and Stephen Kearney. The alternates chosen were: Robert A. Ginnivan, Archie Kennebec, George E. Toya, James F. Conway, J. Henry Gilbride, Charles A. Stevens, Thomas B. Mothers should never give their children opiates to produce sleep except on the instructions of the family physician. It is not only harmful but unnecessary for Baby's Own Tablets, the sweet little laxative tablets, in a natural way produce health-giving sleep and are absolutely harmless.

"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for whooping cough," says Mrs. Eva Beland, of No. 13 King street, Central Falls, R. I., "and they are a wonderful medicine. When my baby was teething I gave her the tablets with excellent results. Baby's Own Tablets quiet my children when they are restless and permit them to sleep naturally. The tablets are a fine laxative and I would not be without them in the house."

Browns and White Sox in Tie for Fourth Place—Boston Loses Ninth Straight Game—Jess Haines Pitches in Poor Form

NEW YORK, July 22.—New York sits less securely on its American throne today as a result of its first tussle with Detroit in a series of four games which promises to go far toward shaping the destiny of both teams for the 1924 season. ## HAGEN AFTER NEW LAURELS

Having Won Three National Titles Walter Plans Another New Attack

To Make a Try for Canadian Championship at Montreal in August

BY JOE WILLIAMS

Walter Hagen is going after the Canadian championship next month at the Mount Bruno Country club, Montreal. This is the only open championship of consequence the American home bred hasn't won.

The American, the British and the French open titles have fallen to him. Now he plans an onslaught on the Canadian, and if he is anywhere near his usual form, he will be hard to best.

To be known in history as a player who held all the open titles of importance in the world is a rather enviable distinction, and our Mr. Hagen is not at all adverse to accepting enviable distinctions.

Incidentally, Hagen will not be the only American star to compete in the Montreal classic. Joe Kirkwood and Leo Diegel have entered and it is expected Cyril Walker, the new champion, and his exhibition match partner Bob Cruikshank, will be among the starters.

The record score for the Canadian open was made by Douglas Edgar, an Englishman, who was connected at the time with an Atlantic club. Edgar turned in a total of 278 for 12 holes in the 1919 event, a mere matter of 10 better than even is.

Edgar's feat broke the record by 17 strokes. Only two other players in the history of the game have done better in open championship play, and in each instance the prize involved was comparatively unimportant. George Duncan won the Swiss-Canadian championship in 1915 with a score of 263, and Emmet French won the Ohio state title in 1922 with 274.

Edgar was killed several years ago in an automobile accident, in which respects he was the most interesting golfer this writer ever met. He was a firm believer in the power of mind over matter. Psychology was his craze and he gave it free rein in his discussions and instructions. At the time of his death he was working on a book dealing with simplified golf which he currently believed would revolutionize the game.

CASEY STENGEL CUTS COMEDY

Refuse, However, To Take Him Seriously

Funny Stuff Profitable on Stage But Loss on Diamond, He Finds

NEW YORK, July 22.—Casey Stengel, veteran outfielder of the Boston Braves, has come to the conclusion that it does not pay to attempt to mix comedy with baseball. Because he has done that very thing in the major leagues for many years the fans now refuse to take him seriously no matter how hard he tries or how sensationally he performs, and he is one of the most conscientious and reliable players in the game.

"Comedy pays well on the stage," said Casey recently, "but it doesn't get you anything in baseball. It's nice to make the fans laugh once in a while but the player who does so finds he can't do anything else with them, no matter how hard he's trying. They don't take him seriously and the consequence is they never give him as much credit as he deserves—or thinks he does."

Fans are indulgent of the baseball player's antics in a limited extent, according to Stengel. In proof of this statement the Braves' veteran outfielder related a personal experience of his Philadelphia days. The Phillies were playing the Giants, and the relative standing of the two teams was about the same as it is at present.

In the particular game to which Stengel referred the Giants were leading by an overwhelming margin and Casey decided he would inject a little humor into the uninteresting contest. When in the eighth inning a New York batter drove a liner straight at Stengel in right field Casey pretended not to see the ball and did not make a move to catch it until it was almost upon him. Just as it reached him he stuck out his gloved hand and snared it.

"I thought that would make the boys laugh," Casey commented, "but all I heard was a bird in the right field stand yelling, 'You big ham! Cut out that comedy and play ball! That's what's the matter with this ball club. It's so full of comedians there ain't any room on it for ball players.'"

PACING DERBY ON AT KALAMAZOO TODAY

KALAMAZOO, Mich., July 22.—Fourteen entries will start today in the $25,000 American Pacing derby, featuring the second day of the 17th annual grand circuit renewal here. The event is for 2:05 class pacers. The Murphy entry, Baron Worthy, is considered to be the favorite.

LINCOLN SCHOOL GIRLS DEFEATED

The Girls' baseball team of the Morey school defeated the Lincoln school representatives on the latter's grounds by a score of 4 to 1 yesterday afternoon. The game went live innings with the Moreys never in danger. This team has not lost a game this season. Yesterday's stars were Capt. Florence Valterand, Catherine Riley, Helen Nelson, Jeanette Cormier, Bessie Vall, Minnie Vall, Lucy Lucas and Lillian Caldwell. The umpiring was done by Edward Riley.

WONDERFUL BALL GAME

Unbridled Youth Too Fast and Too Strong for Their Older Brethren

Single Men of The Sun Defeat Married Men by a Score of 18 to 15

A game known as baseball was "played" at by teams representing the Married and the Single men of The Sun at Alumni field last evening. The score at the conclusion of the seventh inning was 18 to 15. In whose favor? Pardon us. The non-supporters were victorious, mainly because they were able to stand the game better than their ill-fated brethren of the matrimonial brigade, who were forced to take cognizance of the famous adage that "Youth must be served."

Of course, the Married men did not display their best wares last night. The only individual who carried along his best "wears" was Henry Mulcahy, who knickered about the playing field in debonaire fashion and felt the ball once or twice for the sake of a few large Ryne. Joe Reilly tossed 'em over the plate for the losers, and as a general rule he tossed 'em away over. It was learned after the game that Joe Reilly things easy. He was stalling for bets. Can you beat that?

The game proved a bachelor party all the way through, the Single men getting the jump in the early stages, and the "double" men trying vainly for a comeback to the good old days of usefulness. The comeback didn't come last night, however. It came today, not only in the back but in arms, legs and other delicate membranes of the ordinary man's physical makeup. The proper quotation on today's stock market, therefore might well be: "Ask dad, he knows!"

MYSTERIES LOSE TO THE PAWTUCKET BLUES

The Mysteries of Centralville went down to defeat last night on the North common before the terrific onslaught of the hard hitting Pawtucket Blues of the Junior league, by the score of 8 to 4.

At no time were the Blues in danger. Starting the game with a swop, they rang up five runs in the first stage. After that there was no need of worry, although the Mysteries made a gallant effort to break their jinx. The only exciting feature of the game was the long slam for a round trip, made by Center. The score:

LIFE SAVING

By MARGARET PLUNKETT

In cases of rescue, there is a great risk of overturning a boat when the rescuer does not understand the proper way to lift a body out of the water.

Also, it is a common occurrence that swimmers who have brought drowning persons to a dock or a float are sometimes so exhausted that they are unable to lift the other readily out of the water.

Here are a few simple directions adaptable to such instances: Place one of the rescued person's hands on top of the other on the edge of the float or boat.

In climbing out of the water, keep one of your hands on the two hands of the other person.

Then face the person in the water, cross your own hands and take hold of the other's.

Lift up and down until momentum is gained, and then lift the body above the water, uncrossing your hands as you do so.

This movement will bring the person up, with his back to you. In this way you will not have to lift him completely out of the water, but only high enough to sit down.

OLD AXIOM THAT YOUTH WILL BE AMERICAN OLYMPIC ATHLETES IN SERVED PROVEN BY HARRIS

Boy Manager of Washington Club Has Team Up Clean Sweep of Five Tennis Championships Yesterday With Leaders While Condolences for Connie Mack Are in Good Form as Usual

BY BILLY EVANS
The pennant race in the American League presents the two extremes in managerial direction. "Bucky" Harris, the boy manager of the Washington club, the youngest leader in the majors, has his team within whispering distance of first place. Connie Mack, conceded to be one of the game's greatest statisticians, the oldest of all big league managers, is last.

In the spring Mack was confident that he had a club that would finish second. The Yankees he figured to repeat. Harris, in his first year as a manager, merely had hopes of sticking in the first division. The club that had been turned over to him finished fourth in 1923. He planned to do at least as well.

JESSE HAINES

The first hitless game of the big league season goes to the credit of Jesse Haines of the St. Louis Cardinals, who turned in a pitching classic against the Boston Braves, scoring a 5-0 victory. Haines walked one batter in the first, and two in the sixth. These were the only men to reach first base. No Cardinal player was charged with an error and not one hard chance was fired at any fielder during the game.

Billy Evans SAYS

Every major league club has at least one outstanding pitcher. Often the success or failure of a pitching staff is determined by the showing of its star.

Usually as the star goes, so goes the rest of the staff. During the latter part of June and the early portion of July the Washington club staged a sensational rally that carried it to the top of the American league race. That rally was made possible by the superb work of the Washington pitching staff as a whole. The twirling was consistently high class.

The work of no one pitcher featured the showing of the Washington club more than that of Walter Johnson, the big star of the staff. Johnson set a stiff pace which the rest of the staff followed. When the pitching crew of a team is unable to win, the entire staff appears to slump. There is a lack of that winning confidence. It is difficult to explain, but nevertheless is a baseball precedent.

This year the showing of the Chicago Cubs in the National league has vied with Washington as the big hit of the majors. Grover Cleveland Alexander, worthy rival of Walter Johnson for the honor of the game's greatest pitcher, has been the big reason for the Cubs from twirling standpoint. He set the pace, the others followed and the Cubs loomed as pennant contenders.

Then an injury to his hand caused Alexander to take to the bench. Hit by a batted ball, it prevented him from taking his regular turn. It didn't take long for the absence of Alexander from the Cubs' lineup to make itself felt. The team, particularly the pitching staff, seemed to realize that Alexander must be in here regularly if the club is to be anywhere in the race.

With the passing of Alexander, temporarily, because of injuries, the entire pitching staff slumped. When a club doesn't get good pitching it looks bad.

His baseball history that when the twirling slump the club suffers a serious handicap that very often sets the entire team play.

For that reason it is logical to assume that if the Washington club is to continue a contender, Walter Johnson must have a big year. If the Cubs are to press their claims, Alexander must continue to win.

QUESTIONS
1. Player is at bat six times in one game. He makes two hits, strikes out twice and receives two bases on balls. What is his batting average for that particular game?—J.V.F.

2. Batterman hits ball to third baseman, whose throw to first beats the runner several steps. The ball pings out of the first baseman's glove and rolls up his arm. At the time the runner touches first the fielder is hugging the ball against his chest, it being in the crook of his arm at the elbow. Is the runner out?—J. H.

3. Regulation field, batter hits ball over fence but carelessly misses third base a foot in making the circuit. Failure is noticed by third baseman and field umpire. Fielder calls for a new ball, touches the ball and appeals to umpire for a decision. Is batsman out or does drive over fence entitle him to a home run?—J. H.

ANSWERS
1. Player is at bat four times, as a base ball is not considered a time at bat. Making two hits in four times gives player batting average of .500 for day. Divide number of hits by times at bat to get batting average.

2. Major league umpires do not regard a ball as caught until fully held in the hands, the only legitimate way to make a catch. In the play you cite, runner should have been called safe, since he touched base before the ball was held in the hands of first baseman.

IN NEW YORK

By Stephen Hannagan

NEW YORK, July 21.—R. L. Smith, ballyhoo historian of New York, who has told the history of Gotham and its sights to nearly 2,000,000 people in the past 15 years, comes from Manhattan.

Smith is the announcer on an excursion boat that sails around the island twice each day, carrying tourists and sightseers from all corners of the country.

"New Yorkers seldom make the trip and few of them know anything about their own town. They take everything for granted," he declares.

During the winter season he conducts sightseeing parties about Havana, Cuba. "I never had been in Havana when I took my first party down," he admitted, "but I studied guide books and histories. Then I spent several days locating the points of interest. I knew more about the place than the people who lived there."

That's what he did when he came to New York 25 years ago.

How deep is the water—and is it salty? are the questions most often put to Smith by tourists, he claims.

Smith keeps up a running, rip monologue during the 30-mile trip that requires three hours. Never once does he stop, interspersing heavy details with witticisms he keeps in his head.

Miss Liberty, the statue, is a perfect 35-65 feet around the waist.

"Those are the police boats of the dry navy. If they come alongside, throw overboard your booze—or give it to me," he admonishes. On one trip a man rushed up and gave him a flask.

But this man who has described the Statue of Liberty and Blackwell's Island so many times, in such minute detail, never once has visited either point, though he passes them every day.

CLUBS APPRECIATE THE PICNIC SEASON
The picnic season, now in full swing, is being greatly appreciated by the members of the numerous clubs affiliated with the International Institute.

Three and sometimes four picnics weekly are not an unusual occurrence at the local educational center. Miss Marguerite Woodbury, cosmopolitan and secretary at the institute, Miss Valerie

COAST GUARD SEARCH IS ON

No Sign Yet of 40-Foot Sloop Missing With Four Men Aboard

Sailing Craft Missing Three Days Last Seen Near Plymouth Station

KINGSTON, July 22.—The coast guards of the Garnet station spent the night searching the waters off Duxbury and Plymouth for the 40-foot sloop in which four young men left here for a short fishing trip. The coast guards thought they saw the boat last night, and started out to her, but their motor broke down, and the boat could not be found again.

The missing men are Russell Fozzy of Brockton, Adams Martilly of Kingston, E. Fred Marbo of Quincy, and another Brockton man not known here. Their boat originally carried a motor, but was dependent on sails when she left here.

Richard, Polish worker connected with the organization, and Miss Kathleen Gray, volunteer worker, are in charge of the outing.

The trips are made to Willow Isle by car, the parties leaving early in the forenoon and returning during the early evening. Each member brings her luncheon and a basket picnic is enjoyed at noon. In the afternoon a motor boat trip across the lake to Lakeview is enjoyed.

At Lakeview the youngsters participate in the various entertainments offered. A fine program of sports is also carried out and includes racing, swimming and hiking.

The members of the Lucy Larcom, White Awake and Little Clingers clubs are scheduled for picnics this week. While next week, other clubs will be so favored.

Miss Sophia Michaelidou, Greek worker recently appointed, has taken up her duties at the institute. Miss Michaelidou arrived in this country from Constantinople about three years ago. She attended a special course in social work at New York, completing her studies but recently.

WALKER CAN FIGHT IN NEW JERSEY
TRENTON, N. J., July 22.—It was indicated today by State Boxing Commissioner Bugbee that the bad standing of Mickey Walker, welterweight champion, with the New York boxing commission, would have no bearing on the proposed meeting of Walker and Benny Leonard, lightweight champion, at Doyle's Thirty Acres on Aug. 21.

Walker is in the bad graces of the New York commission because of his refusal to meet Dave Shade, Leonard and his manager, Billy Gibson, as well as Tex Rickard, promoter of the bout, have all been threatened with revocation of their licenses in New York if Leonard meets Walker before Walker meets Shade.

Leonard and Walker have been given permission to fight in New Jersey and are both in good standing as far as this state is concerned, was Bugbee's comment.

SCORES POLICE IN HAVERHILL

Former Local Motor Vehicle Inspector Says Law Violators Not Prosecuted

Cites Cases He Investigated and Charges Police With Unusual Laxity

HAVERHILL, July 22.—William Walsh, an official of the Lawrence office of the registry of motor vehicles, repped the local police department yesterday when he learned that the police officials were not prosecuting all cases of motor vehicle violations, but were using their own judgment. Inspector Walsh made his official visit to investigate why the accident of Miss Rose Cote of 66 Locust street, had not been prosecuted. Miss Cote, while recently driving in bedroom attire and little fur trimmed slippers, sent a high powered motor car into the Amesbury road where four men in an automobile were all arrested for drunkenness and fined in the district court. Inspector Walsh claims that one of them, who gave his name as that of Frank McGrath of 444 Essex street, Lawrence, used a fictitious name. He claimed his real name was Dolan and that he was employed as a chauffeur by Alderman Flanagan of the city of Lawrence. The other occupants of the car were Scott Wilson, 77 Jamaica street; John Griffin, 150 Hampshire street; both of Lawrence, and Frank Nally, address unknown. Dolan claimed Wilson was driving the car, and Wilson claimed that Dolan was driving. The local department was unable to bring a complaint, so the state official will make the complaint and try the case himself.

Inspector Walsh comes from New Bedford and was stationed in Lowell for several months in 1923. Another case about which Inspector Walsh was wrathful was that of a recent accident which occurred in the Amesbury road where four men in an automobile were all arrested for drunkenness and fined in the district court. Inspector Walsh claims that one of them, who gave his name as that of Frank McGrath of 444 Essex street, Lawrence, used a fictitious name. He claimed his real name was Dolan and that he was employed as a chauffeur by Alderman Flanagan of the city of Lawrence. The other occupants of the car were Scott Wilson, 77 Jamaica street; John Griffin, 150 Hampshire street; both of Lawrence, and Frank Nally, address unknown. Dolan claimed Wilson was driving the car, and Wilson claimed that Dolan was driving. The local department was unable to bring a complaint, so the state official will make the complaint and try the case himself.

SERIOUSLY INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

As a result of an automobile accident last night on the Acton road, South Chelmsford, Ansel Anderson, 19, of North Acton, is in a serious condition at the Lowell General hospital. Fred Gould, 26, of the same town, is being treated for multiple injuries of a more or less minor nature. A third young man, Oliver Erickson of Chelmsford Centre, also was slightly injured.

The three men were riding in a car near the intersection of the Hall and Acton roads when the machine became unmanageable after striking a rock in the roadway and turned turtle after crashing into a stone wall. The car was practically demolished and all three men were bleeding profusely when taken from the wreckage. Police Officer Adams of Chelmsford went to the scene and called an ambulance for Anderson and Gould. Erickson was taken to his home.

The way to leave footprints on the sands of time is to get out and dig.

LIQUOR CASES BEFORE U. S. COMMISSIONER

MURRAY DENIES PART IN SENATE GASSING

PROVIDENCE, July 22.—William "Toots" Murray, accused by Thomas Lully of having planted the gas bomb in the state senate chamber on the morning of June 19, at the instigation of Republican State Chairman William C. Pelkey, makes denial of the charge and demands Lully's allegations as "maliciously false and without foundation in fact."

An affidavit signed by Murray in Worcester, last Saturday, making a sweeping denial that he had any connection with a plot to place the gas in the senate, was made public today by Chairman Pelkey.

In a second affidavit, made public at the same time, Murray claims that last Friday he was approached by a driver of an automobile, carrying three Providence reporters and promised money and immunity from sentence if he would go to Worcester and make an affidavit.

GAS DOWN ONE CENT

NEW YORK, July 22.—A reduction of one cent a gallon in the tank wagon price of kerosene was announced today by the Standard Oil Co. of New York. The new quotation, effective throughout its territory in New York and New England, is 13 cents a gallon.

STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 22.—Stock prices continued to mount higher ground at the opening of today's market with the rally and copper leading the advance. New 1924 high records were established in the first few minutes of trading by New York Central, Union Pacific, Pere Marquette, Great Northern preferred, Black Trucks and the General Industrial gains, as a rule, were small.

Shifting of speculative interest from one group to another combined with the renewed war against weak spots by bear traders, gave the market an irregular appearance in the late morning. Selling pressure was particularly effective against local railroads, Bethlehem Steel, Colorado Fuel and a few other specialties, which dropped to 1 to 2 points below yesterday's final prices. U. S. Steel common was steady around 102 and American Can was in good demand at higher prices. Big four added 3 1/2 points to its recent gain and established a new 1924 peak of 139 1/2. Recent improvement in prices of oil securities is said to be due largely to negotiations going on in banking quarters for new exchange contracts reflecting certain companies which, in some cases, may result in consolidations. Both Standard Oil and independent companies are reported to be involved. Call money opened at 2 per cent.

Increased public participation was held partly responsible for the advance in rails, additional new high being recorded by Seaboard air line, preferred and Gulf, Mobile and Northern preferred. Copper continued to discount the possibility of an increased European demand. U. S. Steel, Calumet and Arizona and Smelling all selling at their prices of the year. Royal Dutch, International Petroleum and Canadian Pacific held a point or more above yesterday's final figures. Foreign exchanges opened firm, and sterling duplicated its previous high of the year at $4.40, up 1 1/2 cents.

Stock prices gave another impressive demonstration of strength in reflection of the favorable reparations news, higher copper and zinc prices and reports of increased business activity. Copper and rails again led the advance but oil shares developed unexpected strength in the fact of further gasoline price cuts. Sales approximated 1,200,000 shares.

The closing was strong. A few issues fell back on profit taking in the late trading but new leaders were brought forward. New Haven selling well above 29 at a new high for the year.

Money Market
NEW YORK, July 22.—Foreign exchanges strong. ## WOMAN VICTIM THOUGHT FROM BROOKLINE

NEWPORT, R. I., July 22.—The woman killed in her stateroom in the collision between the steamship Boston and the tanker Swift Arrow last night was probably Mrs. C. Copeland of Brookline, Mass., wife of the passenger who died from injuries in the hospital here today.

MOB FORMS INTENT ON LYNCHING BEE

CAIRO, Ill., July 22.—A mob of approximately 300 men formed in Pulaski county today, apparently bent on lynching two negroes tentatively identified as the slayers of Daisy Wilson, 18, in an attempted holdup of her father's store near Mounds, shortly after midnight.

BURLINGTON FIRE LOSS IS $50,000

BURLINGTON, Vt., July 22.—Eleven persons narrowly escaped death during a fire in this city at 4 o'clock this morning, when a blaze of unknown origin threatened two families living over a block occupied by the Standard Steam Laundry. One of the families, the Duncans, escaped on the roof of an adjoining building, while the others escaped through the blaze which made considerable headway before a night clerk in a nearby hotel discovered the blaze and quickly awakened the occupants. The loss is estimated at about $50,000.

POLICE DECIDE CONFESSION HOAX

NEW YORK, July 22.—Milton Ware, a waiter, alleged to have confessed to strangling 8-year-old Francis McDonnell on Staten Island, was sent back to Newark, N. J., today, after the Staten Island police had been convinced that he was not the man they sought. The police decided that there was no basis for Ware's second "confession" last night.

WALL STREET ITEMS

NEW YORK, July 22.—Promises of American assistance in the present inter-allied conference will pave the way for European accord on the Dawes plan stimulated by the demand for $4.40 to the highest level of the year. An early quotation of $4.40 eclipsed the previous high mark of $4.40 established on April 22, and represented an overnight advance of more than a cent. Since the first of the month sterling has scored a gain of 8 cents. French franc held steady, but failed to share in the brisk demand for the British currency.

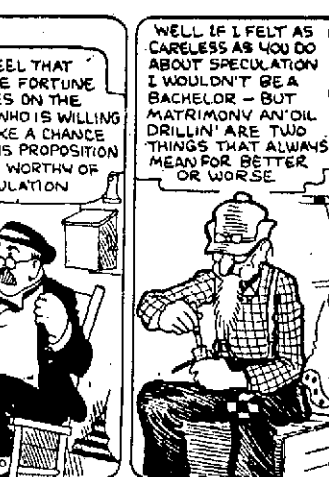

NEW YORK, July 22.—Heavy profits in public utility issues after their recent sensational advance has resulted in comparative neglect of these issues in the stock market. Sound fundamental condition, however, prevails in the industry. The usual increasing trend of earnings for most companies continues and although seasonal recessions in consumption is noted in many parts of the country, a normal increase is reported. New capital invested in the past year continues to show substantial earning capacity.

F. S. Hill, president of the American Tobacco Company, estimates that seventy billion cigarettes will be consumed in the United States this year. Sales were increasing notably in this country, he said, but in Europe where the quantity consumed would be even greater if good tobacco could be obtained. Earnings of the company were running more than ten per cent ahead of last year, he asserted.

The railroads are expanding their plans to meet the season crop moving season to season estimates of the prospective wheat crop giving a winter yield of 542,500,000 bushels, an increase of 33,225,000 bushels over June and July 1923, and a revised estimate of 197,400,000 bushels, which is 15,500,000 bushels greater. Excessive traffic in peaches and watermelons from Georgia and also cantaloupes and lettuce is reported, owing to record yields of these crops.

Jack Daw's Adventures: Chapter 2

"I'll go down," replied Jack, as he climbed upon the railing. "All right," smiled the captain, "but watch your step as it is very slippery on icebergs." The sailors gathered around the spot where the rope ladder was fastened and watched Jack slowly climb down the side of the ship.

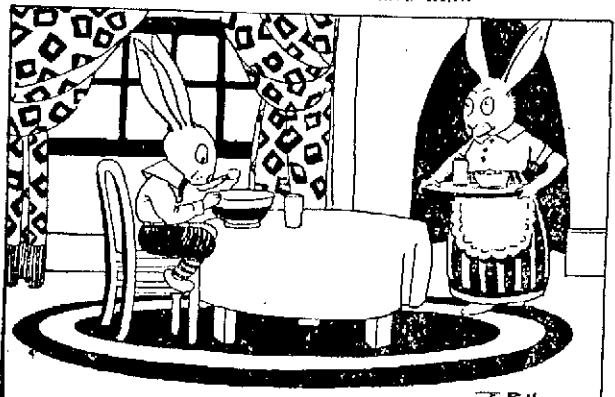

Flip stood up with his front paws on the railing and barked loudly. It seemed that his little master was entering into a new and thrilling adventure. The captain of the sailing vessel patted the dog on the head and whispered, "Your master will be all right, old fellow."

Jack, in the meantime, kept climbing down and he finally reached the bottom step of the rope ladder. Then he looked down and saw that he was about four feet from the ground of the iceberg. The sailors realized this, too, and one of them shouted, "Just let yourself drop. It won't hurt you." (Continued.)

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

Olive Roberts Barton

HE ATE HIS LUNCH IN A HURRY.

The merry-go-round in Happy Go Lucky Park was a jolly one. Nick made the music go, and a whistle went "toot-toot," and Mister Zip, the fairy-man, turned a handle that started the merry-go-round. Nancy took tickets sometimes, and sometimes she held the babies so they couldn't fall off and get hurt.

And, although the animals on the merry-go-round looked as fierce as could be, they were only made of wood and couldn't hurt you any more than a fly.

Besides, there was the brass ring. If you got the brass ring when you were whizzing past, instead of a black one, that gave you a free ride.

Of course, everybody tried as hard as they could to get the brass ring, you may be sure.

One day Cutie Cottontail got a job needing a garden, and although they say that it wasn't all work, she pulled on it, still he earned enough money to go to Happy Go Lucky Park and spend it and the afternoon.

He ate his lunch in a hurry and put on his best striped shirt and away he hopped.

He bought a pack of chewing gum (really, I never knew before what it was that made bunnies wiggle their nooses), and went into the fun house and saw himself in all the fat and lean and lumpy mirrors, and got lost in the Puzzle Patch on purpose to see how quickly he could find his way out, and did a whole lot of things like that.

But all the time he was making his way to the merry-go-round, where Nancy and Nick were working. He liked the Twins and they liked him and when he was a passenger Nick always let it go around a couple of times longer so he would get an extra long ride.

"I'm gonna stay till I get the brass ring," said Cutie, as he drew near and heard the ting-a-ling-a-ling, dum-de-dum-de-dum of the music. "And when I get it I'm gonna keep it to show to my friends. Hello, Nick!"

"Hello, Cutie," called Nick. "Hop on. You're just in time." "Hop on?" The little rabbit boy got on the merry-go-round and climbed up on a fierce-looking dragon with a curly tail.

"Hoory!" he shouted as the whistle went "toot-toot" and Mister Zip, the fairy-man, turned the thing-a-mungler that started the merry-go-round on its circular journey.

What's that? What did you say? Who was it that went "hoory"? Cutie or the dragon? My goodness. It was Cutie, of course, for the fierce dragon was only made of wood, and even if he hadn't been, he'd have been

TOAST BEER-BOTTLER AS "BENEFACTOR"

LONDON, July 22.—The memory of Benjamin Kinton, the first man who bottled beer successfully for export, was honored at a banquet given by the Vintners' Company here. In solemn silence the company drank to "the immortal memory of our late brother and benefactor, Benjamin Kinton."

When 15 years of age Kinton was apprenticed to a hotel keeper, and later became a waiter and beer-drinker at one of London's old-fashioned public houses called the "Crown and Maple." He married the daughter of the tavern keeper and prospered, and his fortune was increased when he discovered the secret of bottling ale so that it could pass through the changes of climate on the voyage to hot countries without the cork flying out of the bottle.

LACE EDGE

Ruffles of Valenciennes lace edge the scalloped tunics of satin and crepe de chine dresses.

Laughing his tail and gnashing his teeth and breathing fire through his nose, and wondering how a nice tender rabbit would taste for his dinner.

"Oh, I see! You think that's why he was saying 'hoory!' Just because Cutie climbed on his back!"

Well, maybe he would, but as I said before, how could he when he wasn't alive?

Round and round and round went the merry-go-round, and every time Cutie passed the big wooden thing with a ring in the end, he held out his hand and got one. He got so many iron rings that both his ears were full. For every time he got a ring he sold it over an ear.

And then didn't he get the brass ring? "Hoory!" he shouted, louder than ever. "I'll slip this one in my pocket and take it home." Cutie was going to get into a peck of trouble. (To Be Continued.)

KILLS MARRIED WOMAN

Cordage Worker at Plymouth
Then Turns His Pistol
Upon Himself

PLYMOUTH, July 22.—Mrs. Rosario Pinto, 38, was shot to death at 7.10 this morning, at the Braconer farm, two miles west of North Plymouth, by Joseph Guilo, 45, a boarder, who is employed at the Plymouth Cordage Co. Jealousy is ascribed as the motive from a letter written in Portuguese which was found. Guilo then turned the pistol, a German gun, upon himself. He is on the danger list at the local hospital with a bullet wound in his left temple. After shooting himself, Guilo, in a head attempt to cut the woman's head off with an axe. Screams of the 13-year-old daughter, Adelaide, dissuaded him. If he recovers, Guilo will be charged with first degree murder.

WOBBURN LAD CAPTAIN OF BROWN TRACK

PROVIDENCE, July 22.—Alfred Elson, Jr., of Woburn, Mass., will captain the Brown University track team next season. Dr. Fred W. Marvel, graduate manager of athletics, announced today. Elson holds the national Y.M.C.A. record for the quarter mile.

TENNIS TOURNAMENTS ON PLAYGROUNDS

A series of tennis tournaments, culminating in the city championship, will be held on the playground courts of this city during the months of August and September. The first tournament will be held August 7 and will be open to any boy under 16 years of age and his father. The boys will be played at the Shedd park and Highlands tennis courts, with the final at the Highlands courts. All entries must be received on or before July 31, at the park department office. The playground tournament will be held the week of August 18. This will be in three classes, for boys and girls under 12, boys and girls under 15 and boys and girls under 17. The city championship tennis match will be held over Labor day with preliminary games the week previous at both the Shedd park and Highlands playgrounds. The match will be for men only and will consist of singles and doubles. The championship match for women and girls will be held the first week of September and will consist of both singles and doubles.

WARNS OF PROPERTY SALES FOR TAXES

City Treasurer Fred H. Bourke announced today that all real estate on which the 1923 taxes, sewer or sidewalk assessments are unpaid August 2 will be offered for sale by him at public auction to recover the amount of taxes or assessments. Advertisements covering all property to be offered for sale will be inserted in the local newspapers August 4. The sale is authorized under the state laws, amended last year, which provide that the city treasurer may offer for sale all property on which taxes and assessments are unpaid one year from the issuance of the tax bill. Prior to last year, the law was that the city must wait two years to sell such property.

JUDGE RETURNS TO HIS JUDICIAL SEAT

Judge Thomas J. Enright returned to the district bench this morning after a pleasant two weeks' vacation at Wellfleet on the cape. When Court Officer Peter Cawley announced the opening of the regular morning session, the judge discovered that he had neglected to robe himself in his official gown. Mindful of the dignity of his office, he left the bench for a minute or two to restore the necessary vestment, and then smilingly resumed his duties.

PUTNAM AND LEWIS TAKE OUT PAPERS

Frank H. Putnam of 12 Marlborough street, senator from the eighth district for the past five years and prior to that time representative for three years took out papers today at the office of the election commission. Fred Oliver, present time representative from the 11th district, also took out papers today seeking nomination as representative.

Await Sale of Warren Street Firehouse

remodel it and make it into a store and office building, with stores on the street floor and offices on the upper floors. Several fraternal organizations are anxiously awaiting an opportunity to bid on the property and the officers of the organizations feel that Warren street is an ideal location for club headquarters since the roadway has been paved and the Elks' home erected there. The ownership of this property was a matter of argument for some time after the Executive committee was removed from there to the Central fire station, the Middlesex company and the city both claiming to be the proprietors. A decision in the land court recently favored the city's claim, and unless an appeal is entered by the Middlesex company, the city will have the right specified, the city will have the right to dispose of the firehouse as it sees fit. While no definite information concerning the disposition of the property could be learned at city hall, it is believed it will be offered at auction or bids called for its disposal just as soon as the time limit for the admission of an appeal to the land court's decision has expired.

BODY OF MAN FOUND IN WOODS IS BURIED HERE

The body of the unknown man found in a wood near Salem, N. H., by a group of children last Sunday, was yesterday identified as that of James P. Stamos, formerly of this city. The remains were taken here and buried in the Greek cemetery at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

The first report of the finding of the body had it that the discovery was made in Salem, Mass. Yesterday, John Nichols of Suffolk street, a close friend of the deceased, went to that town to identify the body, but learned that it was Salem, New Hampshire, and not Salem, Mass. From letters found on the clothing of the dead man at a morgue in the New Hampshire town, identification was made possible last evening.

Although Stamos' body was found with a bullet wound in it, and a revolver close by, foul play is not suspected. Deceased was known to be despondent when he left Lowell, presumably to look for work in Suncook, N. H.

"DAD'S WEEK" AT CAMP NABNASSETT

The "Dad's week" at Camp Nabnasset, the Y.M.C.A. camp, came to a close Sunday afternoon after dinner, and the 50 dads who were in attendance departed feeling that they had not only spent a profitable and enjoyable week-end, but that they had also come to know their sons better. From their arrival in camp until the close Sunday, there was a continued program arranged by the boys for their benefit. The first event was a ball game between two of the boys' teams, captained by the dads of two of the boys. Camper Harry Jordan's dad captained and pitched for one side and Camper Jackson's dad pitched for the other side, which lost by the score of 6 to 5.

Following the same there was a swim and water sports and the latter were won by the boys. The camp banquet was served by Chef Girard, following which there was an address by William S. Roberts, general secretary of the Marblehead Y.M.C.A. After supper the fathers won the rifle shooting contest from the sons. Saturday morning, two events were staged. The first was a war game in which Capt. Herbert Bartlett's team won from Ken Keith's. The second was the ball game, Dads vs. Sons. The Sons won.

On Monday evening the junior ball team won from the Brookside team. This is the third straight game in the series won by the team.

An awning fire outside one of the windows of the office of George D. Kimball on the third floor of the Wyman's Exchange building this morning spread to the window casing and curtains before it was extinguished by the fire department. The fire company answered a telephone alarm to fire headquarters. Insurance was carried by F. C. Church.

Miss Esther Gilbride was last evening indulged in a shower by several of her friends at the home of Mrs. Eva Harrington. Miss Gilbride who is soon to become the bride of Mr. Jack Fryer was the recipient of numerous gifts. Refreshments were served and a musical program was enjoyed.

FIRE DEPT. HAS ITS TROUBLES AFTER BLAZE

A slight fire in an automobile operated by Robert Tolinferno of Lowell while he was driving through Reading yesterday caused an expense of about $300 to the town for repairs to some of its fire apparatus. The fire in the automobile was caused by a lighted cigarette setting fire to the seat cushion.

On returning from the blaze, combination A broke down and was being towed back to the fire house by hook and ladder 2. The towing chain parted and the combination wagon collided with the hook and ladder, smashing one of the ladders. The front end of the combination also was damaged.

WANTS CHILDREN TO SEE "ASK DADDY" FILM

Supt. John Kerman of the park department, has received a letter from the Massachusetts Safety Council, expressing the hope that every child in Lowell of school age may see the film, "Ask Daddy," which is being shown this week as a feature of the open air program. The scenario was written by a director of the Massachusetts Safety Council, and it is considered the best safety picture yet filmed. The children in the cast are Massachusetts boys and girls, and many of the scenes were "shot" about Boston. It is to be shown to 60,000 Boston children during the playground season. This picture was shown last night on the South common and will be shown tonight on the North common, tomorrow night at the Lakewood avenue playground, and Thursday evening at the Shedd park playground.

ATTACK SAO PAULO AFTER BOMBARDING

BUENOS AIRES, July 22. (By the Associated Press).—Advices by La Nación from Santos state that considerable anxiety is felt owing to reports that the federal troops, after several days' bombardment, have initiated a definite attack on Sao Paulo which is held by the insurgents. The first news arriving in regard to the new operation is somewhat confusing, although it appears that the government forces have obtained advantages and occupied position in Sao Paulo.

LIQUOR RAID AT NEW YORK HOTEL

OFF FOR CAMP AT LONG- SOUGHT-FOR POND

"Pack up your awnings" was the wagon slogan heard at Y.W.C.A. headquarters today as the junior girls "piled" into the machines which transported them to the Y. W. camp at Long-Sought-For pond, Westford.

About 20 girls left Lowell this afternoon for the camp where a two weeks' program of sports and educational activities will be in progress.

The camp site comprises 1200 feet of shore land, 100 feet of sandy beach and 37 acres of wooded land. The camp accommodates 50 guests in two main houses, tents and screened in porches. Swimming, rowing, baseball, canyons, truck rides, hikes, picnics, athletic meets, good food and rest are offered the campers. The girls who left today are from middle ages of 7 to 18 years inclusive. Upon their return the working girls and the house girls of the Y. W. will encamp for two weeks. The camp is under the direction of Miss Mildred Maertins, physical director at the Y. W. She is assisted by Miss Dorothy Fleming, Red Cross life saving instructor and swimming director. Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Kidder are acting caretaker and matron, respectively. Mrs. Kidder being night matron during the winter months at the Y.W.C.A. Association building, locally.

The girls at camp care for their sleeping quarters individually and each has special camp duties to perform daily. A regular camp schedule is adhered to throughout the summer thus insuring regularity in program and the best results in health. Mrs. John A. Stevens, camp chairman, was in charge of transporting the girls to the camp and she was assisted by Miss Francis Graves and others who graciously offered their machines. The camp will remain open until the Monday following Labor day at which time a special closing program of sports will be given showing the progress made by the girls while encamped.

Girls don't care anything about how important you are.

COURT PROTECTS ODOR NOT ORIGIN OF LE FROMAGE

LOCHES, France, July 22.—Camembert cheese, be it ever so humble, does not have to come from Camembert in order to have the right to call itself by that name, a court decided here after hearing arguments of counsel for an association of cheese makers from Normandy. The cheese-makers claim that a local dairy association had infringed their copyright by selling as Camembert cheese a product that was not made in Camembert, district of Normandy. The court held that Camembert has come to be a designation of a certain kind of cheese.

ATTORNEY-GENERALS IN CONFERENCE

BOSTON, July 22.—Atty. Gen. Jay Benton today said that no final statement could be given out at this time regarding the conferences with Atty. Gen. Herbert L. Crocker of Rhode Island which began with a 3-hour session here last night. These conferences have to do with the efforts of the Rhode Island officials to extend into Massachusetts their search for persons and facts connected with the alleged plot by which a gas bomb was exploded in the Rhode Island senate on June 10.

"We went into details pretty thoroughly in the course of our three-hour discussions," said Mr. Benton, but he added that he could not say that any conclusion were reached.

"We plan to take the matter up further," he said. The incident of Saturday night in which two assistant attorneys general of Rhode Island with Providence police officers and others were arrested as suspicious persons notwithstanding their protestations of their identity to Massachusetts constabulary officers is still under discussion, with the Rhode Island officials seeking official explanation, and Massachusetts officers asserting it was all a mistake.

PROBABLY THE SAME OLD DRUNK

The "In-again, out-again, in-again" phrase may be applicable to William Clements of Westford, who was arrested for drunkenness by Patrolman Clyde Aldrich yesterday noon, bailed himself out in the afternoon, and was re-arrested by the same officer this morning. Clements was first arrested in Middlesex street about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He had $100 in his possession, and with this he bailed himself out early last evening. This morning, in Middlesex street again, Clements was found in an inebriated condition, and was forthwith locked up for the second time within 24 hours. He will be arraigned in district court tomorrow.

BIDS ON K. OF C. BUILDING

THIRD PARTY TICKET IN GRANITE STATE

DOVER, N. H., July 22.—Prominent Dover men of both parties are behind a movement to support La Follette and Wheeler. It is proposed to place in the field a progressive ticket embracing candidates for presidential electors, United States senator, congressmen and governor.

Today a letter was sent to Secretary of State Enos K. Sawyer by Frank J. Grimes, a prime mover in the progressive movement, requesting information as to the necessary procedure for having the progressive placed upon the official ballot.

For governor it is regarded as highly probable that ex-Senator John C. Hutchins, who was defeated in the primary two years ago by Fred H. Brown, will head the state progressive ticket. Arthur H. Morrison, independent republican of this city, has declared that he will be a candidate for presidential elector. Other well-known republicans and democrats in Keene and Berlin whose names are at present withheld are considering taking a like step, it is stated.

For congressman in the 1st district, Edgar Pillsbury of Manchester is mentioned as a probable candidate. Progressive headquarters will be opened in this city and arrangements are being made to have Senator Wheeler visit New Hampshire.

MINOR CASES IN THE DISTRICT COURT

Charles A. Soden was fined $100 in district court this morning, for operating an automobile while he was alleged to be under the influence of liquor. He appealed the decision and was ordered to recognize in $300 for his appearance in superior court. Later, Soden withdrew his appeal, and Judge Enright continued the case for sentence until tomorrow.

David J. Murphy appeared on a capias for non-payment of a fine imposed some time ago for drunkenness. A suspended sentence was consequently revoked and he was ordered to stand committed on a sentence to the state farm.

A similar revocation took place in the case of Agnes Richard, charged with drunkenness.

Samuel A. Godlet, breaking and entering and larceny on July 15, was continued until next Thursday.

John McMillen, larceny, failed to put in an appearance and was defaulted.

A suspended sentence of four months in the house of correction was imposed on Michael Semetone on a non-support charge. Edward Zayac, also charged with non-support, was given a suspended sentence of four months.

Louis Kumm, going away without making himself known after injuring property, was defaulted for failure to appear.

REMOVING RAILS AND TROLLEY WIRES

The final step towards doing away with all connections between this city and Pelham, N. H., was taken yesterday when work was started on tearing up the rails and removing the trolley wires of the Southern New Hampshire Street Railway company's right of way from the top of Moody street hill, Lowell, to Pelham.

Service on this line was discontinued last August, the company officials asserting the line did not pay expenses. Since that time residents of the Mammoth Road section of Deane and Pelham have appealed to both the Southern New Hampshire and the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway companies to provide some sort of service, but their appeal went unheeded.

FOUND KITTENS UNDER DOORSTEP

Agent Richardson of the Lowell Humane society was made aware of a peculiar incident today when the clerk in a local fish market called upon his office to remove 11 kittens which he had found secreted in a basket under a doorstep in the rear of his shop upon opening up. The clerk informed the Humane society agent that the little tabbies had caused him no end of anxiety for several moments before he discovered their place of concealment. Apparently hungry, the kittens were given to lamestrutons who found but were soon relieved of their sufferings when an employee of the humane agency arrived on the scene.

CHILDREN SAVED WHEN HOME BURNS

STAMFORD, Conn., July 22.—Mrs. Barbara Villano, 30, died in the Stamford hospital of burns sustained during a fire in which she tried to rescue her three children from burning in their home early today. She had attempted to light a gas stove when leaking gas exploded, throwing her over, seriously burning her face and hands and setting the house on fire. She groped her way upstairs where her children were sleeping. The firemen arrived in time to rescue the children who were unharmed.

DAVIS' SPEECH TO BE SHORT

Democratic Presidential Candidate Will Require But 40 Minutes for Delivery

To Cover Field Generally With Emphasis on Need of Honest Government

DARK HARBOR, ISLEBORO, Me., July 22.—A precedent in brevity is the goal of John W. Davis in the preparation of his address accepting the democratic presidential nomination.

His idea now is to cover the field generally with emphasis on the more important issues of the day, such as honesty in government, foreign affairs, taxes and tariff and farm relief. The occasion requires the discussion of so many different subjects that Mr. Davis cannot make his speech as brief as he would like.

While he has not determined finally upon even the frame work, his present intention is to confine the speech to approximately four thousand words, which would require about 40 minutes to deliver.

The notification address to be made by Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, permanent chairman of the New York democratic convention, probably will be equally as brief as that the ceremonies at Clarkburg, W. Va., on the night of August 11 should be much shorter than have been similar affairs, at least in recent years.

The nominee is studying the several party platforms and the keynote addresses delivered at the Cleveland and New York conventions.

His first step was to discuss the whole subject generally with party leaders in the series of conferences held at New York during the week after his nomination.

Many suggestions were advanced in these conferences and the nominee now has opportunity to mull over these in his mind in the peace and quiet of Seven Hundred Acre Island. Thus far, however, he has not even put in memoranda form any of the suggestions that have come to him.

This stage of the preparation will come later in the week as he studies out his subjects while roaming the woods and fields on the Elbert estate, or occupying the studio of his host.

After three days of rest and recreation here, Mr. Davis has a spunk of the eyes and a healthy glow of face which were lacking when he left New York. He declared tonight that the invigorating Maine air, together with the dropping of political cares, has done him a world of good and he expects to return to New York in pink of condition for the hard months of campaigning ahead.

Since the arrival of the nominee here the weather has been ideal. Having devoted two days to completion yesterday, a round of golf on the Tarrantine course, which winds along a cove and through woods where once the Tarrantine Indians pitched their wigwags or stalked game. Frank L. Polk, his former law partner and friend and advisor, was his adversary and they have arranged for daily matches.

The nominee declined an informal invitation today to help Maine fishermen haul seines in Penobscot Bay. He said the job itself appealed to him, but that the hour of starting, 4 a. m., did not. If time permits, Mr. Davis probably will make a cruise around the many islands that dot the bay.

For the present, Mr. Davis has arranged to divide his days so that he will have the mornings for work on his acceptance address and his mail, with his afternoons free for golf or other forms of recreation.

It may be that later he will find it necessary to devote more time to his speech as well as to his correspondence, which is beginning to pile up on him with each incoming steamer.
